

4-11-2012

Africa after 9/11: Rethinking U.S. Definitions and Policies

David Wiley
Michigan State University

Follow this and additional works at: http://scholarworks.wmich.edu/africancenter_lectures

Part of the African Studies Commons

WMU ScholarWorks Citation

Wiley, David, "Africa after 9/11: Rethinking U.S. Definitions and Policies" (2012). Distinguished Lectures on Africa. Paper 12.
http://scholarworks.wmich.edu/africancenter_lectures/12

This Brochure is brought to you for free and open access by the Center for African Development Policy Research at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Distinguished Lectures on Africa by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact maira.bundza@wmich.edu.

WMU's CENTER FOR AFRICAN POLICY DEVELOPMENT RESEARCH presents DISTINGUISHED LECTURES ON AFRICA

(Spring Semester 2012)

Africa after 9/11: Rethinking U.S. Definitions and Policies

Dr. David Wiley
Professor of Sociology
Former Director of African Studies Center
Michigan State University

David Wiley (Ph.D. Princeton) is a professor of sociology and African studies at Michigan State University. He served as director of the African Studies Centers at Michigan State University (1978-08) and University of Wisconsin-Madison (1972-77). His research has focused on Zambia (urban housing and development); Zimbabwe (race relations, religious movements); Kenya (participatory fisheries management); South Africa (urban environment) as a Fulbright-Hays Senior Fellow at the University of KwaZulu-Natal, as well as internationalization and less commonly taught languages in the U.S. and, currently, militarization in Africa. His most recent publication is "International and Language Education for a Global Future: Fifty Years of the U.S. Title VI and Fulbright-Hays Programs" (co-ed, MSU Press, 2010).

3-4:30 p.m.

Wednesday, April 11

1025 Brown Hall

Co-Sponsors:

WMU's Center for African Development Policy Research, Haenicke Institute for Global Education, Departments of Anthropology, Economics, Foreign Languages, History, Political Science, Sociology and Spanish, Timothy Light Center for Chinese Studies, Office of VP for Diversity & Inclusion, the University Center for the Humanities, and the Walker Institute of Race and Ethnic Relations.

For more information, contact: Dr. Sisay Asefa, CADPR director and professor of economics, sisay.asefa@wmich.edu

CADPR website: <http://international.wmich.edu/content/section/15/116/>

