Everyone Counts Open House and Reunion Luncheon

115 Invitations Sent

All current and past Everyone Counts Learning Community and Leadership for Diversity, Social Justice and Inclusion participants were invited to participate in the luncheon. 22 "yes" RSVPs received.

Why a luncheon?

Over the past 10 years, 115 university employees and students have been engaged in either or both the Everyone Counts Diversity Learning Communities and Leadership for Diversity, Social Justice and Inclusion.

While some individuals participated over multiple years, most participants were not connected to each other due to significant changes in participation year-to-year.

This luncheon was planned in order to continue building a community of collaboration, facilitate campus synergy, and encourage future participation in the learning communities.

Invitations for the luncheon were sent electronically by e-vite and participants were able to RSVP online.

Luncheon objectives

Debut Everyone Counts Diversity Learning Community publicity video to encourage participation

Feature voices of learning community program director and VP for Diversity and Inclusion

Recognize 2014-2015 learning community participants

Facilitate networking and community building

This luncheon event was organized by Jennifer Hsu, Mike Hodgkinson, and Tiffany White. Hsu and Hodgkinson were participants in the 2013-2014 Race, Power and Privilege Everyone Counts Diversity Learning Community and this luncheon represents their learning community project.
