On September 13, 1979, in his "State of the University" address, President John T. Bernhard made the following observation: "A true university cannot ignore its ... key obligation to add to civilization's knowledge and to develop ideas and programs that are uniquely suited to today's emerging and evolving needs.

"As D. N. Langenberg, of the University of Pennsylvania, has clearly pointed out: 'We live in a forest of ignorance. We are beset by problems of all kinds. Knowledge will not necessarily lead us to solutions for all of them, but ignorance will surely help us solve none of them. Our welfare and perhaps our survival depend on our continuing and persistent search for morsels of new knowledge.' "

(Proceedings of the 18th Annual Meeting of the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States, San Diego, CA, November 29-December 1, 1978, p. 198)
The President then went on to emphasize Western's commitment to its research role by declaring that this should "be a special year of progress. I intend that it symbolize a point in our development in which we look backward and forward in terms of significant programs and research that have changed the face of Western. Accordingly, I hereby proclaim 1979-80 as Western's Year of Recognition of Research and Sponsored Programs."

The Achievement . . .

As the Chief Research Officer at Western, I found the President's words to present both a challenge and an obligation. The concepts of "research" and "university" are so basically intertwined that it is impossible to suggest that the latter should exist without the former.

Whatever else may be said, the University must, if it is a true university, provide an opportunity for its students to learn the research process. In order to establish that kind of environment, the faculty must be involved in the research role (the investigation of a new idea or, in its practical implications, the application of a known procedure to the resolution of a difficulty or the attainment of a specific objective).

Moreover, the University's obligation to the society which it serves impacts on its research role especially as the knowledge and skills of the students and faculty are directed to the realm of public needs and public services.

Western has traditionally accepted its obligation to advance the state of knowledge. Although the growth of Western to its present status as a sophisticated, multi-faceted graduate institution dates back less than three decades, research contributions have been broadly based in many disciplines and have earned Western a national and international recognition.

Unfortunately, it is impossible to identify, within these few pages, the breadth and depth of research that has and is occurring at Western. Even a brief synthesis of the hundreds of projects and creative efforts produced by Western's faculty would fill dozens of pages. This fact was never more clear than the past October when I attempted the difficult task of selecting individuals to be honored as outstanding "grantspersons"—faculty and staff who had brought millions of dollars to Western to support their research and program concerns.

The banquet, held on October 1st, was distinguished by a thoughtful speech given by Joseph Daniel Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Twenty-six faculty, six staff members, six department chairmen and five centers for research were honored. They had brought more than $30 million to Western in the preceding 15 years. However, it is an unequivocal fact that those selected did no more than begin to represent the diverse nature and role of research which has been conducted at Western.

While it is true that there is a unique link between outside funding programs and research efforts in every university, it is equally true that the dollars received by an institution are often an inadequate measure of the work of the faculty. Therefore, in honoring those who had brought monies to Western, I was forced to neglect many who had uniquely valuable projects which had been designed, completed, and published or exhibited without any outside funding or, at best, minimal support.

The President's proclamation was a special challenge to find ways to support those individuals as well as those who had been successful in obtaining funding. As Duffey noted, funding in the humanities and arts is separated widely in availability and amount from that in the sciences. For example, in the past year nearly $1 billion was available for research in the sciences while only $150 million was available for the humanities.

"Can we afford two cultures?" Duffey asked and then responded, "There must be a common commitment" by researchers in both the sciences and the humanities. While he would not advocate a "false unity," he asked for a renewal of "our commitment to our love of learning and our quest for truth."

The Wonder . . .

Although, as noted before, it is frustrating and dangerous to select a few from the many who have been active in research at Western, this article does provide an opportunity to illustrate, in a small way, the breadth of research—and its many definitions—by highlighting three departments and five individuals who are currently active in their respective disciplines.

The first individual is George Raica, director of exhibitions for the Art Department. Without prior experience or training in writing grants, but with a great deal of personal and professional motivation, Raica has received funding for eight projects in the past 18 months. "I had never written a grant before," Raica said, "but I looked at the objectives of the department and of the Michigan Council for the Arts (MCA) and selected projects in line with those objectives."

One of the more popular projects for which Raica received MCA implementation was the recent Exhibition of Quilts and Gameboards. Aware that MCA looked at community needs as well as at universities' specialized interests in awarding its Community Assistance Mini-Grants, Raica said he "stressed the popular appeal and the community involvement of this exhibition in my grant proposal."
He estimated that about 2,000 people visited the exhibition.

The quilts, dating from the mid-1800's to the early 1900's, were loaned from the private collections of about 30 individuals from throughout southwestern Michigan, Raica said. "They were used as an educational tool by professors who discussed how they operated structurally, their images, shapes and color relationships. The public was more interested in the stitching techniques, types of cloth, and origins of the quilts," he said.

Also on display were over 100 gameboards, many handmade of wood or of metal and glass. They included boards for chess, checkers, Parcheesi and backgammon as well as for some games Raica said he had never heard of. "With both the quilts and the gameboards, we dealt with the sensitivities of the people who created them," Raica said. "We stressed their unique aspects. There have been a lot of quilt shows in the past 10 years, signifying a return to the sensitivity of folk-art work. I didn't want this one to be run-of-the-mill."

The exhibition was curated by Art Department faculty members Jani Mohr, Gordon Grinwis and Bruce Naftel. They did the legwork in order to make the contacts which led to the collection of the exhibits, Raica said.

"Grantsmanship makes us more visible and more viable," Raica said. Even though all of the grants he has received have been for small amounts of money, Raica's attitude is that "every little bit helps."

"It relieves the pressure and the tension" and facilitates survival, he said, "and it's been a learning process for me. In the long range, grantsmanship won't be only a matter of survival, but will be life-supporting."

Raica's involvement in the funding process and the nature of the exhibition might not be accepted by everyone as a research effort, but the objectives of the exhibition were met and the University provided a special opportunity to southwestern Michigan as well as to its own students and faculty.

A more traditional definition of research is found in the work currently being continued by Dr. Lawrence Fialko, associate professor of mathematics. Fialko has been involved in the discovery of mathematical knowledge for the past five years. He has won three grants from the National Science Foundation (NSF) with which he has worked in the area of operator theory. His research has focused on infinite (rather than three) dimensional linear algebraic transformations.
"Rather than performing transformations based on three dimensions, I am researching the process of performing them based on an infinite number of dimensions," Fialko said. The dimensions can be any physical variables which exist in a problem, including time, temperature, or other quantities, he explained. Therefore, the concept of infinite dimensions is not completely theoretical.

Much of his research is done in the library, but the problem is that there is usually a two-year delay in getting new research published. "The grant has allowed me to attend conferences and correspond with other mathematicians," Fialko said. "The lack of such funding is a serious impediment, especially in a field which changes so quickly," he said.

Fialko teaches graduate and undergraduate classes in calculus and analysis (including operator theory). "The results of my research are concrete and practical, especially to physicists," Fialko said. "Only the terminology is difficult for most people to understand." Results of his research are used in quantum mechanics, network theory, and electrical engineering. "Operator theory is also studied in and of itself, for purely mathematical rather than physical solutions," Fialko said. "The problems are motivated by some mathematical questions, and the results are related to other mathematical problems," he said. Results of his previous funded research projects have led to his subsequent research proposals which were funded by NSF. He is currently working on a "continuous selection theorem" for operators.

The research is of value to mathematicians, Fialko said, because it studies "good mathematics" which is of interest to mathematicians. And there is always the chance that further applications of the new knowledge will be found in the future, he said.

Finally, a special project recently funded in the Geology Department serves as an excellent illustration of the role which the University plays in serving the State of Michigan. Department Chairman Lloyd Schmaltz, along with Professors Richard Passero and W. Thomas Straw, has received funding from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to map Michigan's drinking water supplies and the level of underground pollution which threatens them. Schmaltz and his team, including many graduate and undergraduate students, are assisting the government in its effort to identify the sources of pollution in order to provide the EPA and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) with a data base upon which to determine whether to issue further permits for underground injection of wastes in certain areas.

The researchers will determine where Michigan residents are getting their water as well as the potential for contamination of that water by industrial wastes. Currently, industries inject waste materials into a variety of underground geological formations at depths of up to 4,000 feet below the surface. Schmaltz hopes that, in the future, the EPA and DNR will prohibit all such injections into "sole source aquifers": that is, water supplies which are designated as the only source of drinking water for area residents.

The research being conducted by Schmaltz and his colleagues here in Michigan is part of a nationwide effort being coordinated by the EPA as part of the Underground Injection Control Program which was established after the U.S. Congress passed the Safe Drinking Water Act in 1974. The WMU researchers are not collecting any new data but rather are accumulating, in a coordinated manner, the great volume of material previously collected by the U.S. Geological Survey, Michigan's DNR, and all of Michigan's counties and municipalities, among other agencies. For example, data on the over 100,000 domestic well bogs in Michigan are being assembled and mapped.

Schmaltz cited an EPA publication which explains why the contamination of ground water is a matter of grave concern. "Ground water is usually assumed to be of high quality and is often used with little or no treatment. Contamination is usually discovered when the consumer is taken ill and, in many cases, the only practical solution is to search for another source. Because of the slow movement of ground water, it may be decades or even centuries before the aquifer is once more usable. In some cases, the contamination can never be reversed and the resource may be lost forever. Finally, the effort to clean up the nation's surface waters is hampered if the base flow of streams is already contaminated."

Schmaltz, Passero and Straw have considerable experience related to the objectives of this project. Schmaltz is a glacial geologist and geomorphologist with 20 years of experience in Michigan geology. Passero is a member of the Michigan Environmental Review Board and the Governor's Task Force on Toxic Wastes; he has worked on waste disposal concerns with the U.S. Geological Survey's Ground-Water Division and serves as a consultant for Kalamazoo County regarding landfill monitoring and site selection. Straw is a hydrogeologist, glacial geologist and geomorphologist. He has studied the hydrogeology of the Ohio River Valley and of southwestern Michigan. He has been Project Director of a recent limnological study of Austin Lake in

The Division of Research and Sponsored Programs
By Dr. Conrad Katzenmeyer

I am enthused about the challenges and opportunities that facilitating Research and Sponsored Programs at Western presents. There is great potential in our faculty and I believe the conditions are right for increasing the amount of external support coming to this campus. But it won't be easy; it is clear from my experience at NSF that the number of institutions actively seeking grants has markedly increased while the total funds available to Colleges and Universities has remained constant.

There are several actions the Division of Research and Sponsored Programs has taken to improve Western's competitiveness. We have streamlined procedures and are exploring the purchase of word-processing equipment to increase proposal preparation efficiency. We have also reorganized within the Division to be able to collect more first hand information from federal and state agencies.

In the future, I hope to add some significant new services for the faculty. We plan to develop a computerized profile of faculty interests so we can quickly target and deliver all information on funding programs. We are also considering hiring a Washington, D.C., representative who would give us constant personal contact with agency personnel. Finally, we have hope of establishing a research institute at Western to better pursue external funds and to coordinate funded projects.

There are also efforts we must make as an institution. The key element in increasing our share of external funds will be identification of the unique strengths and needs of southwestern Michigan. It will also require interdisciplinary efforts and cooperation with other educational institutions in this area. We must convince funding agencies that we have a master plan for our research and sponsored activities that will guide our efforts over a number of years.
Kalamazoo County. The three professors contributed to a recent Geology Department study of overall environmental concerns in Kalamazoo County, published as Kalamazoo County: Geology and the Environment.

The Promise . . .

Each of the three examples just described involved a form of outside funding—from a small but significant sum to organize an exhibition to a $300,000 grant extending over a year and involving massive amounts of data-gathering and analysis.

It would be particularly remiss for me not to emphasize the fact that an extra effort must be mounted by faculty and staff who obtain funding of any sort—whether it is an internally supported Faculty Research Fellowship or Grant or an external federal agency or foundation. Several offices on the campus have been established to provide administrative support to faculty and staff as well as to maintain records essential to state and federal regulations.

One office, the Division of Research and Sponsored Programs, is particularly directed to assist all faculty and staff who wish to prepare proposals and contracts for support from government agencies, private foundations, and other external sources of funds to finance research, training, instructional and public service projects and programs.

The office, staffed by four professionals and three secretaries, is currently administered by Associate Dean Conrad Katzenmeyer. Dr. Katzenmeyer’s unique experience in Washington and his knowledge of the university research scene have already brought attention to the Division and the services which it provides. Other members of the staff include Wil Emmert, senior research and program officer; Mrs. Usha Helweg, research and program officer; and Mrs. Reeve Campagnano, technical specialist. Each of these individuals has special areas of expertise but their basic charge is to aid in stimulating and facilitating faculty and staff participation in appropriate grant projects and programs.

Additional aspects of the Division’s responsibility are to inform faculty and staff of funding opportunities, to review proposals in terms of University and other regulations, and to serve as a liaison between the University and sponsoring agencies.

Research and innovation are hard to come by—regardless of the community in which we function. Yet, a strong forward thrust in our research effort is essential to our future—not only as a university but as a country. Risks must be taken; uncertainty cannot hamstring our obligations to produce new knowledge or to develop the application of the old.

The future of Western requires an institutional commitment to community service and strong ties with industry. To deny those obligations is to deny the essential definition of a university. Of course, we are here to teach, as the Chaucerian clerk would say, “to gladly teach,” but we are also here to analyze, to assess, to explicate, and to determine the essential components of our physical world, our social environment, our culture and our tradition.

It is this obligation which motivated President Bernhard to place a special emphasis on this year of research and sponsored funding. It is a recognition of that which we have been, an examination of that which we are, and a promise to look carefully at our future as an educational institution serving a complex society.

The 1980’s are with us; the charge has been set. There is no doubt in my mind that Western will respond to that challenge, to test the unknown and make it known.
Groundbreaking ceremonies for Western Michigan University's $16.2-million Fine Arts (music-dance) Building were held Feb. 14. Funds are being provided by a State Building Authority bond sale and a $1 million anonymous gift.

The three-story building, to be constructed north of Miller Auditorium and east of Kohrman Hall (formerly the Industrial and Engineering Technology Building), will house the music and dance departments, plus the offices of the dean of fine arts. The building's 157,340 gross square feet will include: a multi-media room, with a seating capacity of 228; a 600-seat recital hall; three rehearsal halls; organ, percussion, contemporary dance, jazz dance and choreography studios; 89 various size practice rooms; a 112-seat music history room; music therapy room; locker and shower facilities for men and women in dance; classrooms; faculty offices; and storage facilities.

The acoustically designed structure will comply with the latest barrier free codes. Construction is expected to be completed in the summer of 1982.

Participants in the program were Trustee Fred W. Adams, master of ceremonies; Fred Whims of the governor's office; Arnold Rich, administrative assistant to the Joint Capital Outlay Subcommittee, representing its chairman, State Sen. Jerome T. Hart; Paul Wilden, executive secretary of the State Building Authority; Maury E. Parfet, chairman of The Board of Trustees; Robert Holmes, dean of the College of Fine Arts; and President John T. Bernhard.

Architects, engineers and planners for the project are Harley, Ellington, Pierce, Yee & Associates, Southfield. Contractors are: DeYoung & Bagin Construction Co., Grand Rapids, general construction; C. L. Mahoney Co., Kalamazoo, mechanical work; and Harlo Corporation, Grandville, electrical work.

Among those officially breaking ground for the university's new $16.2-million Fine Arts (music/dance) Building are, from left, Trustees Dr. Julius Franks, Jr., Mildred L. Johnson, Maury E. Parfet and J. Michael Kemp, along with Robert Holmes, dean of the College of Fine Arts, and Brian Jeffries, who represented State Sen. Tom Guastello (D-Mt. Clemens).

Library acquires 150,000th map

A rare map of the village of Bronson, published in 1834 before the community was re-named Kalamazoo, has become the 150,000th map added to the collection in Western's Waldo Library.

Printed on very thin paper, it measures 21½ by 16½ inches and is regarded as the earliest known map of Kalamazoo. The area was first platted just three years before.

Although the map was purchased from an antique map dealer for $200, according to Dr. Louis Kiraldi, WMU library professor in charge of documents and maps, because of its rarity no estimate of its true value can be given. He plans to have it framed and hung in Waldo Library soon.

Kiraldi observed that Western has one of not more than 30 academic libraries throughout the country to have such a large map collection. It was started here only 15 years ago and acquired its 100,000th map in 1973, he said.
Western Food Service cited

Responsible for feeding over 6,000 people, WMU’s food service recently was cited by “Institutions Magazine” as one of the 100 high scorers in the food service league.

Western was among only 10 university food services named in an article, “Growth Chains: 100 Profiles,” in the journal’s November issue. Each food service was recognized for demonstrating “hustle, quick hands and innovative game plans.”

Thomas Carr, WMU assistant vice president and director of auxiliary enterprises, attributes this epicurean success to the fact that, unlike many other institutions, Western runs a test kitchen where new products and old recipes are sampled and rated according to each item’s appearance, odor, color, flavor and texture.

Even though Western’s food service is responsible for preparing food for three snack bars, a public cafeteria, the WMU Gold Room restaurant and a catering service, the WMU test kitchen dietitian is concerned primarily with satisfying the several thousand students who live in residence halls. Each week, several students are invited to lunch, in addition to food service staff members, to test new products, improve old recipes and criticize the cooking. Only dishes with 75 percent approval are served in WMU dining rooms.

Western’s Scott assists Egyptians

A feasibility study of the vocational-technical and pre-engineering educational needs of the country of Egypt will be conducted by Dr. Frank S. Scott, WMU professor of industrial engineering.

His six-month special consulting assignment, which began in January, is a cooperative project between WMU, the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and the Egyptian Ministry of Education, Cairo.

“I’m very excited about this special consulting assignment,” Scott exclaimed. He indicated that he will be assessing existing vocational-trade and pre-engineering programs there and developing a plan with a list of priorities and recommendations with regard to curriculum, resulting syllabi, facilities (buildings and equipment) and textbook translations.

Scott has had similar assignments in Egypt, Vietnam and Turkey; he also was chief of party for WMU’s USAID project that established a technical college in Ibadan, Nigeria, West Africa, 1960-62.

1980-81 PRRs total $3.1 million

Eight program revision requests (PRRs) totaling $3,159,000 have been approved by the WMU Board of Trustees for submission to the Michigan Department of Management and Budget as part of the University’s 1980-81 budgetary request process.

In highest priority order, they are: Job Related Energy and Career Instructional Programs, $727,000; Instructional Support and Delivery Systems, $415,000; Law School, $550,000; Health Profession Instructional Programs, $622,000; Deferred Maintenance Projects, $347,000; Public Service Centers and Liberal Arts, $235,000; Career Education and Information Program, $111,000; and Research Institute, $152,000.

Study ‘burnout’ among teachers of handicapped

The problem of “burnout” among career teachers working with the severely handicapped is being studied by a team of researchers in the WMU special education department. The work is supported by a $34,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education’s Bureau of Education for the Handicapped.

The study is being conducted by Dr. Michael E. Gallery, assistant professor and project coordinator; Dr. Joseph Eisenbach, professor and department chairman; and Jeannie Holman, a graduate student from Kalamazoo.

According to Gallery, “burnout” is the most frequently reported factor related to attrition. “Burnout” refers to one’s reactions to the physical and emotional exhaustion that are presumed to be associated with the stress of working with the severely handicapped.

As a result, persons are believed to escape—either physically or mentally—from their jobs.

Among the alleged signs of “burnout” in teachers are absenteeism, frequent headaches, high blood pressure, insomnia and lack of empathy for the persons with whom they are working. In more severe instances, “burnout” may result in complete emotional collapse and long-term disability.

Gallery believes that, in discussing “burnout,” words such as “presumed” and “alleged” are important. “It’s amazing how much of what has been said about ‘burnout’ is opinion and how little is fact,” he said.

Western’s researchers will collect data at about 10 educational centers throughout the state. Once they have identified the causes of attrition, the team’s next step will be to develop strategies for eliminating those causes. The strategies will be critiqued, revised, field tested and revised again until they yield data that show their effectiveness for reducing attrition.

As a result of the three-year study, it is expected that more than 250 administrators, teachers and para-professionals working with the severely handicapped will be trained to deal with critical factors related to “burnout.”

Other anticipated results include a reduction in the attrition rate among staff members at six training centers for the SPH, the national distribution of two strategies for dealing with the attrition problem and the distribution of information to readily identify factors leading to attrition.

Music therapy clinic opens

A Music Therapy Clinic, a new WMU facility serving disabled persons free of charge, opened in January on campus. Sessions are held up to twice weekly in the East Hall lower level.

Music therapy is the use of musical activities by a trained therapist to accomplish specific therapeutic goals, working with individuals who have a variety of disabilities. They include mentally retarded, physically handicapped and emotionally impaired persons.
Parfet, Kemp lead Trustees

Mrs. Maury E. Parfet, 34, of Hickory Corners and J. Michael Kemp, 36, of Kalamazoo have been elected chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of Western's Board of Trustees.

Parfet, active in community organizations, currently serves as a trustee of the Borgess Medical Center and the Michigan Foundation for the Arts. She was a founding member and is a trustee of the Kalamazoo Academy. She also is a former trustee of the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra and a past division chairman for the Kalamazoo chapter of the American Cancer Society.

A native of Kalamazoo, she has been vice chairman of the WMU Board, chairman of its academic affairs committee and a member of its budget and finance committee. She also is a member of the board of directors of Cistercian Publications at Western. She received her B.A. degree in 1968 from Michigan State University. She and her husband, William, have a daughter, Genevieve E., and two sons, Theodore G. and Robert J.

Kemp, a partner with the Kalamazoo law firm of Howard & Howard, is a native of Battle Creek. He was graduated with honors in history from Michigan State University in 1965. He received his J.D. degree with honors in 1968 from George Washington University School of Law, Washington, D.C. He spent four years with the U.S. Army, Judge Advocate General Corps, including active duty in Vietnam.

He was appointed to the WMU Board in 1975 and has chaired its collective bargaining committee and served on its budget and finance committee. He is a trustee of Kalamazoo's First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Kalamazoo Rotary Club. He is a past chairman of the Kalamazoo County Republican Party. He and his wife, Connie, have three children: Jeff; Julie; and Sarah.

Parfet replaces Charles H. Ludlow of Kalamazoo, who continues to serve on the Board.

Western has three on youth council

Two Western students and an administrator have been appointed to the Michigan Youth Employment Council (MYEC) for two-year terms by Gov. William G. Milliken, who designated one of them, Henry L. McClendon, Jr., a freshman from Detroit, as chairperson.

The others are Julie G. Pigeon, a Kalamazoo sophomore, and Dr. Robert W. Ethridge, secretary to the WMU Board of Trustees, who is the MYEC post-secondary educational institution representative.

Art Department gets reaccredited

A 10-year accreditation and membership renewal in the National Association of Schools of Art (NASA) has been granted to WMU's art department by NASA's board of directors.

NASA is the only accrediting agency for art schools, departments or divisions in the U.S. and has more than 170 members. Its accreditation is gained only after an institution supplies a detailed report and is visited by NASA representatives.

Western's art department now must submit a progress report addressing several concerns of the NASA Commission on Accreditation and Membership about Western's art program to NASA in time for a September, 1981 meeting. These include "plans for renovation of facilities and equipment"; "improvement in the (art department's) Gallery (exhibition area) situation and visiting artists program"; and a "support structure of faculty time for the Master of Fine Arts program and a clearer definition of the courses which comprise the degree."

The commission commended the WMU art department for conducting a "thorough self-study."

Holland area alums contribute

WMU alumni in the Holland, Saugatuck, Zeeland and Hamilton areas donated more than $1,200 in a recent telephone campaign by Western students, staff and alumni to raise funds for scholarships, loans and academic needs at the University.

The first phonathon effort in the Holland area is part of a nation-wide program started by Western's Office of Development. In a reciprocal, money-saving arrangement, calls were made from the Hope College Annual Fund Office. Those not reached by phone will be contacted by mail asking them to help.

Western alumni from Holland participating in the phonathon were Dr. Ronald Berry (class of '57), Susan Dow (78), Ralph J. Oldenburger (61) and Donald Johnson (62).
Among the candidates for bachelor's degrees at Western's December commencement from right were: Suzanne Schemm of Essexville, who was Miss Michigan 1978; and Clarence W. Emery, 70, and Raymond D. Boyer, 64, both of Kalamazoo, who were the first persons in nearly five years to receive bachelor's degrees under WMU's Project SCOPE (Senior Citizens' Opportunity Program in Education), which provides free admission to persons 62 years of age or older to WMU classes on the final day of registration on a seats available basis. All three plan to work toward master's degrees, Schemm at Northwestern University in communication and Emery and Boyer under WMU's SCOPE program. Emery, after taking part-time classes at WMU 1928-31, enrolled in SCOPE in 1975 and Boyer, who attended Western in 1934, re-enrolled in 1978.

Marching band stats impressive

Western's Bronco Marching Band rang up some impressive statistics in preparing and doing six halftime shows at home football games plus performing on five other occasions around Michigan last fall.

The WMU music department reports that the 128-member band rehearsed and performed a total of 27,160 person hours and marched a grand total of 28,402 person miles up and down their practice area in rain, heat, hail and snow flurries.

Preparations required the distribution of 7,600 sheets of music which were not used during actual performances because the band played from memory a total of 27 different pieces of music during the season. It also executed 21 different marching drills during its shows. When the band took the field, typically it marched with 2,074 pieces of University-owned equipment, an average of 17 per band member.

The band is directed by Gregory Talford, assisted by percussion instructor Michael Varner and color guard coordinator Susan Nielsen.

New to the band this fall were the "Golden Girls," a pom-pon and dance unit, 12 strong, who wore metallic gold skirts.

Sharma writes book on Africa, Asia

"The tragic events in recent weeks in foreign cities such as Tehran, Islamabad, Mecca, Calcutta and Hyderabad are symptoms of a malaise afflicting underdeveloped societies," according to Dr. Visho Sharma of the WMU faculty, who has written a newly published book on that subject, entitled "Developing Societies: Africa and Asia."

In his book, Sharma has analyzed the deep-seated frustrations characteristic of African and Asian societies. "These frustrations are the product of colonialism and racial arrogance," he said. "Much hostility is evoked by the support of Western nations of autocratic regimes that have failed to give economic content to political liberation from imperialism." He observed that when these regimes are toppled, "they often give way to demagogues who hold humanity to ransom, offering cures that are worse than the disease."

Sharma is a WMU professor of social science and sociology and coordinator of WMU's Non-Western World Studies. His book has been published by Morton Publishing Co.
Ford donates two automobile chassis

The Ford Motor Company has given two automobile chassis to Western's transportation technology department. The chassis will be broken down and the components used for instructional purposes in the automotive engineering and automotive management and service programs in the department here.

M.H.P. "Mickey" Elwood, Ford's Lansing district office zone manager, recently made the presentation to Herbert Ellinger, WMU associate professor of transportation technology. Don Seelye of Seelye Ford, Kalamazoo, was instrumental in making arrangements for the transport of the chassis to WMU, Ellinger noted.

LEEP funded

Western's Criminal Justice Program has received a $91,430 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U.S. Department of Justice, to continue the Law Enforcement Education Program (LEEP) on campus.

Sky Broncos win

For the fifth consecutive year, the WMU Sky Broncos student flying team successfully defended their Region X, National Intercollegiate Flying Association (NIFA) championship in last fall's competition held last fall at Bowling Green University in Ohio.

Women engineers chartered

The WMU student chapter of the Society of Women Engineers (SWE) has received its charter from the national organization at a recent dinner program on campus.

Displaced homemakers' needs investigated

Western's Center for Women's Services (CWS) recently was awarded a $56,183 grant to investigate the needs of displaced homemakers in Kalamazoo County.

"Displaced" from their jobs as full-time homemakers due to divorce, separation, death, the disablement of the wage earner or the end of public assistance, women often face emotional and financial stress.

Under the terms of a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) public service project, approved by the Kalamazoo County Public Service Employment Committee of the Kalamazoo County Employment Development Council, five persons will be hired to undertake a needs and services assessment, develop materials to aid displaced homemakers and explore employment options. A series of conferences will be held this year to inform the community of their findings.

CWS project manager Kathryn Craig said she hopes to hire CETA-eligible displaced homemakers for the project because "they understand the critical problems in employment, health, financial management and self-esteem faced by women who may never have expected to be wage earners themselves."

Ecorse junior named Miss Black WMU

"Miss Black Western Michigan University" for 1979-80 is Andrea Lynn Beard, an Ecorse junior majoring in communication arts and sciences. She also was selected Miss Congeniality. Beard won a trophy and a $100 cash award along with her title. All contestants were judged on poise, talent and intelligence. The contest was sponsored by the Black Brothers and Sisters of Bigelow (Hall).

Runnersup were Cynthia Tansil, a Detroit junior majoring in general business, and Dorla E. Coleman of Saginaw, an industrial engineering freshman.
A Message From
The President of The University

The continued high level of support provided the University by alumni and friends is deeply gratifying to the faculty, support staff, and me personally. In these days of pressing budgetary demands at all levels, coupled with raging inflation, private support is fundamental to our continued operation.

To charge that we could do without private support is to seriously miscalculate the inherent worth of private investment in public education. Our non-public sister institutions have traditionally inculcated their graduates with the need to return some of what they have received in order that those who follow may benefit.

In recent years, public college graduates have increasingly sensed the vital role they must play in undergirding the structure of higher education and have demonstrated their responsiveness by giving most generously to their alma mater. Western graduates and friends of the University, including corporations and foundations, have again in 1979 provided nearly two million dollars in private gift support.

Additionally, I must voice a special "thank you" on behalf of the Board of Trustees to the volunteers who have helped to make this past year a success. Members of the WMU Foundation, the Annual Fund Committee, the Mike Gary Athletic Fund, and numerous special groups have our heartfelt thanks!

John T. Bernhard

A phrase appearing in a professional journal recently struck me as being very much on target when it comes to explaining philanthropy. "Think of philanthropy as more than charity. Consider it the private sector in action."

In my brief tenure as President of the WMU Foundation, which exists solely to encourage and foster the philanthropic motives of the University's constituencies, I have come to appreciate the enormous potential of the private sector in action.

Members of the Foundation, the Alumni Association, and other support groups, all members of the private sector, are affecting rather dramatic growth in private support for Western. With $1,823,087 in private gifts reported in 1979 and a major capital drive soon to be announced, Western has entered an exciting new era. I am confident that the directors of the WMU Foundation, and hundreds of other volunteers, share my excitement and optimism as we look to the decade ahead. The problems of our society, it seems to me, can only be confronted by a strong and vibrant voluntary sector and a citizenry with a "privileged" educational background. We have the resources to provide such an educational setting but our priorities must be carefully established.

My personal gratitude is extended to all who have given unselshly to Western during the past year. Speaking on behalf of the Foundation, I would encourage all alumni and friends to place support to WMU high on your list of priorities in 1980.

Raymond A. Rathka
A Message From
The Chairman of
The 1979 Annual Fund Committee

I'm very gratified and proud to report to you that this year the WMU Annual Fund topped the 11,000 donor mark! 11,148 individuals and groups made a commitment to academic excellence at Western in 1979; this represents a 13% increase over 1978 and a 28% increase since 1976!

This report is published to publicly thank and honor each of you for your tangible and lasting expression of concern for and interest in the 20,000 men and women currently pursuing an advanced Western education. The achievements made possible by your generosity is a source of pride to all who have crossed Western's portals and will constitute a source of inspiration to those who come to us in the future.

In 1979, your contributions:

• Enabled 6,000 students to obtain needed financial support through many scholarship and loan funds.
• Upgraded instructional equipment and materials in almost every academic unit.
• Upgraded important library resources.
• Supported 400 WMU athletes through the Mike Gary Athletic Fund.
• Provided support for current research projects throughout all academic areas.

The list of accomplishments could be expanded greatly, but this list in part reflects what the magnitude of your contributions have made possible.

As we enter an exciting new decade, I invite each of you—alumni, businesses, corporations, friends—to continue to share Western's heritage and hopes for the future.

Gwen Frostic

A Message From
The Executive Secretary

A unique body within the greater University community, the WMU Foundation Board of Directors continues as the most significant volunteer force dedicated exclusively to procuring financial support from the private sector.

The Foundation's current membership totals 97 and represents alumni and friends of the University across the country. Ray Rathka, Treasurer, Michigan Bell Telephone Company, and an alumnus (BBA '53) is in his third term as president of the Foundation. Continuing with Rathka as officers are the Foundation's Vice President, Arthur Homer, retired Trust Vice President and Senior Trust Officer of the American National Bank of Kalamazoo, and Foundation Treasurer Robert Wetnight, Vice President for Finance at WMU.

At its annual meeting in October of 1979, the Foundation elected Mr. Richard A. Lenon (BA '41), President and Chief Executive Officer, International Minerals and Chemical Corporation, Northbrook, Illinois, to a three-year term on the Board of Directors. Mr. Lenon was granted the University's and Alumni Association's "Distinguished Alumnus Award" in 1976.

Mr. John W. Dwyer, Grand Rapids; Mr. James M. Engel, Kalamazoo; Mr. Lawrence Feiler, Marshall; Miss Gwen Frostic, Benzie; Mr. James S. Gilmore, Jr., Kalamazoo; Dr. Joseph T. Hoy, Miami, Florida; Mr. Edward Jones, Cedar Falls, Iowa; Mr. Robert C. Kiefer, Richland; Miss Eunice E. Kraft, Sturgis; Mr. Richard A. Lenon, Northbrook, Illinois; Mr. Hal K. Menzie, Kalamazoo; Mr. Budd J. Norris, Kalamazoo; Mr. Edward Rossi, Kalamazoo; and Mr. Ray Weigel, III, Grand Rapids, accepted five-year membership appointments to the Foundation during 1979.

After 18 months of detailed "start-up" activity, policy formulation, volunteer enlistment, training of staff, and analyzing private sector resources, the Foundation's Board of Directors, at its 1979 Spring Meeting, unanimously passed a resolution launching Western's first University-wide capital campaign for approximately 6.8 million dollars.

The Foundation's assets had a book value of $1,531,275 at the close of the calendar year 1979.

Russell Gabier
In 1979 your gifts to Western provided a significant amount of money beyond its normal income and allowed the University to provide the extra benefits that make W.M.U. an outstanding institution.

Almost two million dollars was received in outright gifts:

- $235,395 from 6,664 Alumni
- 48,439 from 574 Faculty, Staff and Emeriti
- 154,728 from 3,052 Friends of the University
- 100,635 from 85 Organizations
- 878,297 from 617 Businesses and Corporations
- 405,596 from 155 Foundations

The Honor Roll of Contributors climbed from 9,841 in 1978 to 11,148 in 1979—an increase of 13%.

Other increases occurred:
- Alumni donors increased 5%, from 6,371 in 1978 to 6,664 in 1979; alumni giving increased 9%.
- Faculty, Staff and Emeriti donors increased 23%, from 464 in 1978 to 572 in 1979; giving increased 24%.
- Friends jumped from 2,010 to 3,052—a 52% increase in numbers of donors; total donations increased 27%.

A group of energetic and dedicated Volunteers brought a record $26,731 in private gifts from alumni and friends.

Matching gift support from corporations with employees matching gift programs totaled $31,029 in 1979, an increase of 67% over 1978 matching gift contributions.

We're proud to report that the oldest alumni donor in 1979 was Ella Mae Stark, a 1907 graduate who is 97 and living at 1327 Sherwood Avenue, Kalamazoo, Michigan.

The President's Club membership increased in 1979 to 169. The President's Club members are individuals who are recognized and honored for their significant support and volunteer leadership of Western Michigan University.

The Mike Gary Athletic Fund, under the direction of Bill Doolittle, has greatly expanded its activities. The fund received a record $177,312 in 1979. This represents a 14% increase over the previous year for donations to athletic programs.

We take this opportunity to extend to each of you our sincere gratitude and appreciation. Your concern for the future of a truly great institution of higher education is a source of great pride. We hope that you will continue to support Western in 1980 and that you will encourage your friends to do so as well.

Donor Clubs

Western Michigan University Donor Club members constitute a unique group of people whose commitment to Western is deep and abiding. The University is indeed fortunate to have such distinguished friends who not only recognize a need but rise to challenge it. During 1979, membership continued to increase in all four prestigious Clubs.

Donor Club membership at any level encourages a higher level of private support of the University by its alumni and friends, helps develop an active interest and participation in University affairs, and provides a continuity and framework within which tangible, lasting gifts and bequests may be made.

We proudly take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge these individuals.

In recent years, the understanding, cooperation and support that has emerged between Business, Industry, Foundations and the world of Academia has grown remarkably.

There is full recognition of what this has meant to Western Michigan University in terms of programs, research and excellence in education. The interest that has been evidenced by the strong financial support received has clearly assisted Western in maintaining the tradition of a great regional university.

Continued interest and support from Businesses, Corporations and Foundations will aid immeasurably in charting Western's future and putting us in the position of “growing together.” More importantly, it shows a recognition of the important role higher education plays in the development and growth of our nation.

The following list honors those organizations that have helped make Western Michigan University great.

Organizations that matched gifts in 1979 are preceded by an asterisk (*)

Distinguished Alumni Awardees
Gerald A. Hale of Summit, N.J., executive vice president and member of the board of directors of Allegheny-Ludlum Industries, Ind., and Fred W. Adams of Grosse Pointe, a member of the WMU Board of Trustees and a retired American Motors Corporation executive, were presented Distinguished Alumni Awards at the summer commencement. Pictured with them is WMU President John T. Bernhard.

WMU Calling . . .
Student volunteers, campus organizations, faculty, staff and administrators combined their efforts to help the 1979 Phonathon Program set an all-time record in pledges to the University. We thank each of them for their time and support. Volunteers will soon be calling you to ask for your 1980 pledge. When you hear Western Michigan calling again you will know that this is an opportunity for you to step forward with a thoughtful pledge.

Have A Gift Matched and Double Your Dollar

To encourage individual employee support of colleges and universities in the United States, many companies have established a corporate or corporate foundation Matching Gift Program. These are companies who realize that with more and more persons seeking a college education, educational institutions must depend increasingly on voluntary support. Their Matching Gift Programs encourage support from individuals who have benefitted from college training and/or who count on the colleges being ready to educate their children.

Taking advantage of your employer’s program not only doubles the effectiveness of your gift, but it can be accomplished with ease. Simply ask your payroll or personnel office for a Matching Gift form. Complete the form and mail it with your contribution. The Foundation will see to it that your organization is notified of your contribution—which makes a matching gift possible.

Many companies are currently considering how they may support or extend their present support of Western Michigan University. If this is true in the case of your company, you can aid WMU by bringing the Matching Gift concept to the attention of the appropriate people in your company. It’s an easy way to double your dollar!

Giving Is The Tax-Wise Thing To Do!

A contribution to WMU qualifies as a deduction under federal laws (up to 50% of adjusted gross income for all charitable contributions) and, due to favorable tax provisions in Michigan pertaining to gifts to higher education, as a credit under Michigan income tax laws. Based upon individuals' tax liability, the allowable credit is 50% of your contribution, 20% of your tax liability, or $100 ($200 if a joint return is filed), whichever is less.

The tax savings derived from the contribution credit may affect the federal taxable income of the donor for the taxable year following the year of the contribution.

The available tax benefits are significant, and they serve to reduce the cost of your gift to Western. Check the examples below—these are only a guide. Please consult your tax advisor for the benefits in your particular case.

Personnel changes

Dr. Philip Denefeld, associate vice president, was appointed acting vice president for academic affairs, effective January 1. He temporarily replaces Dr. Cornelius Loew, who returned to full-time teaching. Denefeld joined Western's English department faculty in 1956 as an assistant professor. He was promoted to associate professor in 1960 and full professor in 1963. He has served as associate dean for humanities in the College of Arts and Sciences, 1968-72, and as associate vice president for academic affairs since 1972.

Three promotions were approved as part of an administrative reorganization recommended by Vice President for Finance Robert B. Wetnight. They are: William J. Kowalski, from assistant vice president (capital outlay and campus planning), to assistant vice president for facilities engineering; Gerald C. Schwemmin, from assistant controller and chief accountant, to controller; and Lowell P. Rinker, from manager of general accounting to chief accountant.

Kowalski came to WMU in 1966 to serve as director of campus planning, and was made assistant vice president in 1974. In 1976, he became assistant to the president, and assumed his present title in 1977. Kowalski is a 1948 graduate of Western. Schwemmin joined the WMU staff as internal auditor in 1966 after serving in a similar position for King-Seeley Thermos Corp., Ann Arbor, for four years, and with a Ferndale accounting firm from 1957-62. Rinker received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Western. Rinker came to the University in 1972 as a grant accountant, and in 1976 was made project fiscal analyst.

Dinah J. Rank has been appointed director of collective bargaining and contract administration. She has been assistant director of labor and personnel relations at Wayne State University, Detroit, since February, 1978. Previously, she was labor relations coordinator at Wayne State, 1976-78.

Michael J. Matthews, 35, news editor and assistant director of public affairs at Illinois State University, Bloomington-Normal, has been appointed director of information services. He was director of public relations at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill., 1973-75, and a staff writer for the Congressional Quarterly, Washington, D.C., 1970-71. Matthews received his B.A. degree in sociology in 1967 from Loyola University of Los Angeles, Calif., M.A. degree in journalism in 1970 from the University of Missouri, Columbia, and he has done doctoral work in higher education administration at Illinois State.

M. Jamie Jeremy is the new assistant director of alumni relations. She has been administrative assistant for marketing, 1977-79, and executive secretary, 1974-77, in Western's College of Applied Sciences. She was secretary to the WMU chemistry department, 1973-74. She received her B.A. degree from Alma College, Alma, Mich., and is working on an M.B.A. in marketing at Western.

Richard Suddendorf is Western's new director of bands. He has taught for 14 years at Ohio State University, where he served as trumpet professor, director of the faculty brass quintet and associate conductor of the OSU Concert Band. He also served at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, for nine years as instrumental department coordinator and conductor of the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, University Concert Band and University Symphony Orchestra. A graduate of the University of Cincinnati's Conservatory of Music, where he also received a certificate in trumpet, Suddendorf earned his master's degree in music education from the University of Illinois.

The Division of Continuing Education has named Diane L. Milligan, director of administrative services, as the new director of conferences. The Board has reappointed Theresa V. Hluchyj as evaluation training research and development specialist, and Dr. Charles Plummer as assistant director of the Evaluation Center in the College of Education. Charles M. Hunter was appointed as project associate.

A 1971 graduate of Western, Milligan also received her master's degree here in 1975. She served as admissions analyst in the Graduate College, 1971-72, and as director of admissions in the Graduate College, 1973-77.

Western's Evaluation Center currently has project grants of over $600,000. Hluchyj, Plummer and Hunter are all working primarily on the Evaluation Training Consortium Project, which Western's Evaluation Center is involved in along with the University of Virginia, New Mexico State University and Teaching Research in Oregon.

Hluchyj is a 1972 graduate of Smith College, received her master's degree in 1974 from the University of Michigan, and currently is working toward a doctorate there. Plummer, a 1965 graduate of DePauw University, he received his master's and doctoral degrees from Indiana University in 1967.
Sue Davidson is the new director of administrative services in the Division of Continuing Education. A native of Detroit, Davidson received her B.S. degree in communications in 1978 from Western, where she is currently working on her master's degree in educational leadership. She first joined the DCE staff as a secretary in 1975 and was appointed a conference assistant in 1976; she has been conference coordinator since 1978. Previously, she was a secretary/receptionist for the dean of applied sciences, 1972-73, and a secretary in the department of transportation technology, 1973-75.

Virginia Sorenson, associate professor of education and professional development, was named coordinator of that department's directed teaching unit. Head of the field experience program in her department's Grand Rapids area office, she will arrange for placement and supervision of Western's student teachers in the field. She received her B.S. degree in 1955 and M.A. in 1957 from Western and her Ed.S. in 1970 from Michigan State University.

Bob E. White of Grand Rapids, is director of off-campus engineering and technical programs for WMU's Division of Continuing Education. Also an assistant professor of industrial engineering at Western, he has administered those WMU programs for five years prior to taking a leave of absence in May, 1978, to study toward a doctoral degree in engineering valuation at Iowa State University. A registered professional engineer in Michigan, White earned a B.S. degree in industrial engineering in 1972 and an M.S. degree in operations research in 1976, both from WMU.

A Grand Rapids woman, Joyce E. Williams, has been named director of Western's Upward Bound program. A WMU honors graduate in social work in 1975, she received an M.A. here in the counseling and personnel department in April, 1978. She also holds an associate degree from Grand Rapids Junior College. Williams has been supervisor of the Developmental Skills Institute (DSI) at Grand Valley State Colleges (GVSC) as well as a DSI instructor and orientation assistant in the GVSC New Student Programs Office since July. She also was an administrative aide at Ottawa Hills Elementary School, 1975-77; a social worker aide at Henry Elementary School, 1965-75; a city highway department secretary, 1964-65; and a police department secretary, 1955-64, all in Grand Rapids.

Dr. William Grimshaw, who has served as a program analyst and communications officer with the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation of Flint for the past six years, has been named associate director of Western's Center for Community Leadership Training (CCLT). He will direct a three-year research project, funded by the Mott Foundation, to develop and field test training strategies aimed at training local community leaders. Grimshaw holds a Ph.D. degree in educational administration from the University of Michigan. Previously, he was a public school teacher and a communications/public relations director with the General Electric Co. and Burroughs Corp. before joining the Mott Foundation staff.

Kukolich receives award, Trice heads Paper Tech Foundation

Dr. Stephen I. Kukolich of Kalamazoo, WMU professor emeritus of paper science and engineering, received a prestigious “Hall of Fame Award” from the Paper Technology Foundation, Inc., as part of the Foundation's 20th annual meeting last fall. In addition, WMU President John T. Bernhard was given an “Honor Award.” Kukolich was a paper science and engineering faculty member at WMU for over 10 years until his retirement Dec. 31, 1975. He was described as a “devoted teacher and counselor to WMU students.” Prior to coming to WMU he had extensive experience in the papermaking industry, serving as a research chemist, technical director, and research director at various paper industry firms, 1936-65. A graduate of Grinnell College in Iowa, he earned M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the Institute of Paper Chemistry, Appleton, Wis.

Dr. William H. Trice, senior vice president-technology, Union Camp Corp., Wayne, N.J., has been elected to a two-year term as president of the WMU Paper Technology Foundation, Inc. He has been at Union Camp since 1963, beginning in corporate research and development there, has been a Paper Technology trustee for three years and a member of its executive committee and education and research committees. He holds a B.S. degree in forestry from the College of Forestry, Syracuse University. Following service in the U.S. Air Force, 1955-57, he enrolled in the Institute of Paper Chemistry, Appleton, Wis., where he received a Ph.D. degree in 1963. He is a national director of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry.

She joined the WMU Counseling Center as a counselor in 1956. She designed, developed and has been responsible for the Career Exploration Media Center here which recently was named for her and is housed in the WMU Counseling Center.

Large received a B.A. degree in 1942, an M.A. in 1959 and a specialist degree in 1969, all from WMU. She also had taken graduate courses at Eastern Michigan, Michigan State and Johns Hopkins Universities and at the University of Michigan. Prior to joining the faculty at the former University High School at Western in 1964, she had taught 11 years in Southwestern Michigan high schools, including eight at Portage Central. Following the closing of Western’s Campus School in 1966, she joined the WMU College of Arts and Sciences faculty, working with the history department and the College of Education’s teacher education department. For the past two years, Large has been coordinator of arts and sciences for the Division of Continuing Education and the Center for Adult Education Programs here.

Bibza, who has taught courses in clothing and textiles here, received a B.S. degree from Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1940 and an M.S. from Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1947. She attended a half dozen summer sessions taking further graduate studies at other universities. Prior to joining Western’s faculty, she was assistant coordinator at the University of Cincinnati for a year; was an associate professor of home economics at Mansfield State College, Mansfield, Ohio, 1963-64 and also at North Texas State University, 1960-62.

Robinson also was at WMU from 1944-47 in a teaching-clinical position. He earned a B.A. degree from Western (1944), an M.S. degree from the University of Minnesota (1947) and a Ph.D. degree (1951) from Ohio State University. Prior to coming to WMU, he was a professor at Miami University (Ohio), 1952-66, directing the Speech-Hearing Clinic there his final 10 years; was a speech science instructor, Ohio State University, 1947-51; and a speech correction fellow, University of Minnesota, 1942-43.

McBeth joined Western’s faculty in 1955 and since 1975 he has served as director of academic advising, College of Business. He is a graduate of Indiana University (1947) and earned an M.A. degree from the University of Alabama (1951) and an Ed.D. degree from Michigan State University (1971).

Leonardelli joined Western in 1951, teaching in the former state High School and the School of Education. In 1956, he transferred to the Continuing Education Division as director of in-service education programs until he returned to teaching in 1977. A graduate of Northern Michigan University (1942), he earned an M.A. degree from the University of Michigan (1947). Following U.S. Coast Guard service in World War II, he taught in Flint and Battle Creek.

Russell holds B.S. (1942) and M.A. (1963) degrees from Western and has been on its faculty since 1954, first as an instructor in the Campus School here before joining the teacher education faculty in 1969. Prior to coming here, she taught in St. Joseph County schools, 1939-40, and then in the Kalamazoo Public Schools, 1952-54.

Two top level administrators retired in January. Robert H. "Herb" Williams, physical plant director, and Dr. Robert W. Beecher, assistant vice president and controller, retired after nearly a half century of combined service to WMU.

Williams, who graduated from Western Kentucky University in 1940 with a teaching certificate, served nearly six and a half years as an infantry officer in Iceland, England, France, Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia before being discharged in 1946. Williams accepted a job as project clerk with Western during the construction of McCracken Hall, and began work for John Goldsworth, the man he succeeded as head of Western's physical plant in 1965.

Beecher joined the University as controller in 1966 after serving as the University of Michigan's director of internal audit, assistant to the dean of statewide education, and business manager of the Dearborn campus. He is a graduate of the U of M and earned his doctor of jurisprudence degree from the University of Detroit. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.
Bronco Sports

Baseball Broncos boast depth

Coach Fred Decker will have good depth down the middle at every position, except shortstop, as Western Michigan begins 1980 baseball play following a 1979 campaign that saw the Broncos compile a 27-15 record, finish fourth in the Mid-American Conference (8-6) and hold a decisive 13-4 edge in games against Big Ten opposition.

Decker will have to replace MAC pitching leader Randy Ford (9-0, 2.04 ERA), who signed with the Toronto Blue Jays after a junior season in which he captured All-District honors.

He does return six experienced hurlers. They are seniors Ron Raiz (4-3, 2.21), Whitehall; and Tom Kling (3-5, 3.74), Muskegon; plus sophomores Jeff Kaiser (1-0, 2.26), Southgate; Paul Schneider of Mt. Morris and Buster Sunde of Madison Heights, both 3-0 and 3.52; and Dave Woodworth (3-4, 4.97), Grand Rapids.

Junior centerfielder Ken Scarpace, Westland, hit .290 last spring but shared second place on the team with 23 RBI’s.

Auburn, Ind., senior Billy Heimach (.296) is back for his third year of regular duty at second base, while senior Kevin O’Brien (.262) of Arlington Heights, Ill., and Garden City junior Rob Taraskavage (.235) are again expected to split catching assignments.

In right field, Decker will look at either freshman speedster Osbe Hoskins of Grand Rapids or Grosse Ile senior Ray Sohn. Saginaw sophomore Mike Bishop are in the “Olympic hopeful” category, according to Shaw.

McIntosh had a brilliant first year in the WMU program in 1979 after transferring from Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn. He turned in a 1:46.76 for 800 meters, the fourth fastest time by a U.S. collegian last spring; was runner-up for NCAA outdoor 800-meter honors, and won that event at the MAC, CCC indoor and CCC outdoor meets.

Parisi battled elbow problems last year after finishing sixth in the javelin at the 1978 NCAA affair; his best distance is 258-8. Bishop set a varsity decathlon record of 7,293 points in his first year of working this 10-event program; he won the CCC crown and was runner-up for MAC honors.

Other returning MAC pointwinners are Montague sophomore Rich Friday, second in the steeplechase and fourth over 5,000 meters; Chuck Greene, senior, Detroit, third, javelin; Curt Walker, Wyoming sophomore, fourth steeplechase; Dave Beuchamp, Hartland sophomore, fifth, 800 meters; Michael Lockhart, junior, Akron, O., sixth, 100 meters; and Dearborn sophomore Joe Knisely, sixth, high hurdles.

Greene picked up another third in the javelin at the outdoor CCC’s, while Jenison junior Tom Dracht was fourth in the long jump and Detroit junior Larry Claxton was fifth in the 100-meter dash. The indoor Centrals saw Mike Jaworek,

Bronco track team balanced

Western Michigan has enjoyed six straight first division finishes in the Mid-American Conference and should again be one of the top teams in the league.

“This could be our best overall balanced team and should be capable of scoring well in big meets,” commented Coach Jack Shaw, who has a banner group of newcomers to blend with 12 veterans, who scored points in either MAC or Central Collegiate Conference competition last year. Western was second to Miami at last year’s league meet.

Jack McIntosh, junior, Dearborn; along with Ron Parisi, senior, Sewickley, Pa., and Saginaw sophomore Mike Bishop are in the “Olympic hopeful” category, according to Shaw.

Saginaw high jump sensation Jenison junior Tom Dracht was fourth in the 100-meter dash.

The women’s cage squad won the Motor City Invitational and Brown was a first-team all-tournament pick. The men cagers took consolation honors at the All-College tourney in Oklahoma City as Cunningham was the leading scorer and “most valuable” player. Hockey took championship honors at the Rensselaer Polytechnic tourney in Troy, N.Y., as Olson was the “MVP” and scoring leader.
a senior from Zion, Ill., pick up fourth place in the 35-pound weight throw.

New additions include quarter-milers Bryan Dick, sophomore, Washington, D.C.; and Mike Erickson, Wyoming junior and half-miler Dana Houston of Lima, O. This trio all placed in national junior college championships.

From high school ranks, Shaw recruited California's No. 1 discus thrower in Hank Kraychir from San Jacinto High; 7-0 high jumper and state champ David Elliott of Ann Arbor Pioneer; Kurt Liechty of Hobart, Ind., the Hoosier mile and cross country titlist; Ian Ellis of Brooklyn, N.Y., his state's triple jump runner-up; Class B pole vault winner Brian Miller of Bay City John Glenn, and quarter-miler Tim Sheppard of Battle Creek Central, fourth place Class A finisher.

Ebert building softball dynasty

Devastating is the word that probably best characterizes the performance of Western Michigan's women's softball team the past two seasons, and someone may have to find a word even more descriptive after the 1980 schedule as Coach Fran Ebert's team is again the likely favorite for a third straight state title.

The Broncos posted a 29-5 record last year, and just missed a berth in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) softball nationals by placing third at the regional tournament.

Much of the talent that has made WMU a powerhouse in the short four-year span the sport has held varsity status returns. Ebert faces a tough challenge, however, in replacing three seniors off last year's squad, pitcher Ann Kasdorf, infielder Linda Harrall and outfielder Janis Nichols.

Kasdorf was the original ace of the Bronco pitching staff, compiling a three year record of 41-11, with an amazing 0.80 earned run average. Harrall and Nichols rank 2-3 among WMU's all-time leading hitters, with Harrall posting a career batting average of .316, Nichols .292.

The left side of the infield has all-time batting leader Patti Rendine, Southfield junior, returning at third base, and Barb Burke, Kalamazoo senior, at shortstop. Rendine has a lifetime average of .342 in her previous two seasons, while Burke begins her fourth season as a starter.

Kim Worden, Lansing sophomore, was part of WMU's two-fisted pitching attack last year, posting a 14-1 record and a 0.71 earned run average. Ebert will be looking at three freshmen as compliments to Worden in Beth Belleville, Kalamazoo; Denise Cifaldi, Dearborn Heights; and Bonnie Kinne, Grand Ledge.

Kinne pitched her prep squad to the Michigan Class A title last year, while Cifaldi was the top pitcher on the staff that succumbed to Grand Ledge in the semi-finals of last year's tournament. When not on the mound, any one of the group will likely be playing first base.

The other top returnees are catcher Roxanne Rubleski, Portage sophomore; and outfielders Denise D'Angelo, Royal Oak junior; and Barb Yeo, Saginaw senior.

Western will play its home games this season on a recently completed diamond on campus, located adjacent to Hyames Field.

Four tennis vets return
Coach Jack Vredevelt returns four of six regulars from his 1979 Western Michigan University's men's tennis squad that compiled a 18-7 record and recorded the school's fifth straight second place finish in the Mid-American Conference.

The four veterans are: Steve Winsor, East Grand Rapids junior; Scott Spoor, a Niles junior; Paul Walker, an Almont sophomore; and Scott Emig, a Muskegon senior and team captain. They are ticketed to play the top four singles spots.

Junior Dan Kasson of Galesburg, the 1979 Michigan Junior College titlist while attending Kalamazoo Valley Community College, figures to hold down the No. 5 singles spot, while Flint junior Doug Hann will likely play No. 6.

Women's track prospects bright
Five performers who took part in national Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) competition in 1979 will lead a contingent of 11 returning letterwinners for Western Michigan's 1980 women's track team.

First-year Coach Debbie Smith feels her squad has the right combination of quality and quantity on the freshmen-laden team. "It seems each year we continue to grow in numbers, as well as talent, and this year is no exception," states Smith.

Of the five returning Broncos who qualified for the indoor nationals last year, three are sophomores. The trio is headed by Darcy Tomlinson, Bryan, O., a top-flight distance and middle distance runner. Other sophomores are middle distance ace Julie Voyles, Livonia, and team co-captain Sarah Peterson of Ann Arbor.

The other two returnees are Kalamazoo seniors Kay Barstow and Liz Shon. Barstow was an indoor and outdoor national high jump qualifier a year ago, placing fifth at the indoor meet with a school record jump of 5-9.

Tomlinson and co-captain Sue MacDonald, Ludington sophomore, will lead the distance corps.

The hurdle and sprint fields each have one veteran returnee, with rookies being counted on heavily for backup help. Peterson and freshman Janice Collins, Livonia, form a strong duo in the hurdles and long jump for the Broncos. Shon, the holder of seven WMU sprinting marks, should get strong support from freshman Felica Clark, Detroit. Freshman Lori Striggow, Temperance, set a school record in the shot in the team's first meet at Wisconsin, with a throw of 42-5; she'll be a part of a strong field event corps that also features Ellen Rubach, Ionia sophomore, and Lisa Mowers, Riverview freshman.

Golfers expected to be strong
The 1980 Bronco men's golf team, under Coach Merle Schlosser, took to the fairways this year with a schedule highlighted by trips to Padre Island, Tex., and Cape Corral, Fla., in early March.

All the team's meets this year are invitational tourneys, and Western is expected to do well in each, because of what Schlosser calls "team experience and returning strengths."

Five returning lettermen are paced by Portage senior Dave Sutton, who had the team's low average score per round last year at 77.8 strokes. Other lettermen are: Okemos sophomore Ron Beurmann; Kalamazoo senior Mark Olsen; Bloomfield Hills junior Bob Sauer; and Warren junior Dave Tumminello.

New prospects this year are all strong golfers, led by Mark Belen, from Westphalia, who was selected to the All-State, All-Class team in 1979, symbolic of the six best high school golfers in Michigan. The other five freshmen are: Steve Ellsworth, Clio; Vic Whipp, East Lansing; Jeff Bengel, Fowler; Dave Brady, Drayton Plains; and Todd Stacy, Grand Rapids.

Rueckert seeks winning season
With three key returnees back, Western Michigan's women's tennis team will look to improve on last year's 8-8 record.

The .500 mark achieved in 1979, Coach Becky Rueckert's first as Bronco mentor, was a vast improvement over the 1978 slate of 2-6.

Sue Davis, a sophomore from Kalamazoo, underwent knee surgery recently; she will be lost for most of the season. Leonora King, Detroit senior, will fill the vacancy. Also returning are letterwinners Suzanne Ghindia, Trenton sophomore, and junior Carol Tschudy, Winnetka, Ill. Catie Lott, a Holt sophomore; Lori Magoom, East Grand Rapids freshman; and Abbe Temkin, Winnetka, Ill., junior, are expected to help.
Even the Alumni Office has its crises, and one of those impacting upon us today is that of too few alumni who are actually dues-paying members of the Western Michigan University Alumni Association.

Several thousand of those reading this column are members, but each of you can give added meaning to your own membership by bringing into the fold another alum who is not a member. We need supporting members (those who pay dues each year) and life members (those who prefer writing one check, or putting it on an installment plan).

Why join? This is the question often asked, and we hope that our answers cover at least some of the reasons for joining:

1. You have an appreciation for what your days at Western have meant to you in your career, and you wish to assist in the ongoing work of the University;

2. You want to keep informed about events, programs, policies and personnel at Western (non-members and non-donors only receive one publication each year);

3. The friendships you made among faculty and students at Western continue to mean a great deal to you, and you want to keep “up to date” on many of these people;

4. Because of your pride in your alma mater you want the word about Western to be spread far and wide by better informed alumni, so that prospective students can become aware of the advantages of a Western education;

5. You believe—in yourself, in your university, and in the benefits that can accrue to society because Western remains a viable, effective leader in education.

We are soon to launch a new membership drive, borrowing from an international leader in education for the unschooled. The motto for our drive is “Each One Reach One”.

Won’t you reach another alum for us, bringing him or her into the alumni family?

The alumni staff is eager to provide our alumni with quality programs and up-to-date information about Western. To achieve these aims, your continued support of the Alumni Association is crucial.

Cordially,

Russell A. Strong
