February 2008

As you know, Reading Horizons has undergone some substantial staffing changes in the past six months. A new co-editor, a changing Editorial Review Board, and new production designer have all presented some exciting new horizons for us. With all of these changes, there are inevitable complexities which have caused delays in our usual production schedule. Consequently, we are producing volume 48 on a different schedule with the intention of having three issues (48.2, 48.3, and 48.4) to you within the next five months. We ask your patience as we work our way through these substantial changes and please know that starting in the fall of 2008 with volume 49, we will resume our quarterly production schedule.

Thank you for your understanding and please enjoy this and all upcoming issues of Reading Horizons.
