Bids were to be taken this May on a $2 million Student Services Building to be located on WMU's West Campus, north of the Industrial and Engineering Technology Building. The self-liquidating financing project is scheduled to be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1969.

The building will have extensive glass to give it a transparent effect, especially in a center portion, to allow as much of a view of the Industrial & Engineering Technology Building behind it as possible. The 61,000 square foot structure will house eight departments under student services, including student publications, student government, counseling, foreign students, student financial aid and the housing office.

The building will present three stories to the south and two to the north, as it fits into sloping terrain, in the foreground.

Trustees Name Four New Academic Department Heads

Four new department heads, one for a newly created academic department, were named by the WMU Board of Trustees at recent meetings.

Dr. Louise Forsleff was named director of the Counseling Center, the first woman to hold that position at Western. She succeeds Dr. Donald Davis, who asked to be relieved of the administrative duties of director to devote full time to counseling, effective May 1.

Dr. Forsleff, an associate professor, joined the Counseling Center in 1962. A graduate of Lake Erie College (Painesville, Ohio), she earned a master's from WMU and a Ph.D. from Michigan State University last year.

Dr. Paul T. Mountjoy, who has been acting chairman of the Department of Psychology the past year, was named chairman, effective July 1. He has been a WMU faculty member since 1964 and holds the rank of associate professor.

Dr. Mountjoy received his B.S. degree Magna Cum Laude from Lawrence College and an M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University.

Dr. Robert Palmatier was approved as chairman of WMU's new Department of Linguistics, to become operative August 19. Dr. Palmatier, a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Western in 1950, earned his master's here in 1955 and a Ph.D. at the University of Michigan.

WMU Community Greatly Saddened By Death of Dr. Martin Luther King

Western Michigan University students, faculty and staff expressed their sorrow over the tragic April 4th slaying of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. by attending various church services and other gatherings. The University’s official memorial tribute to Dr. King, held in the new University Auditorium, attracted nearly 1,000 persons on the morning the esteemed civil rights leader was buried, a day when WMU classes were cancelled and University offices closed out of respect to Dr. King.

Classes had also been called off the day after his death.

Western’s President, Dr. James W. Miller, was a key speaker during the memorial service, saying that “the philosophy and actions of Dr. King truly exemplify the conscience of America. It is important to us gathered here in this memorial tribute to make certain that conscience is never destroyed nor . . . allowed to go unheeded.”

Dr. Miller added that the most meaningful tribute to Dr. King’s memory and life is that we, the living, act out the full meaning of Dr. King’s credo of brotherhood and peace.

Others who spoke during the tribute included Dr. Jerome Long, a WMU Department of Religion faculty member, who said that educators must lead students out of the old, white America with which Dr. King struggled. Others who spoke were the Rev. T. Van Hoeven, campus minister of the Reformed Church in America; Dr. Milton Greenberg, president of the WMU Faculty Senate; and Frank Forest.

Library Acquires Large African Book Collection

Western Michigan University’s already large African collection at Waldo Library was recently augmented by some 5,000 books about the “dark continent.” The additions came from the acquisition of the complete Africana stock of a well-known New York City book store.

Ronald W. Davis, a WMU History Department faculty member and a specialist in African studies, aided the library in the selection and purchase of the African collection. The books include rare explorers’ narratives, important periodicals and works in foreign languages, especially those used in Africa.

According to Peter Spyers-Duran, Director of Libraries at WMU, the additions will attract extensive graduate and faculty researchers, as well as increase Waldo Library’s ranking as a major African studies center, comparable to those at Northwestern and Boston Universities.

Dr. Marvin De Boer to Return to Western After Administrative Internship

Dr. Marvin E. DeBoer, assistant director of the WMU Division of Field Services and associate professor of speech will soon end a one year leave of absence as an ex officio member of the University of Connecticut administration. He is serving as an administrative intern under a program of the American Council on Education, a project funded by the Ford Foundation. Dr. DeBoer was selected in nationwide competition, one of only 46 so honored.

The internship, which continues until this June, is designed “to strengthen leadership in higher education by enlarging the number and improving the quality of prospects for key positions in academic administration.”

As an administrative intern at Connecticut, Dr. DeBoer is working on special assignments with deans, vice presidents, directors, the university president and governing board. Upon completion of his internship, he will participate in a seminar at Washington, D.C. with the other 45 interns and then return to Western.

Dr. DeBoer joined Western’s faculty in 1957 and became assistant director of field services in 1962.
Alumni are urged to enjoy a campus visit if they are in the Kalamazoo area by checking with the office of Coordinator of Campus Visits. Since last July 1, some 1,240 persons have been conducted on campus tours by this office, including 200 who were part of special groups. There has been a significant increase in campus tours by visitors this last year, including many persons who guided themselves.

For a complete tour, contact the Coordinator of Campus Visits in care of the Admissions Office at WMU. Visits during the week rather than on weekends are encouraged. Generally, overnight accommodations must be arranged through Kalamazoo motels and inns.

The Alumni Office will sponsor more trips this summer to the annual Shakespearean Festival Theatre at Stratford, Ontario, Canada, in conjunction with the WMU Division of Field Services.

Trip I will depart June 28 and return to Kalamazoo June 30. Trip II will depart July 19 and return July 21. The trip, which includes admission to three plays, bus fare round trip, and accommodations at private residences (which have been a high spot of past trips) in Stratford, will cost alumni $52.50 each.

Because there is space for only 33 persons on each trip, the offer is extended to Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and area alumni, and early reservations to insure a place on the bus are advised. Send reservations deposits of $10.00 to Jean Wright, Division of Field Services, WMU, Kalamazoo 49001.

The WMU Alumni Association has adopted a policy wherein all retiring WMU faculty and emeriti will receive honorary membership in the Alumni Association. As a consequence all will receive publications sent to Alumni Association members as well as be eligible to attend alumni meetings and vote for the "Alumni Award for Teaching Excellence."
