In his first formal evaluation as WMU president, John M. Dunn was unanimously lauded for leadership, accessibility and a successful “nuts-and-bolts” approach to addressing multi-year enrollment and budget challenges, even in the face of statewide economic decline. WMU Board of Trustees Chair Ken Miller delivered the board’s assessment at its Dec. 12 meeting.

Following his remarks, Miller recommended and the board approved a 3 percent increase to Dunn’s base salary. Dunn responded by noting his intent to donate the entire amount of the increase—just over $10,000—to a student scholarship fund.

Faculty award nominations due Jan. 23

Nominations are due Friday, Jan. 23 for the 2009 Distinguished Faculty Scholar Award. Recipients receive a $2,000 honorarium and the opportunity to present their work to the University community. Go to www.wmich.edu/wmu/news/2008/10/035 for nomination details.

Lansing Campus numbers corrected

Phone numbers for the Lansing Campus were listed incorrectly in the printed WMU directory distributed last month. The correct phone number is (517) 483-9728 and the fax number is (517) 483-9746.

WMU’s office and department directory pages are posted online as a PDF file and may be updated by request. Go to www.wmich.edu and click “Office Directory” in the left column. Check your office listing and send changes to Teresa Ventimiglia at teresa.ventimiglia@wmich.edu.

Student security officer appointed

As mandated by federal law, WMU has appointed a student information security officer under the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. Tapped for the post was Keith Hearit, interim vice provost for enrollment management and Lee Honors College dean. Hearit will serve as the information security officer until a permanent vice provost for enrollment management is appointed.

New POA contract implemented

In a Dec. 12 vote, trustees authorized the administration to implement a new three-year agreement between WMU and its 18-member Police Officers Association.

The agreement, which is effective July 1, 2008, through June 30, 2011, was ratified by the union Dec. 3. The contract includes language changes, a 3 percent across-the-board increase to base pay in each year of the agreement, and items detailing life insurance and annual eligibility for a fitness bonus.

A new joint program between Kellogg Community College and WMU will provide students with the best of both worlds by offering them joint admissions, efficient and flexible class scheduling, and the freedom to move seamlessly from KCC to WMU on their way to earning an associate degree at KCC and then a bachelor’s degree at WMU.

The pact was formalized Dec. 18 during a signing ceremony at WMU’s Kendall Center in Battle Creek. During the event, KCC President Edward Haring and WMU President John M. Dunn inked a two-institution Joint Program Plan.

The first associate-to-bachelor’s degree programs will be in technology and engineering starting in fall 2009. Additional joint programs will be added as student demand grows.

“Kellogg Community College has long been our partner in providing top-notch higher education opportunities to students in this area,” Dunn said. “This agreement improves the way both institutions serve students by ensuring continuity and guaranteeing that every class successfully completed puts a student one step closer to his or her degree goal. Students who enroll in the program will be both Brains and Broncos from their very first days in college.”

Haring added that “The seamless transition will assure that both the investment of time and money in seeking these degrees is used to their greatest potential. This is a very exciting development.”

Alumna donates $1 million to communication school

Appreciation for lifelong listening and speaking skills garnered in college classes 40 years ago has led a WMU alumna to make a $1 million commitment to the University’s School of Communication.

The anonymous donor, a 1970 graduate, recently finalized an estate gift that designates $1 million to WMU. Half of the gift will be used to establish an endowed visiting lectureship and the other half will go to fund an endowed professorship, both in WMU’s celebrated School of Communication.

The donor, whose career has been in academia, sees both the lectureship and the endowed professorship as tools that will enhance the school’s academic offerings. The two parts of the gift will be connected, with the named professor having responsibility for administering the lectureship fund.

This is the second $1 million gift to the School of Communication in the past year. The school, which is one of the largest academic units at WMU, will receive 20 percent of an anonymous $5 million bequest announced late in 2007. That gift, which also will be administered after the donor’s death, is intended to boost ongoing faculty recruitment and retention efforts.
Spring welcome debuts today

The campus community is invited to welcome new students to campus at the inaugural Spring Welcome Fest from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the Bernhard Center. The event is a mini Bronco Bash for students beginning their studies at WMU in the spring semester. It will feature an hour-long program as well as staffed informational displays. Light refreshments will be served.

The program will be held twice to accommodate student, faculty and staff schedules. WMU President John M. Dunn will welcome the group for the program that starts at 10 a.m. while Provost Timothy J. Greene will welcome the group for the program that starts at noon.

Numerous MLK events slated

This year’s Martin Luther King Jr. Celebration will kick off Sunday, Jan. 11, with a higher education open house to teach students and parents about the benefits of attending college. A wide variety of other events are taking place across campus through February.

For details about these events or how to pre-register for the higher education open house, go to www.wmich.edu/mlk or call 387-6313.

New Frostic lecture series begins

Kenneth Deffeyes, a famed Princeton geologist who believes world oil production peaked three years ago, will speak at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 13, in the Fetter Center’s Kirsch Auditorium.

Deffeyes will be the first to speak as part of the new Gwen Frostic Environmental Studies Seminar Series. The talk is open to the public without charge and will be immediately followed by a reception.

Teaching subject of faculty seminar

All faculty members are invited to attend a seminar presented by the Haworth College of Business’ College Faculty Enhancement Committee from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Friday, Jan. 16, at 1350 Schneider. The seminar is titled “Do We Teach the Right Stuff in a Time of Crisis and Change?”

It will feature Andrew Targowski, business information systems, as facilitator, and panelists Jerry Kreuze, accounting; Christopher Korth, finance and commercial law; Robert Landeros, management; and Steven Newell, marketing.

Detroit Tigers to visit WMU

Some of the biggest names in Detroit Tigers baseball will be at Miller Auditorium from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 22. Doors will open at 4:45 p.m. for this free public rally, which is part of the 2009 Detroit Tigers Winter Caravan.

The event will feature a variety of Tigers players and coaches who will take the stage to discuss their team’s 2008 season as well as its prospects for the coming year. No tickets or reservations are required to attend the event, but anyone who registers by 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 16, will be entered in a drawing for items autographed by Tigers personnel.

To make a reservation, visit www.wmich.edu/alumni and click “Events,” send an e-mail message to alumni@wmich.edu or call 387-8777.

Activate recreation center membership at little cost

Now is a good time for benefits-eligible faculty and non-bargaining staff to activate their Student Recreation Center membership.

Those who do will get nearly a year’s membership, valued at $225, and pay nothing more than the taxes on that amount.

Spring semester began Jan. 5, and the new annual membership will run through December 24, 2009.

Members may use the recreation center from Sunday through Saturday, anytime the building is open. They are encouraged to bring in their families during specific hours and together maintain a healthy lifestyle.

Activating membership is easy. Just go to www.src.wmich.edu and click “Membership.” Print and complete the form and fax it to 387-3766. Your membership will be processed immediately.

For more information or to arrange to have an in-office presentation about the center and the benefits of becoming a member, call Cindy VanderWoude at 387-34115.

Reception set for Johnson

A farewell reception for Darrell Johnson, dean of Extended University Programs, will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. today in 205 Bernhard Center.

WMU, Burgos celebrate longstanding partnership

WMU President John M. Dunn took a whirlwind late fall trip to Spain to help celebrate the anniversary of one of the University’s strongest study abroad programs. The celebration at the University of Burgos marked the 10th anniversary of WMU’s study abroad partnership with that school.

More than 200 WMU students, including 21 who were studying in Burgos for the fall semester, have taken part in the program since its inception, making the site the most popular destination for WMU students selecting a study abroad location. In turn, the University of Burgos has been sending primarily graduate students to WMU since 1999.

The anniversary celebration included meetings with University of Burgos leaders and the mayor of the city, breakfast with WMU students in the program, and an evening dinner and concert to mark 10 years of partnership between the two universities. In addition to Dunn, the WMU delegation included Dunn’s wife, Linda; Mercedes Tasende, chair of Spanish; and Brett Bequest, executive director of international programs.

In remarks delivered during the evening celebration, Dunn praised his Spanish colleagues for the care and hospitality WMU students have experienced in Burgos over the years. He also has been a bass vocalist for more than 30 years for the Kalamazoo First Assembly of God church.

venture that will likely serve as a model for other types of cooperation in higher education throughout the state.” Students who participate in a joint program will need to meet admissions criteria for each school and will be assigned KCC and WMU advisors who will help them develop a Personal Program Plan that identifies the courses needed and their sequence. Students will be enrolled at both KCC and WMU and will enjoy benefits from both institutions, such as library and computer system use and access to athletic, professional and cultural programming.
