WMU Haworth honors alumni and friends

Alumni and friends of the college will be honored for their outstanding professional and service accomplishments during Homecoming week. These individuals serve as a representation of the values of the Haworth College of Business and as an inspiration and example to our students.

Western researcher publishes work on building rituals and purpose in an evolving workplace

The connection people feel when they have a shared experience is undeniable, but rituals like live music, athletics and schooling have been dramatically impacted by COVID-19. Dr. Doug Lepisto, associate professor of management and co-director of the Center for Principled Leadership and Business Strategy, researches how shared rituals affect the workplace, and how they inspire and give meaningfulness to employees and organizations.
