Board approves moving forward on much-needed chemistry instructional building

The WMU Board of Trustees, acting during its Sept. 17 meeting, gave the University administration a green light to continue moving toward construction of a new $28.5 million chemistry building.

In June, the board authorized a fast-track approach to planning the instructional laboratory facility, because of the extreme need for such a building to replace the aging McCracken Hall as a site for student instruction. Trustees set the Sept. 17 meeting as a time to review detailed plans for the proposed building.

The plans presented to the board by representatives from architectural firm Holabird & Root and the construction management firm Miller-Davis Co., included a detailed floor plan for the 83,300-square-foot building as well as a timeline that calls for construction to begin in spring 2005 and an occupancy date of August 2006.

As outlined in the preliminary plans laid out in June, the building will be attached to Wood Hall and bordered on two sides by Waldo Library and the Dalton Center. The facility, which will be used only for student instruction, includes three large auditoriums that can be used both for chemistry and general education purposes, as well as smaller classrooms, instructional labs and spaces dedicated for use by student groups. No faculty offices will be part of the new facility, which will be easily accessed through the connector to Wood Hall, where chemistry faculty have their offices. To preserve campus green space around the building site, a tunnel will connect the new building to the Dalton Center, providing access for shipping and utility maintenance.

A detailed funding plan for the new building will be presented to the board closer to the start of construction.

Trustees approve $273 million budget for 2004-05 year

Acting at its Sept. 17 meeting, WMU trustees approved an operating budget of $273.9 million for fiscal year 2004-05. The board-approved budget of $273,932,314 is a revision of a preliminary budget trustees approved in April.

The new budget includes two major ingredients—a base state appropriation of $110,947,100 and tuition revenue amounting to $149,860,471. The budget also includes a one-time additional state appropriation of $3,393,300, which represents a return by the state of base funding cut during the 2003-04 fiscal year. The return of funds is scheduled to come as part of Michigan Gov. Jennifer Granholm’s tuition restraint agreement that called for the state to return 60 percent of last year’s funding cut to those universities that limited tuition increases for 2004-05 to 2.4 percent.

Two more SIS information events set for coming weeks

Two more information sessions on the status of the University’s new Student Information System—SIS—will be held on campus in the coming weeks.

Sessions will be held from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. in 3150 Schneider on Thursday, Oct. 7; and Wednesday, Oct. 20. Provost Linda Delene will conduct the Oct. 7 session, and James Gilchrist, associate dean of arts and sciences, will conduct the Oct. 20 session.

At each session, faculty and staff members as well as students will get updates on current and future GoWMU portal use as well as information about the implementation of new modules in the SIS. At each session, questions from the audience will be addressed.

Visiting scholars to show fusion of theatre, hip-hop

An accomplished playwright, actor and educator and a hip-hop theatre festival director, will visit campus Friday and Saturday, Oct. 1-2, for a public presentation and to work with students.

Will Power and Daniel Banks are being brought here through the Visiting Scholars and Artists Program.

Power has created his own style of theatrical communication, fusing original music, rhymed language and dynamic choreography to produce innovative works. He has appeared on “Last Call with Carson Daly” and on HBO with Russell Simmons’ “Def Poetry Jam.”

Banks is education director of the New York City Hip-Hop Theatre Festival and will visit campus for a two-day workshop.
Rebekah Farrugia, communication, comes to WMU from the University of Iowa, where she had been a doctoral student and a graduate instructor in communication since 2001. Her research interests include new media technologies, digital media production, popular music studies, women’s studies and ethnography. Farrugia earned her bachelor’s degree from the University of Windsor, a master’s degree from Wayne State University and a doctoral degree from the University of Iowa.

Her research interests include applied and computational harmonic analysis, computational mathematics and their applications to imaging science and information processing. He earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees in his native China at Peking University and a doctoral degree at Sun Yat- Sen University, where he also taught.

Bonnier replaces established, determined to best CMU in drive

The annual Blood Challenge with Central Michigan University is under way and the Broncos are looking to break out of their slump. WMU has lost the campuswide challenge for the past three years—by a mere three points in 2003.

We’ve been needled enough. Help turn things around during this year’s seven-week competition by giving blood at one of the blood drive stops.

Smith wins Fulbright in social work for full trip to England

Andrea Smith, teaching, learning and leadership, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to lecture and work with community groups at three universities in England. Smith has received a Fulbright Senior Specialist award in social work at Northumbria University and, under a partnership agreement, also will work at the University of Warwick and Oxford University. Smith’s visit will build on her recent work in kinship care, especially as it pertains to children living with their grandparents. In addition to lecturing on kinship care at the three universities, she will conduct workshops with community professionals to help them develop programming for high-risk parent populations.

Smith will be in England Nov. 6-20. Her trip builds on previous lecture tours to Liverpool, England, and Dublin, Ireland, five years ago, and Latvia two years ago.

Geographer completes trip as guest of Chinese academy

Chuangsheng He, geography, completed a six-week trip to China recently, returning to campus just in time for the start of the fall semester.

He was invited by and his July 22-Aug. 22 trip was funded by the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Qinghai provincial government to visit several scientific and hydrologic installations across the country. His trip included visits to the CAS’ Institute of Geographical Sciences and Natural Resources, and the Qinghai province’s Institute for Water Resources and Hydropower, where he delivered lectures on large watershed modeling and water resources management.

He also visited Jiangxi Normal University and Lanzhou University and took field trips to the headwater of China’s Yellow River, the Kunglan Mountain Pass, Yangtze Desert and Qinghai Lake. He is involved in collaborative projects involving hydrologic systems with colleagues in southern China.

Gullickson is D.C. keynoter

Evaluation Center Director Arlen Gullickson was the main speaker at a Sept. 24 forum in Washington, D.C., that was designed to highlight new national standards for student evaluations published late last year by the Joint Committee for Standards for Educational Evaluation.

Federal agency and national foundation representatives attended the event, which was sponsored by the Educational Policy Leadership Institute of ETS. Following Gullickson’s presentation, a panel added its commentaries and recommendations. Panel members included Grover Whitehurst of the Department of Education, Barbara Olds of the National Science Foundation and William Kelly of the American National Standards Institute.

Gullickson is the chairperson of the committee, which completed the standards with support from the Kellogg Foundation.
the largest and one of the most prestigious medieval studies events in the world.

Grundler was educated in Nordhorn, Germany, and first came to Michigan to attend Western Theological Seminary in Holland, where he earned a bachelor’s degree in 1950. He went on to study theology at the University of Gottingen in Germany and earn a doctoral degree in theology from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1961. He served as a pastor at First Presbyterian Church in Stillwater, N.J., for six years while he began his academic career as an instructor of German language and literature at Westminster Choir College and a Princeton teaching fellow in history and Christian thought.

Human Resources

The fall 2004 movie series for staff will run from 12:10 to 1:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Oct. 6, Oct. 13 and Oct. 20, in 106-07 Bernhard Center. Grab your lunch and start off your afternoon with a free, fun and informative movie matinee. Popcorn will be provided.

The coming attractions for this year are: “Accountability That Works,” Oct. 6; “Delegating for Dickheads,” Oct. 13; and “Curing the Attitude Virus,” Oct. 20. Each video is about 20 minutes long and will be followed by 30 minutes of activities and an optional 30-minute discussion.

You can reserve your ticket now by sending an e-mail to <training@wmich.edu>. For more information, call Felicia Crawford at 7-3653.

Flu, meningitis vaccination clinics scheduled for October

Four clinics have been scheduled in October to provide flu and meningitis vaccinations to faculty, staff, emeriti/retirees and students, as well as their eligible family members. Flu and meningitis shots also will be available during regular walk-in hours at the Sindecuse Health Center each weekday beginning Oct. 1.

The first clinic is especially geared to accommodate emeriti/retirees and will be held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, in 3230 and 3240 Sindecuse. The remaining clinics will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14, on the second floor of the Student Recreation Center; 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 19, in 157-58 Bernhard Center; and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 27, in the faculty/staff lounge (Room D120) of the engineering building on the Parkview Campus.

No appointments are needed to visit the clinics. Flu shots cost $15 and meningitis shots cost $82. These fees may be charged to an individual’s University account or paid at the time of service in cash or by personal check. Credit cards will not be accepted. More information is available by calling Sindecuse at 7-3287 or visiting <www.sindecuse.com>.

Jobs

While a campuswide job freeze remains in effect, the following vacancies have been approved for posting at positions that are essential for the continued operation of the University. All post-representation authorizations must have the approval of a WMU vice president to be posted during the hiring freeze. Vacancies are posted through the Job Opportunity Program by human resources. Interested benefits-eligible employees should submit a job-opportunity transfer application during the posting period.

Employers may call the Applicant Information Service at 7-3669 to hear the weekly job postings.

with Charles Heynig

Security is a big deal to Charles Heynig. That was true at age 19 when he began a six-year stint as a nuclear power plant electrician on Navy submarines and it’s true today in his role as a junior programmer/analyst for the Office of Information Technology.

Heynig’s key duties are to keep campus computers safe from snoopers and hackers, ensure that computer systems for administrative units function smoothly, and work with computer users and IT staff to solve problems and improve efficiency.

"Mainly, I make sure people can get their work done when they need it done," he says. "It's really satisfying to know you have a positive impact on so many students, faculty and staff."

Heynig also is involved with several University initiatives, including the new electronic bill payment services, Student Information System and GoWMU intranet portal.

"The most interesting part of my job is learning new information and skills," he says of such initiatives. "I always like to learn new ways of getting things done better."

Heynig grew up in Lansing, Mich., with 11 brothers and sisters and has lived in Guam and South Carolina. After his discharge from the Navy, he "de-stressed" by managing a pet store, then moved back to Michigan to reenergize his career.

Much of his spare time is filled by staying current in his field and working on a bachelor of business administration degree in business information systems. For enjoyment, Heynig fishes, sails and attends local theatre productions.

Campus Classic offers special team rates for faculty, staff

Race organizers are offering faculty and staff members special incentives to form teams and compete in the Campus Classic 5K race on Homecoming Saturday.

The annual race, which in past years has drawn as many as 2,000 runners and volunteers, is set for 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 16, following an 8:15 1K walk and kids fun run. The 5 K certified course takes competitors on a cross-campus tour and attracts adult and student teams and individual runners.

Now in its sixth year, the Campus Classic offers challenge trophies in a variety of team categories. Faculty and staff members are encouraged to form departmental teams with colleagues or with students to challenge teams from other departments. Race organizers are looking for a minimum of five faculty/staff teams competing this year in order to add another challenge trophy to the mix.

Any faculty or staff member can form a team that can enter the race at student rates—$30 per team for a three- to five-person team completing registration by Wednesday, Oct. 14. The rate after that date is $35. To qualify for the discount, a three-person team needs only one faculty or staff member. A five-person team can enter with just two employees. Each registered team member will receive a T-shirt, and complimentary refreshments. All competitors also have a chance to win a $500 AAA travel voucher and other raffle prizes. In addition, each WMU student participant has a chance to win one of 10 WMU parking passes.

For more information about the race or to register to compete, visit the race Web site at <www.wmich.edu/race>, or call 7-8402. Volunteers also are needed for the race and those wishing to volunteer can register at 7-6439.

Ethics talk to focus on dilemma of coercive drug abuse treatment

An authority on drug addiction will talk about the benefits and drawbacks of coercive drug treatment during a presentation at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, in Fetzer Center's Parney Auditorium.

Michael Liepman is a family therapist, addiction psychiatrist, director of research at the Jim Gilmore Jr. Treatment Center.

His talk, titled "To Treat Coercibly or Not to Treat: Dilemmas in Dealing with Substance Abuse," is sponsored by the WMU Center for the Study of Ethics in Society. The program is supported by the Michael K. and Shirley Buch Endowment for the Ethics Center.

For more information, call the center at 7-4397, send an e-mail to <ethicscenter@wmich.edu> or visit the center's Web site at <www.wmich.edu/ethics>.

Series offers reading tonight by poet, ‘Hip Logic’ author

Award-winning poet Terrance Hayes, author of "Hip Logic," will read from his work at 8 p.m. today—Sept. 30—in the Little Theatre on the WMU campus.

Hayes' presentation is the second in the Fall 2004 Gwen Frostic Reading Series, which is free and open to the public. Hayes, who teaches at Carnegie Mellon University, explores imagination, desire and race in his poems and looks at the intersections and tensions of autobiography and culture.

Hayes' most recent work "Hip Logic" was a National Poetry Series/Open Competition selection and a finalist for the Los Angeles Times Book Award. For more information about Hayes' visit, call Dr. Arnie Johnston, chairperson of English, at 7-2571.
