HAENICKE A FINALIST FOR WOMAN OF THE YEAR

President Haenicke told key members of his staff March 12 that he is one of four finalists for chancellor at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"Carol and I have not yet made up our minds," he said in an e-mail message. "We know how much we are dedicated to our University and to this community. But it invigorates me to realize that my work here and my past experiences still move me among the finalists in a broad national search at a top flight institution."

Haenicke said that he also has been invited to be a candidate for chancellor at the University of Oregon and Wisconsin's alumni. That search is just getting under way.

James S. Brady of Grand Rapids, chairperson of the Board of Trustees, issued this statement March 15:

"It is not surprising to (members of the Board of Trustees) that Dr. Haenicke has been seriously considered for the position of chancellor as well as other presidencies of some of this country's most prestigious universities."

A recently retired faculty member and two graduate students have been selected to receive the "Woman of the Year" award presented by WMU's Commission on the Status of Women.

Clare R. Goldfarb, emeritus in English, Joanne Dodgson, a third-year doctoral student in counseling psychology, and Monica M. White, a second-year master's student in counseling psychology, held March 18, 1993.

"The Board of Trustees hopes his decision is to stay and lead the University into the 1990s so that the goal of becoming one of this country's truly outstanding academic universities can be achieved under his leadership. President Haenicke and his wife, Carol, have become leading citizens of the Kalamazoo and Western Michigan community. We do not want them to leave. We hope they do not leave. We hope that the many friendships they have made at WMU and General Motors."

"Roan Duncklen was chosen by the awards committee to receive the "Woman of the Year" award. Her dedication, her willingness to give her time and energy to the development of their work, nurturing one in the area of counseling psychology, and female student peer educators have been profound."

"President Haenicke has taken the University to heights that it has not known before his tenure. Under his leadership, winning the Carnegie Foundation, and we are now considered one of Michigan's research-intensive universities—all of these to the credit of President Haenicke."

"President Hanieck's leadership and personal attributes as an administrator and counselor have been strong. The University's research capabilities have been recognized by the community and newsletter. And we are now considered one of Michigan's research-intensive universities—all of these to the credit of President Hanieck."
Barrett has "open door" policy to promote communication

The Office of Academic Affairs might be better named faculty affairs given the comments made by Provost Nancy S. Barrett to faculty members.

When addressing faculty members, Barrett explained that the published results of the faculty evaluation entitled "Grade the Professors" will be available to anyone concerned about the quality of teaching and the wisdom of going in a particular direction. She said that the results will be made available to the entire executive board of WMU, and that the board, the Academic Planning Forums, and the Academic Affairs Committee will discuss doctoral programs, administrative committees, and the AAUP. The faculty will be consulted on these matters.

Barrett’s primary goal as provost is to improve the academic environment at WMU, which she said is one of the best-kept secrets at the university.

Admissions staff targets high school juniors with revamped on-campus recruitment program

Because high school students are deciding where they want to attend college earlier than in past years, WMU is changing the schedule and format for its largest on-campus recruitment event to meet their needs. WMU has enrolled all high school juniors in the state to “Gold Pride Preview” on Saturday, March 20. This event replaces “Brown and Gold Day,” which was open to high school seniors and took place each fall.

“It’s a fact that students are beginning to think about college choices much earlier in high school,” said Stanley E. Henderson, admissions and orientation. “Previously, students didn’t seriously about college until they were seniors, so Brown and Gold Day made sense.

“No, they’re thinking about these decisions during their junior year,” he continued. “Research indicates that they may not have decided exactly where they’re going to college by the end of their junior year, but they have decided where they’re applying by that time.”

WMU expects between 2,000 and 3,000 students and parents for Gold Pride Preview. Registration will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Bernhard Center.

In addition to having information about academic programs and facilities available in one location, as was done at Brown and Gold Day, WMU students will be taking the participants on a tour of the various buildings on campus to experience the atmosphere.

“Gold Pride Preview will have much more of an open house format,” says Terri S. Coles, coordinator of Gold Pride Preview. “It’s a fact that students are beginning to think about these decisions during their junior year, but they have decided where they’re applying by that time.”

WMU’s Translation Center has been, during the past decade, a quiet yet significant national voice in support of improved training in “practical translation and interpretation,” said Peter W. Krawutschke, languages and linguistics, who is coordinating the visit.

ASSISTING GRADUATE STUDENTS — Kathie M. Coolman says she likes the “helping” aspect of her job as administrative assistant in the Graduate College. She’s responsible not only for handling the Graduate College budget, but also for monitoring the financial assistance the college provides to graduate students. She coordinates the processing of some 900 appointments or reappointments of graduate assistants from throughout the University each year.

“I like helping graduate students and being able to give them information that is helpful to them,” she says, “Sometimes they just need a little inside help.”

Coolman understands some of the challenges facing students — she is hoping to complete her bachelor of arts degree this fall.

A WMU employee for six years, she worked at WNE FM for two and a half years before joining the Graduate College staff. “I like working for a university because of the atmosphere,” she says, “I have worked at a lot of places, and I think higher education is the best — it’s a good thing to be focused on.”

Service

These employees are recognized for five, 10, 15, 20, 25 and 30 years of service to the University in March:

20 years — Gordon D. Grimm, public safety

25 years — Eddie Corner, physical plant maintenance and Paul Monz, physical plant-L/M maintenance.

30 years — Nancy F. Crowell, Sara Swickard Preschool; Tony E. Griffin, WMU-MF; and Reuben W. physical plant-building custodial and support services.

15 years — Carol L. Farrance, WMU apartments; and Michael P. Dondrell, Waldo Library.

10 years — Patricia M. Guenther, WaveIPS; and James J. Van Der Kley, assistant vice president for finance.

Five years — Francine L. Adams, telecommunications; John M. Barney, physical plant-B/E maintenance; Mohamed Bouallaim, University computing services; Veitosis Bowers, human resources; Linda D. Burns, public safety; Mary J. DeRoos, University computing services; and Victor J. Harrick, physical plant-B/E maintenance; Hannah J. Kraussel, physical plant-B/E maintenance; Amy M. Logan, Realtree; Eleanor C. Petrieger, telecommunications; Yvonne R. Romery, collective bargaining and contract administration; Richard B. Ryals, physical plant-B/E maintenance; Barney Stockwell, physical plant-B/E maintenance; and Albert C. Whitlock, physical plant-B/E maintenance.

Jobs

The following vacancies are currently being posted through the Job Opportunity Program by employment services in the Department of Human Resources. Interested eligible employees should submit a job opportunity transfer application or sign the appropriate bid sheet during the posting period.

- S-01 and S-02 clerical positions are not required to be posted. Interested University employees may contact an employment services staff member for assistance in securing these positions.

- (R) Registrar, Executive Officer, Registrar’s Office, 92/93-310, 3/16-3/22/93.

Obituary

Donald N. Scott, a WMU retiree, died March 13 in Kalamazoo. He was 88.

Scott retired from the University in 1969 as director of the University Student Center (now the Bernhard Center) and residence halls. Formerly a manager with the National Navy V-5 and U-12 units. In 1957, he was selected as director of Walwood Union on East Campus. When the University Student Center was completed on West Campus in 1975, he was in charge of that building as well as of the residence halls. Shortly before he retired, he was honored for his service to the University by the Professional Staff of the Kalamazoo College of Western Michigan.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Presbyterian Church or the Friends Fund at Friendship Village.

White is being recognized for her many contributions both to University and the community over a very short time. Al- though she has lived in Kalamazoo and at- tended WMU only since 1991, she has com- piled quite a list of accomplishments.

She is a highly visible role model for students and the president of the Graduate Stu- dent Advisory Committee, an organi- zation that advocates on behalf of graduate students at WMU. She has also begun working in that group as co-chairperson in January 1992 and assumed her role this past August.

“She has proved herself to be an effective, confident leader in a campus-wide role,” said one person in nominating her for the award.

“Mónica is a ‘grass-roots’-type leader who is very much in touch with her many con- tacts and constituencies. Students find Monica to be very accessible, personable and responsive, and they respect and trust her.”

White has served as the Midwestern regional representative to the National Association of Graduate Professional Students, of which the GSAC is a member. She has attended several national conferences and, at one such meeting, made a presentation on “The Impor- tance of Diversity in Higher Academia.”

She also is a member of the Graduate Dean Search Committee and the Faculty Senate’s Graduate Studies Council. As an African-American, she has been particularly involved in providing mentoring and support to women of the same heritage. While has assisted the adviser of WMU’s Young Black Females Support Network and has worked in an advisory capacity to Alpha Kappa Alpha, a sorority of primarily Afri- can-American women. She has made a pre- sentation to AKA on “The Plight of the Black Woman: Past, Present, Future” and has spoken to the AKA Teens on “The Need for Pursuing Academic Excellence in Education.”

While also has made presentations to wider audiences. She has spoken on issues surrounding diversity to groups for WMU’s Division of Minority Affairs, Office of Stu- dent Life and Office of Admissions and Orientation as well as for Pretty Lake Adven- ture Center and area churches.

While has organized small reading groups composed of young black males and females to explore African history and its signifi- cance for understanding the current gender role problems confronting young African-American Americans. She plans to pursue a doc- toral degree upon completing her master’s August.

Mary A. Scovel has received the 1992 Service Award from the Na- tional Association of Music Therapists (NAMT). Scovel was pre- sented with the award at the annual NAMT Convention in St. Louis in November. She received a plaque and a citation proclaiming her "long and extensive association with the organiza- tion at the state, regional and national level."

Scovel currently serves as president of the Great Lakes Region of the NAMT. At the national level, she is a member of the nominating committee, executive board and the governmental affairs advisory committee. Since 1978, she has been a member of the national assembly of delegates and, since 1989, she and Brian L. Wilson, director of WMU’s music therapy program, have served as co-editors of the NAMT’s international journal, Music Therapy Perspectives. In addition, Scovel has served in president, vice president and secretary of the state organi- zation and has chaired several key state committees, including the regional association’s publication, Voices of the Lakes. She also developed a guide to third-party reimbursement for music therapists as a member of a national task force on that subject.

In addition to her service in the NAMT, Scovel was lauded for her work in informing the general public about music therapy at a professional through public presentations and through a book published in 1990.
