Building dedicated

Haenicke to recommend Light as distinguished visiting professor

President Haenicke announced Oct. 15 that he will recommend to the Board of Trustees at its Oct. 18 meeting that Timothy Light, former president of Middlebury College, be appointed a distinguished visiting professor for the 1991-92 academic year, effective Nov. 1.

Light

It will mark the second time that Haenicke and Light have worked together. While serving as dean of the College of Humanities at Ohio State University, Haenicke hired Light in 1980 as professor and chairperson of the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures.

Haenicke indicated that Light will advise him on a wide range of curricular and administrative matters. "He is an outstanding scholar in his field and an experienced academic administrator," Haenicke said.

"I am delighted and honored to be given this opportunity to join the Western Michigan University faculty and staff," Light said. "I look forward to this new assignment with tremendous anticipation and a great deal of gratitude. I have many friends and colleagues at Western, and I look forward to working with them, getting to know them better and many others."

Most recently Light served as president of Middlebury College in Vermont. Previously, he was acting president in 1989-90 and provost from 1986 to 1989 at Kalamazoo College. He served as department chairperson and professor at Ohio State University from 1980 to 1986. He also has been an administrator at the University of Arizona, serving as coordinator of the Chinese language program from 1974 to 1980 and as director of the East Asia Center in 1979-80. He held several academic positions at the New Asia College at the Chinese University of Hong Kong from 1960 to 1962 and from 1966 to 1971. In addition, he has been a visiting professor and an adjunct professor at the Beijing Language Institute in the People's Republic of China.

Light received his bachelor of science degree, magna cum laude, in English literature in 1960 from Yale University, his bachelor of divinity degree in 1965 from Union Theological Seminary, his master of arts degree in teaching English as a foreign language in 1966 from Columbia University's Teachers College and his doctor of philosophy degree in linguistics in 1974 from Cornell University.

Light has received numerous grants and awards, including the University of Arizona Foundation Award for Excellence in Teaching, two grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and two grants from the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation to manage national workshops for high school teachers of Chinese.

He has written many scholarly books, monographs, articles and reviews, and he has conducted several international consultancies. He has been co-general editor of the Monographs of the Chinese Language Teachers Association since 1989.

Board to meet Friday, Oct. 18

The Board of Trustees will meet at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 18, in the Board Room of the Bernhard Center.

The board is expected to approve a general fund budget for 1991-92, as well as consider capital outlay budget requests and program revision requests for 1992-93. The requests will be sent to the state Department of Management and Budget for review and eventual action by the Legislature and governor as part of the appropriation process for next year.

Agenda items also include a recommendation on presidential evaluation and compensation. In addition, the board is expected to set meeting dates for 1992 and to consider the merger of the Department of Aircraft and Automotive Engineering and Department of Mechanical Engineering.

These board committee meetings also will meet Friday in 204 Bernhard Center: Budget and Finance Committee at 8 a.m.; and Academic and Student Affairs Committee at 9 a.m. All meetings are open to the public.

Three to receive awards for superior classroom skills

Three WMU faculty members will be recognized for their superior classroom skills with 1991 Alumni Teaching Excellence Awards.

Presented by the WMU Alumni Association, the awards will go to: Constantine J. (Gus) Gianakaris, English and theatre; Gerald Hardie, physics; and Harold L. Ray, health, physical education and recreation. They will be presented at the 12th annual Academic Convocation at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29, in the Dalton Center Recital Hall.

In addition to a plaque, winners will receive a $1,500 cash award and $1,000 will be added to their base salaries in July 1992.

Since the Alumni Teaching Excellence Awards were established in 1966, more than 100 faculty members have been recognized with them for superior teaching skills and professional expertise. Recipients are selected by an Alumni Association committee from nominations by alumni, students and departmental colleagues.

Gianakaris joined the WMU faculty in 1966. He teaches courses in Shakespeare, English Renaissance drama, modern world drama, literary and dramatic theory, newspaper reviewing and feature writing.

He was co-founder of "Comparative Drama," an interdisciplinary and international quarterly he also co-edited for many years. He currently serves as editorial board member of two professional journals, "Slavic and East European Arts" and "American Drama." In addition, Gianakaris works as a reviewer for the Kalamazoo Gazette.

The author or editor of six books on drama, he last month published as editor a collection of critical essays on British playwright Peter Shaffer. His own full-length scholarly book on Shaffer, the author of such award-winning plays as "Equus" and "Amadeus," is due out later this year. Gianakaris also is involved in local theatre as a director and dramaturg, and as a board member for University and community theatre groups.

"Gus Gianakaris brings his inexhaustible intellectual and theatrical vitality to every class he teaches," said one alumnus in nominating him for the award. "The results are electrifying. His graceful combination of good humor and penetrating insight enlivens texts and ideas in a way that is unique in my experience."

Hardie, a WMU faculty member since 1965, teaches advanced courses in electronics, analytical mechanics, quantum mechanics and relativity, as well as introductory classes.

A member of the American Physical Society, Hardie also is the administrator of the Luise Meyer-Schutzmeister Memorial Award, a $500 scholarship given annually to a woman at a U.S. university who is doing outstanding research in pursuing a doctoral degree in physics. Hardie's field of research is experimental nuclear physics, on which he has written numerous articles for scholarly journals.

In the classroom, Hardie is known for his dedication to explaining the sometimes complicated concepts of physics to his students. "The way that he presented the material stimulated my thinking and developed my understanding in ways that it had not been before," said one alumnus in nominating him for the award. "As a class we often found ourselves frustrated and greatly challenged by what he required of us, but when the task was accomplished, often with his help and guidance, a real sense of success was developed."

Hardie also has been cited for his attention to curriculum revision and finding better methods of reaching students. "He constantly seeks ways to improve his teaching skills in order to enhance the learning process," said a colleague. "When called upon to teach a new course, he begins months in advance preparing and organizing so that it will be of maximum benefit to the students."

Ray has been a WMU faculty member since 1960 and plans to retire from the University in December. During his career at WMU, he has served stints as chairperson of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation and as coordinator of graduate studies. His teaching assignments have ranged from activity classes in the earlier years to more recent courses on such subjects as "Cultural Bases of Sport," "Eth-

Barrett to testify on budget vetoes

Provost Nancy S. Barrett will testify before the Michigan House Appropriations Committee in the morning on Oct. 17 in Lansing.

WMU was asked by the committee, which is chaired by Dominic J. Jacobetti (D-Negaunee), to comment on the state's fiscal year 1991-92 budget with particular reference to the gubernatorial vetoes of late last week.

Events proposals sought

The University Cultural Events Committee is seeking proposals for partial funding of activities that enhance the cultural environment on campus. Proposals for events scheduled to take place during the 1991-92 academic year are now being accepted for consideration.

Grant proposals may be submitted by students, faculty or staff. Each proposal must include pertinent information and be endorsed by the head of the appropriate unit.

For grant guidelines, preparation instructions and application materials, contact Carl W. Doubleday, music, chairperson of the Cultural Events Committee, at 7-4681.

Loaned executive lends a hand to local United Way

Vince Green says he became a lawyer to help people solve their problems. Now he's putting those skills to work helping the people who help people at the Greater Kalamazoo United Way.

Green, an associate to the general counsel and to the vice president for legislative affairs at WMU, is one of 15 employees at companies in the Kalamazoo area who have been loaned to the United Way for the duration of this year's campaign. They're in charge of helping the United Way reach its community-wide goal of $5,660,000 in this fall's fund-raising effort.

The "loaned executives" attended training sessions in August and then hit the road to work with local organizations on their campaigns through Nov. 7, the date scheduled for the "victory celebration."

Green says the training was an eye-opening experience for him. The loaned executives saw emotion-filled films about the kinds of people helped by United Way. They learned about the work of United Way's 56 agencies, and discovered how these diverse groups work together. Persons from the various agencies came in and spoke to the group, and the loaned executives went out and visited some of the agencies.

They even spent some time delivering food in the "Meals-on-Wheels" program offered through Senior Services Inc. "That was a great experience," Green says. "Those people were so appreciative when we delivered their meals."

Green says his contact with United Way before he became a loaned executive was limited to his contribution to the University's campaign each year. Now, he spouts facts about the agency and its services in rapid fire. "Did you know that more than 90 percent of every dollar given to the United Way in Kalamazoo County goes directly to the services?" he says. "This is a very efficient operation. Administrative costs are very low."

The loaned executives were given a choice of areas in which they wanted to work. Green chose retail because "I love clothes and I love to eat!" Besides area retailers, he's also working with three units at the Upjohn Co.: control, legal and manufacturing.

His job runs the gamut from having minimal contact with the firm — just dropping off the United Way materials and later picking up a check — to meeting with the campaign manager, helping run the campaign, offering ideas and conducting meetings.

He says his job at WMU gave him some help in dealing with his experiences as a

On loan

Vince Green says his experience as a loaned executive from WMU to the Greater Kalamazoo United Way is giving him the opportunity to help people as well as making him better understand the role of the agency in the community.

loaned executive. "I'm used to working with a diverse group of people at the University: students, faculty, staff, legislators. That has helped me deal with the diverse group of people I've encountered through United Way."

Green says he works as hard as a loaned executive as he does in his job at WMU. Recently, he met with some 600 employees at the Meijer store on Gull Road in 21 meetings in three days. He says it's not unusual for a loaned executive to be giving a presentation at any time of the day or night from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Some have even conducted meetings at 4 a.m. on the loading dock.

"This is very demanding work for the people who are employed at United Way year-round," he says. "I like to think that the loaned executives help give those people a breath of fresh air and help ease the load."

Green says he's enjoying his experience as a loaned executive. "I'm getting a great deal of personal satisfaction out of my work," he says. "I've always had a need to help people and this type of work really appeals to me."

He says he'll come back to his job at WMU in November a better person. "Before, when I saw people who needed assistance, I always thought they were dependent on us. Now I know that the United Way is using funds to help these people remain independent."

Homecoming celebration to focus on 'united cultures'

A week-long festival of fun is planned to celebrate WMU's Homecoming 1991.

Traditionally an event designed to bring back WMU's alumni, Homecoming also has provided a host of events for students and the community as well. The theme of this year's event is the "United Cultures of WMU." This was chosen to celebrate the wide ethnic diversity on campus.

The first event of the week is the annual Victory Run from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, at Kanley Track. Participants gather pledges for each lap completed. The run is sponsored by the Mike Gary Athletic Fund and proceeds go to the Division of Intercollegiate Athletics. Refreshments will be served in Read Fieldhouse after the run.

WMU's vocal jazz ensemble, Gold Company, will perform at 6:30 p.m. Sunday on center stage in the Bronco Mall of the Bernhard Center.

Closing out Sunday's events will be a performance by "Les Ballet Africains." The dance company is set to perform at 7 p.m. in Miller Auditorium.

The campuswide talent show and king and queen coronation is set to begin at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21, in the Bernhard Center ballrooms.

The celebration continues on Tuesday, Oct. 22, with the International Festival from 4:30 to 8 p.m. in the Trimpe Building. Students will have an opportunity to sample food and learn more about their fellow students free of charge.

The popular comedy movie, "City Slickers," will be shown at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 23, in Miller Auditorium. The Campus Activities Board and the Student Entertainment Committee are sponsoring the showings at $1 for students, faculty and staff.

Also beginning Wednesday will be performances of "Jesus Christ Superstar" by the University theatre in Shaw Theatre. Performances at 8 p.m. will run through Saturday, Nov. 2, and a 2 p.m. matinee is set for Sunday, Oct. 27.

From 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, the Division of Student Affairs, the Administrative Professional Association and the Clerical/Technical Organization will staff snack tents at the Haworth College of Business building, the sun dial and the fine arts plaza. Free popcorn and pop will be available.

The gospel choirs of Kalamazoo and WMU will present a free concert from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24, in the Dalton Center Recital Hall.

Friday, Oct. 25, marks a rush of activities all over campus. At 8:30 a.m., residence hall, fraternity and sorority house displays will be judged by representatives from the Office of Student Life.

Alumni registration will run from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday in the East Ballroom of the Bernhard Center. Campus tours will be offered during that time and the alumni records staff will be on hand to help alumni find lost classmates.

Friday Fest will begin at 2 p.m. Friday at the gazebo area of the Goldsworth Valley Pond. Student teams will compete in various events, beginning with the Fritter Fest, a donut eating contest. Adjacent to the area will be a race track set on Gilkison Avenue

Memorial service for McKee planned for Oct. 22 in Kanley

A memorial service for Beulah J. McKee, the alumna and major benefactor of WMU who died Sept. 24 at age 84, has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, in Kanley Chapel. A reception will follow in the chapel's social room.

Presiding at the program will be L. Michael Moskovis, vice president for institutional advancement. Speakers will include: Larry McDaid, a WMU alumnus now living in Paw Paw who received a McKee scholarship; President Haenicke; Jack Vredevelt, men's tennis coach; Joyce E. Hinders, a WMU senior and the recipient of a Harold and Beulah McKee Endowed Medallion Scholarship; and Barbara Berezonsky, a social worker at Hospice of Greater Kalamazoo.

Music for the service will be performed by the School of Music, and a solo will be sung by Cassy Harlow, a WMU alumna now living in Chicago who also received a McKee scholarship.

McKee and her late husband, Harold, both 1934 WMU graduates, were lifelong contributors to the University, providing more than 100 student scholarships and total gifts to WMU in excess of $1 million. They left their entire estate to the University through the WMU Foundation.

Dames luncheon is Oct. 19

The WMU Dames will meet at noon Saturday, Oct. 19, at the Fetzer Center. This fall luncheon will include an auction to raise funds for the WMU Student Small Loans Fund. Reservations are required by calling 327-2770.

Caring Comes To Life...

...Because You Give.

Washington Post columnist to give keynote talk during Peace and Justice Education Week

Colman McCarthy, a nationally syndicated columnist for the Washington Post Writers Group and the founder and director of the Center for Teaching Peace, will give the keynote address during the 10th annual Peace and Justice Education Week at WMU Oct. 21-24.

McCarthy

In addition, representatives from the Michigan Nuremberg Campaign and the resistance groups in El Salvador will give special lectures during the event. Presentations by a number of campus and community peace and justice groups also will be featured.

Peace and Justice Education Week is organized by United Campuses Against Militarism (UCAM), a WMU student organization, to promote discussion about how to build a more just and peaceful world. The theme this year is "Promoting Nonviolent Responses to Conflict and Trouble."

McCarthy's keynote address, "How To Be an Effective Peacemaker," is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21, in 3750 Knauss Hall. He also will present the first Winnie Veenstra Peace Lecture, "The Ethics of Peacemaking," at 3 p.m. Monday in the Martin Luther King Jr. Room (204) of the Bernhard Center. The Veenstra Lecture is co-sponsored by the WMU Center for the Study of Ethics in Society.

McCarthy has written for the Washington Post since 1969 and his highly visible columns have been nationally syndicated by the Post Writers Group since 1978.

McCarthy's essays have appeared in magazines ranging from the New Yorker to Reader's Digest. He has been a visiting writer at George Mason University, as well as an adjunct professor of peace studies at several Washington-area universities. Several years ago, he founded the Center for Teaching Peace in Washington, D.C., and still serves as its director.

Other events during the week will include a session titled "Whose Responsibility Is It To Enforce International Law?: The Michigan Nuremberg Campaign" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 23, in 3750 Knauss Hall. Speaking will be Anabel Dwyer, a Lansing attorney for the group, and the Rev. Peter Dougherty of Michigan Faith and Resistance, a statewide movement for disarmament and peace.

Gladis Sibirian, a representative of resistance groups in El Salvador, will present "Prospects for Peace in El Salvador" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 24, in 3750 Knauss Hall.

In addition to the evening events, representatives of campus and community organizations will give luncheon or late afternoon presentations during the week (see the calendar on page four).

For more information, persons may contact Ronald C. Kramer, sociology, faculty adviser to WMU-UCAM, at 7-5287.

Visually impaired athletic teams to compete in goal ball tournament here Saturday, Oct. 19

Imagine hearing an object approaching you while participating in a sporting event, but not being able to see it.

WMU will welcome a large group of visually impaired athletes who can do just that while playing a rigorous game called "goal ball."

Symposium on ozone set

A symposium to examine lower-level ozone layers throughout the Lake Michigan region is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 21, at the University.

"The Lake Michigan Ozone Study Symposium" will run from 1 to 4 p.m. in 105 Bernhard Center. It is being sponsored by the WMU Environmental Studies Center.

The free symposium will explore the results of an investigation and study of the formation and transportation of smog in the Lake Michigan airshed, and how it would affect West Michigan citizens and businesses.

Speakers will include: Lou Pocalujka, coordinator of the Lake Michigan Ozone Study for the Michigan DNR; State Rep. Mary Brown, chairperson of the Michigan House Air Quality Subcommittee; and Gene Tierney, EPA Motor Vehicle Inspection Laboratory.

For more information, persons may call the WMU Environmental Studies Center at 7-2716.

Media Services

Congratulations to Pamela S. Rups, media services, on her third place award in the higher education classroom category in the Aldus and T.H.E. Journal Effective Communication Awards. Her entry, "Fundamental Typesetting and Layout Terminology," was reviewed by a panel of six judges and rated on the extent to which it achieved the stated communication objectives, on attractiveness and on innovation and utility. The award was announced in the October issue of the T.H.E. Journal. Rups has conducted seminars on this topic for the Department of Human Resources.

Thanks to a grant this spring from the Kalamazoo Consortium for Higher Education (KCHE), the University film/videotape library now has several new videotape series available to faculty for classroom use. Included in these additions are: "Inside Gorbachev's USSR," "BBC's Shakespeare Collection," "Discovering Psychology," "World of Ideas With Bill Moyers, Season I," "Human Body Series," "Harvard Business Review Video Series" and 16 new titles from "Nova." Individual program titles of the KCHE additions include: "What You Are Is What You Choose" (Raymond Massey), "Machismo," "Sexual Harassment From 9 To 5," "Women and the Corporate Game," "Problems of Working Women," "Abortion" and "Rape: An Act of Hate." To arrange for playback or loan, contact the Media Resource Center in Sangren Hall at 7-5070. Two additional series that will be added later this fall are "Against All Odds" and "Universal Video Yearbook." For specific information on these titles, contact the media utilization office at 7-5001.

Programs telecast on the national satellite access network, Deep Dish TV, during its fall season are provided on campus and to the Kalamazoo metropolitan area through the facilities of media services. These programs may be viewed on EduCABLE and the Com-

The annual Kalamazoo Invitational Goal Ball Tournament will begin at 7:45 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, in the Gary Center gymnasium. It is sponsored by the Department of Blind Rehabilitation.

The tournament, which is sanctioned by the U.S. Association for Blind Athletes, will feature more than 20 men's and women's teams from Michigan, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Texas. The teams will compete in separate divisions for trophies and medals.

The teams that finished first, second and third in last year's national tournament will continue their rivalries. The WMU men's and women's teams last year finished second and third, respectively, in the tournament.

The game, which is similar to hockey or soccer, is goal-oriented, fast-paced and rigorous. The playing area has dimensions similar to a volleyball court. The 3.5-pound ball contains bells, so players can hear it.

Recycling

In September, WMU recycled 56.8 tons of office paper, corrugated cardboard and newspapers. This was a 34 percent increase compared to August and amounted to 13.8 percent of the total waste stream.

By recycling we saved 966 trees from being harvested, 527 barrels of oil, 397,000 gallons of process water and 187 cubic yards of landfill space.

Remember, polystyrene foam (Styrofoam) is now recyclable. Please call the recycling office at 7-8165 if you have foam for recycling or any questions about the program. Thanks for your cooperation.

positive reinforcement from this instructor-led activity. Call the Zest for Life office at 7-3262 if you have any questions.

"Take Care of Your Back" is an exercise program designed to help you take care of your back through progressive strength and flexibility exercises. Relaxation techniques and education on proper posture and body mechanics also will be included. This program will be taught by Theresa J. Landis, Employee Wellness Programs, from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, Nov. 5-21, in 3270 Sinduce Health Center. Call the Zest for Life office at 7-3262 to register.

munity Access Center, Channel 32. Some of the remaining upcoming programs include: "Peace at Home," "From Victim to Survivor," "Idiot Box Savant," "War Toys Teach-In," "Operation Storm the Media," "Born To Be Sold" and "We Interrupt This Schedule to Bring You...." For specific information on the complete fall schedule, including telecast times on campus, call the EduCABLE office at 7-4997.

On Campus

SUPPORTING SCIENCE EDUCATION — Kay A. Shearer says her job as an administrative assistant in the Center for Science Education requires her to be a "jack-of-all-trades." She handles a variety of tasks to help the center carry out its four charges: to help coordinate the undergraduate science education program; to direct the master's and doctoral degree science education programs; to obtain and administer outside funding for science education projects; and to provide a community service by assisting surrounding educational institutions. "The most important function of my job is to watch the grant money we receive to make sure we're spending it the way it was intended," she says. She also edits reports and proposals and composes correspondence, and she acts as a liaison between the center and people at the University as well as outside the University. She says she enjoys the "team" concept that exists in the center, and the contact she has with the students and teachers and with surrounding schools. Shearer first was a WMU employee in 1964-65, when she was a student here. She was an administrative secretary in the Department of Physics from 1965 to 1973, and then took a break from the University to raise a family. She came back to WMU in 1986, working in general studies and academic services before joining the Center for Science Education staff two years ago.

Libraries

Throughout the month of October, the Midwest Regional chapter of the Guild of Book Workers is sponsoring an exhibit of fine books and hand bindings in the third floor rotunda of Waldo Library. The exhibit has been on display in Ohio and Indiana and, following this exhibit in Michigan, will travel to Bloomington, Ind., for an exhibition in November.

A tour of the exhibit, supplemented with other books and bindings, is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29. The tour is limited to 20 persons.

The Guild of Book Workers was founded in 1906 "to establish and maintain a feeling of kinship and mutual interest among workers in the several hand book crafts." The Midwest chapter, established in 1987, serves people working or interested in the book arts in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. The guild represents all of the hand book crafts, with membership encompassing binders, printers, calligraphers, papermakers and other book artists/craftspersons, as well as collectors, librarians and others interested in these fields.

Through its activities, the Guild of Book Workers seeks to broaden public awareness of the hand book arts, to stimulate the commissioning of fine bindings, to draw attention to the need for sound book conservation and restoration, and to widen communication among artists/craftspersons working in the book arts field.

To obtain an illustrated catalog, for more information on the exhibit and to register for the tour, call Pamela S. Rups, media services, at 7-5016.

Looking for information? The University libraries are beginning a series of WESTNET workshops featuring FINDER, WMU's online catalog, and DATAQ-1 Databases, including ERIC (education/social sciences), ABI/INFORM (business) and PSYCInfo (psychological abstracts).

The first series of WESTNET introductory workshops are scheduled for: 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21; 11 a.m. to noon Tuesday, Oct. 22; and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 28.

For the experienced searcher, there will be an opportunity to refine searching techniques in a WESTNET intermediate workshop from 11 a.m. to noon Wednesday, Oct. 30.

All workshops will meet in the instructional services classroom, 1070 Waldo Library. Registration is required. Call Stephanie Boris at 7-5202 to reserve your place. Persons with questions about the workshops should call 7-5191.

Human Resources

Training and development schedules Mapes special seminar

Whether you are a new speaker or a seasoned professional, Mary Jane Mapes, nationally recognized trainer and leader in the field of public speaking education, can teach you to "Present Yourself With Confidence and Impact!" This special two-session seminar will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursdays, Oct. 24 and 31, in 205 Bernhard Center.

The program is designed for anyone who needs to present programs to both large and small audiences. Mapes will help you evaluate your strengths as a speaker, practice your presentation techniques, and design a message that "speaks" to your audience. You also will learn how to elicit and respond to questions.

There is a $300 fee for the class, which includes materials, lunch and snacks for breaks. Enrollment is limited to 12 persons. To register, call Chrysa K. Richards at 7-3620.

Retired faculty member co-edits second edition of book on school libraries with WMU graduate

The second edition of a 1972 book by a retired faculty member has been published with help from a WMU graduate and a host of other world scholars.

"School Libraries: International Developments" originally was written by Jean E. Lowrie, emerita in librarianship. Many new countries are included in the updated version, which she edited with Mieko Nagakura, professor and director of the School of Library Laboratory, a training program at Tokyo Gakugei University. Nagakura earned her master's degree in library science from WMU in 1958.

School library experts from 23 countries contributed articles to the book on such topics as administration and management techniques, certification requirements, general education in the country, history of school library development, professional support, and standards and legislation. The 403-page illustrated text was published by Scarecrow Press Inc. of Metuchen, N.J.

Among the new countries included in the book are Finland, Germany, Hong Kong, Iceland, India, Israel, Jordan, Malaysia, People's Republic of China, South Africa and Thailand.

Lowrie has a long list of achievements and is an internationally recognized expert on school libraries. She joined the WMU faculty in 1951 as a campus school librarian, moved to the librarianship faculty and became head of the Department of Librarianship in 1963. She was named director of the School of Librarianship in 1970, a position she held for 10 years. She retired from the University in 1983.

Lowrie has served as president of the American Library Association, the American Association of School Librarians and the International Association of School Librarianship.

Ramirez re-elected to board

Miguel A. Ramirez, minority affairs, has been re-elected to the board of directors of the Michigan Educational Opportunity Fund Inc.

The Lansing-based non-profit group re-elected Ramirez to a term that lasts until 1994. His duties will include attending the four board meetings a year, studying various programs the group offers and attending the annual meeting in September.

"It has grown tremendously since the beginning in 1985," Ramirez said. "I attribute the success of the organization to our president, Dr. Antonio Flores."

The Michigan Educational Opportunity Fund Inc. is a statewide organization devoted to the educational advancement of Hispanics and other disadvantaged groups. Over the last six years, the group has awarded more than $130,000 in scholarships, provided programs to curb the high school dropout rate, helped to improve writing skills among K-12 students, worked to develop the artistic and humanistic talents of children and offered computer-assisted instruction.

ics in Sport" and "Socio-Cultural Foundations of HPER/Sport."

Last year, he was named Scholar of the Year by the six-state Midwest District Association of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance for his research on the history of sport and the relationship between sport and art. He is the author of numerous articles for professional journals, and co-wrote the book, "Sports Talk: A Dictionary of Sports Metaphors," with Robert A. Palmatier, languages and linguistics. That volume was named an "Outstanding Academic Book of 1989" by Choice magazine.

"He is greatly knowledgeable in his field of work and it shows," said a former student, "not to mention the way his positive attitude about his work shows through. Being in the classroom with a teacher who enjoys what he does makes learning that much more fun."

Ray has shared his knowledge of sports with his colleagues through involvement in several professional associations. He served as president of the Michigan Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance and as historian of the state, district and national affiliates of that organization. He also was a charter member of the North American Society for Sport History and currently serves as its official photographer.

- Treasurer: Wendy Stock, a 1972 graduate who is a vice president at NBD Bank in Grand Rapids. She has been on the board since 1986 and is serving her second term as treasurer.

- Past president: Richard Chormann, a 1959 graduate who is chief operating officer at First of America Bank Corp. in Kalamazoo. He has been a member of the association's board since 1984, during which time he served as president and vice president.

Teaching philosophical ethics is topic for Oct. 22 lecture

"Corrupting the Young? Hopes, Fears and Arguments About Teaching Philosophical Ethics" is the title of a talk to be presented Tuesday, Oct. 22, at the University.

Karen Hanson, professor of philosophy at Indiana University, will speak at 8 p.m. in 2750 Knauss Hall.

She will discuss what faculty members hope to achieve in college courses on philosophical ethics, posing the question whether this instruction could have unfortunate, as well as laudable, consequences. She will address the place of ethics in the curriculum, and the promise and problems inherent in current teaching practices.

The free lecture is being sponsored by the Center for the Study of Ethics in Society. For more information, persons may contact Michael S. Pritchard, philosophy, at 7-4380.
