The groundbreaking ceremony for the estimated $50 million renovation and expansion of the University's facilities for student recreation and intercollegiate athletics is set for 2 p.m. Friday, March 13.

The ceremony will take place at the construction site, located in front of Hilgendorf Hall and near the southwest corner of the intersection of Western and West Michigan Avenues.

Principal participants in the public event will be: Dr. George A. Franklin of Kalamazoo, chairperson of the Board of Trustees; President John M. Haenick; and Dan D. Robling, senior vice president and principal in charge for the project's architectural and engineering firm of Smith, Hinchman & Grylls Associates Inc. of Denver.

Theresa A. Powell, vice president for student affairs, and John D. Fleckstein Jr., a senior from Kalamazoo and president of the Western Student Association, will share the encores duties.

A public reception at the Oaklands will follow the brief ceremony.

The first phase of the four-phase project already has been completed. It includes the resurfacing and lighting of Kanley Track, six new lighted tennis courts in Goldsworth Valley and major improvements, including lighting, to intramural fields in Goldsworth Valley.

Phase II, which is expected to begin this month, will include the construction of a major addition to the Gary Center. It will contain a new recreational swimming pool, academic laboratories and classrooms as well as offices for the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Office of Campus Recreational Activities, Zest for Life and University Wellness Programs.

Phase III, to begin in summer 1993, will include the renovation of the Gary Center's existing squash area and intramural gymnasium as well as the relocation of physical education and intercollegiate gymnastics.

New construction will include 10 racquetball courts, two multi-purpose gym spaces and an elevated jogging track.

Phase IV, which also will begin in summer 1993, will include the repair and renovation of Road Fieldhouse and Oakland Gymnasium for intercollegiate athletics.

A celebration of the works of English playwright and poet William Shakespeare is planned at the University for March 16 through April 19.

The third annual WMU Shakespeare Festival will feature lectures, demonstrations, performances and readings. The emphasis will be on Shakespeare through performance, according to Thomas E. Small, English, who has organized the celebration.

Of special note this year will be sessions with one of America's foremost stage designers and with an expert on Shakespeare in performance.

The festival will begin at 7 p.m. Monday, March 16, with an open rehearsal of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in Shaw Theatre. Participants will have an opportunity to observe director James R. Daniels, theatre, and his actors working on a scene.

A lecture/demonstration on "Shakespeare and Film" is set for 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 18, in 1114 Brown Hall. Ellen Caldwell, associate professor of English at Kalamazoo College, will compare different styles of adapting Shakespeare to film.

John Jensen, a set designer for many of the most important regional theatres in the United States, will lead an informal discussion on "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The Text and Stage Designs" at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 19, on the 10th floor of Sprau Tower. He will talk about the many productions of Shakespeare that he has designed, including "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which will be performed at WMU April 1-11.

Gilbert Jensen has designed sets at the Actors' Theatre in Louisville, Center Stage in Baltimore, the Acting Company in New York City, the Goodman Theatre in Chicago and the Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis. He has extensive experience in designing Shakespearean productions, including "King Lear," "Richard III," "Othello," "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Tempest," as well as several previous productions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Miriam Gilbert, an expert on Shakespeare in performance, will make her first appearance during WMU's Shakespeare Festival at 9 a.m. Monday, March 23, in the York Arena Theatre. She will present a workshop/demonstration on "Shakespeare: Language of Gesture, Movement and Feeling."

A professor of English at the University of Iowa, Gilbert spends several months each year with the Royal Shakespeare Company at Stratford, England, observing and conducting research. She has directed several Shakespearean productions at the University of Iowa and elsewhere, and has written drama and literature textbooks for college and high school. She frequently conducts workshops in the United States and England on
Get a jump on good health during ‘Spring Into Wellness’

Students, faculty and staff can learn to manage their stress and increase their risk of preventable disease and assess their current and future health during the seventh annual Spring Into Wellness Week March 16-21. The celebration is coordinated by University Wellness Services, the Sindeceuse Health Center and the University Wellness Committee and sponsored by more than 250 campus departments, academic departments and organizations.

“Protecting personal health is everyone’s responsibility,” says Christine G. Zimmer, University Wellness Programs. “We hope you will take time from your hectic schedules to interact with your community to participate and learn, and to make commitments for small changes in your lifestyle that have the potential to positively affect your quality of life and that of others around you.”

The week will begin with a noon-hour seminar Monday, March 16, titled “Simplify Your Life,” with Richard M. Oshander, Counseling Center. Monday evening, Susan Redmond, Zest for Life yoga instructor, will help participants experience the healing peace of a body, mind and spirit connection through Hatha Yoga.

On Tuesday, March 17, 14-hour noon seminar will feature Jill Irvin, dining services, and the latest information on “Diet, Nutrition and Cancer.” On Tuesday evening, a formal dinner and dance designed to contribute to skill building for minimizing stress, will begin.

The seventh annual Spring Into Wellness Health Assessment and Skills Fair is set for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday, March 18. The evening will feature booths providing for health assessments, including vision screening by an optometrist, pulmonary function test, respiratory therapist, upper back and neck massage by four certified massage therapists, and tasty, low-fat snack samples.

In addition, there will be information on HIV counseling and testing; a therapist knowledgeable about the symptoms of depression and eating disorders; information on Seasonal Affective Disorder light therapy; and two sessions on relaxation techniques from the Sindeceuse Health Center capable of completing 16 free cholesterol assessments every 15 minutes.

The evening will feature a computerized nutrition assessment, percent body fat composition analysis, co-dependency assessment, hearing assessment or color analysis. Those attending 10 or more booths will earn the opportunity to participate in a drawing for prizes sponsored by the Residence Hall Association.

On Wednesday and Thursday, March 18-19, Western’s Committee for Alcohol Responsibility and Education will play host to happy hours in all residence halls. The Administrative Professional Association and the Clerical/Technical Organization will sponsor the second annual Step Into Spring Wellness Walk Thursday, March 19 (see related story on this page). And on Friday, March 20, participants can add their donation to the University’s contribution to the local blood supply by joining in the Campwidth Blood Drive.

The week will conclude Saturday, March 21, with a Dance for Heart at Oakland Gym from 10 a.m. to noon to raise money for the American Heart Association Research and Education Fund. The dance is being sponsored by the Residence Hall Association.

See the calendar on page four for more information or, for a complete listing of events and details, the March 9 insert to the Western Herald.

Mad Hatters' performance, Race to Access set in observance of Handicapped Awareness Days

Several activities to promote understanding of people with special needs or disabilities are planned for March 24-26 as part of Handicapped Awareness Days at the University of Michigan. The Mad Hatters, an educational theatre troupe, will present two performances. The first will be held at 3 p.m. on March 24, in the Red Rooms of the Bernhard Center. Designed for faculty and staff, this performance is sponsored by the Department of Human Resources.

A second presentation is scheduled for noon Wednesday, March 25, in the auditorium of the Haworth College of Business building. This presentation will be geared for students. The Mad Hatters hope to promote acceptance and appreciation of people who are physically, mentally or emotionally challenged.

Since the passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act, increasing numbers of qualified individuals with disabilities have greater opportunities in the workplace. By portraying people with disabilities, the Mad Hatters hope to change the manner in which people respond to people with particular strengths.

To register for the March 24 program, persons should call the Department of Human Resources at 7-3620. For more information, persons should call Handicapped Student Services.

Other events include:

- “Simplify Your Life”
- “On Campus”
- “Women’s History Month”
- “Flowering Plants for Sale”
- “Zest for Life”

Media Services
