WELCOMING REMARKS AND INTRODUCTIONS

President Dunn:

“Commencement is a very special occasion - a time for celebration, a time for reflection, a time for closure, and a time for new beginnings.

Graduates, I applaud and thank you for attending today’s event. Your presence allows us to recognize you and, equally important, to permit expressions of happiness, pride, and love which are so evident in the faces of those gathered here to observe you graduate.

Graduates, this is YOUR day! You have only two responsibilities: 1) to enjoy the day and allow us to honor you and; 2) to reflect and say thanks to those---and you know best who they are---who have contributed to your academic, professional and personal development.

The latter first---the THANKS part. Graduates, please stand as able and those in front of me, turn and face the audience and remain standing. Would the Moms and Dads in the audience please stand? How about the Grandparents? And Great Grandparents? Spouses, special partners, and children? Brothers and Sisters? Aunts, Uncles and other Relatives? And, Friends? We also realize that there are loved ones who cannot be with us today but who we remember now and thank for their support and affection.

This day is a very special day for you, our graduates, and it is my privilege and honor to preside at your commencement.

You will join alumni from all over Michigan and from around the world.

We shall award over 2700 degrees today.

Almost 2100 of you will receive bachelor's degrees.

Nearly 600 will receive master's degrees.

And 41 of you will be receiving doctoral degrees.

Please join me as we turn our attention to our faculty. They are the very heart of this University. Their intellect, creativity and passion for teaching and research inspire each of us. Their faith and confidence in your abilities throughout your college years have built the foundation for your professional future. Therefore, it is to our faculty that we express special appreciation today. I ask the faculty members to stand and all of you to please join me in applauding them for the fine education they have provided to you!

Besides your professors, there have been many, many others on this campus who have protected, encouraged, facilitated, and brightened the academic journey that has led you to this moment of celebration. They are the cooks, the custodians, office personnel, medical staff, police officers, landscape crews...the list goes on and on. They give their all, every day, to make your educational experience at WMU what you deserve: the BEST. Although many of these fine people are not in attendance, I would like to recognize them with a round of applause.

Let me now turn to my other colleagues on the stage and I ask each of them to rise as I mention them by category.

They are the executive officers, deans and chairs of the University; our partners in shared governance: representatives of the Faculty Senate; the University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors; the Administrative Professional Association; the Professional Support Staff Organization; and the Alumni Association (Mark Jackson).

Our University is governed by an autonomous Board of Trustees, appointed by the governor of the State of Michigan. The trustees are private citizens who serve the University without remuneration and who set policy direction for the campus. The University is very grateful to these men and women.

Representing the Board of Trustees at this ceremony is Chair James Hettinger.

Also we have a special guest, Maura Corrigan, Director of the Michigan Department of Human Services, who is with us today to honor our Seita graduates

At this time, I would like to recognize those of you who are graduating with honors. Will those with honor cords, honorary society members, and those with recognition cords please rise so that we can recognize the special distinctions you have earned.

Western Michigan University is truly an international institution. We enthusiastically welcome students from other lands and we encourage all other students to experience a portion of their learning in one of our many study abroad locations around the globe. Will those students who were participants in one of our fine study abroad programs and all our international students please stand and be recognized.

I now ask Board Chair Jim Hettinger to share with you some Western Michigan University "Points of Pride" that will remind you of how special this university truly is."

(President Dunn to his seat and Chair Hettinger to the podium.)

Chair Hettinger: WMU POINTS OF PRIDE

"Graduates, you and your families should be proud of what you've accomplished. You've successfully completed your degree programs, and you will leave this auditorium today as WMU alumni. All of us here on the stage share your families' pride and look forward to seeing you succeed as you move on to the next passages in your lives.

Today's graduates come from an array of backgrounds. The stories that brought our graduates here today are tales of personal accomplishment and proud supporting families and friends. I could share hundreds of wonderful stories about our grads, but there isn't time to do them justice. So instead, I'll take this time to relate the kind of information our graduates can share as they start their careers, head for graduate school or take a short break to plan for their next step.

Too often, we take it for granted that you all know the truly special points of pride about Western Michigan University. Let me take a few moments, one last time before you graduate, to remind you of some facts you can share whenever someone asks about your University.

Let's start with the basics. Graduates, today you become alumni of one of the country's top public universities. In a nation that has more than 4,000 colleges and universities, your alma mater is one of just over 200 schools designated a research university by the Carnegie Foundation classification system that is the nation's gold standard when it comes to defining higher education.

All of you graduating today will now take your place among a proud group of more than 180,000 WMU alumni worldwide. Some 125,000 WMU graduates live in Michigan, but there's not a state or territory in the nation that is missing the Bronco touch. And no matter where you travel in the world, you should not be surprised to encounter a fellow alum.

So who else will be joining our alumni base today?

- Let's start with an important group we always need to acknowledge--our veterans. There are 59 veterans who will graduate today. We're proud of the service our graduates and their fellow veterans have given our nation and enormously proud that they chose WMU to prepare for their futures, and we are grateful for their service.
- Today we'll award 41 doctoral degrees. These graduates in more than a dozen disciplines will keep us on track to maintain our tradition of awarding about 100 doctoral degrees annually.

- Graduating today are 193 members of the Lee Honors College. The Lee Honors College is one of the nation's oldest collegiate honors programs and boasts a student profile that is similar or even more impressive than that of students attending the most elite private colleges in the United States.
- Today's graduates include 22 members of Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest and most prestigious academic honor society in the nation. Just 100 public universities in America have been authorized to shelter a Phi Beta Kappa chapter, and Western Michigan University is one of them.
- Western Michigan University is an international university with students from 104 nations. Our graduates today come from countries that include China, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, the Dominican Republic, India, Kenya and Japan. Families have traveled from around the globe to be here today to celebrate their students' achievements.

We pride ourselves on being learner centered, discovery driven and globally engaged. Our incredibly talented faculty lead the way on all three fronts. A perfect example is the Michigan's 2014 Professor of the Year, Dr. Stephen Wolfinbarger, who is conducting the Western Brass Ensemble today. (Pause for applause)

Great people and programs--our points of pride--define Western Michigan University. We intend to share these Points of Pride every chance we get, because we know that the more people know about Western Michigan University, the more likely they are to recognize what an incredibly valuable asset WMU graduates are for the state and nation.

Telling our story works. I invite you to remember and share these facts liberally as you move into your professional life. Starting today, you're a Bronco alum--one of our newest points of pride. We look forward to following your progress, and we plan on boasting about your success in life for many years to come. Congratulations. You already make us proud."

(President Dunn to the podium)

President Dunn: "Graduates, we are indeed proud of all of you. You have demonstrated the determination and commitment to achieve what we celebrate here today. Many of you held down jobs working long hours while being full- or part-time students. And what is important, you finished, you accomplished your goal.

A great number of you are international students who have studied far away from your home and family for many years. Some of your parents have traveled half way around the world to be here with you today. As you journey back to your home countries, you have our best wishes and the hope that you take fond memories of Michigan and your University with you.

And many of our graduates are non-traditional students with spouses and job obligations and for whom being a student came after family and work. We have great admiration for your achievements.

While you have worked hard we hope that you have also enjoyed your time here at the University. For many of you, this has been your first experience away from home. So while you have learned much from your course work, we are sure that you have also learned much about life and living.

We hope that the many friendships you have formed will stand the test of time and that you will include among them associations that you have made with our faculty and staff. For just as we have been an important part of your life, you too have become a part of ours.

We have now reached a very important point in this ceremony, the conferring of your degree---the degree that you have worked so diligently to earn; the document that is sure to become one of your most important lifetime credentials.

CONCLUDING REMARKS

President Dunn:

"We're near the end of our ceremony, and there's a beautiful day awaiting you. After all these years on campus, though, you know I can't let you leave without a few words from the heart.

You are now alumni and ambassadors for this great university. Your every accomplishment will reflect for your families, employers and communities, just how valuable a true university education is. What you've learned at WMU has prepared you for a lifetime of professional, civic and personal achievements that you may not yet imagine.

But if you've had the experience I hope you've had, you know that today's celebration is simply a pause in your education and a time to reflect on what you've learned and what you still need to know. Your years at WMU should have reinforced the perception famed basketball coach John Wooden expressed when he famously said:

"It's what you learn after you know it all that counts."

It IS what you still must learn that counts. And it IS what you accomplish next that will determine your level of success. What you accomplish next will build your reputation and the reputation of your alma mater. And what your alma mater accomplishes next will enhance the value of the degree you celebrate today. You and Western Michigan University are inextricably linked.

Neither you nor your University can rest on the accomplishments of the past--no matter how significant. We want you to reach the top of your professions and we want our University to continue its trek to the summit. Such goals are never completely achieved, but that's a good thing. As the late commentator Andy Rooney once noted:

"Everyone wants to live on top of the mountain, but all the happiness and growth occurs while you're climbing it."

You have been part of this campus community during a time of tremendous growth and change. During your time at WMU, you have seen new facilities open--Sangren Hall, Western View I and II, and a new archive facility--the Zhang Legacy Collections Center. You've seen the WMU Homer Stryker M.D. School of Medicine launched and the finishing touches put on a new affiliation with Thomas Cooley Law School.

You've watched our faculty and staff develop a comprehensive strategic plan that guides our commitment to being learner centered, discovery driven and globally engaged. And, more changes are on the way--a new residence hall at the center of campus, a renovated East Hall that will become your alumni center and a renewed commitment to healthy living as we join the ranks of other forward-thinking campuses this fall by going tobacco-free.

Our commitment to growth and innovation is always driven by the fact that we owe it to our alumni--you--to continue to enhance the value of degrees have earned today.

And while transformative change has happened to your University, you, too, have been changing. You've become well versed in your chosen field. Your life has been enriched by the arts, the humanities and social sciences. Your study abroad experiences and your international friendships have given you a glimpse of the challenges and opportunities the world faces.

Choose your next steps wisely and well. Share the knowledge you have gained here to enrich the lives of those around you. Remain an eager learner for the rest of your life. Read, listen carefully for the wisdom of others, reach beyond what you know for new possibilities, and before making any big decision, do your homework.

And now if I might be so bold, let me offer ten simple tips for living:

1. Exercise each and every day. It's good for the heart, mind and soul!
2. Be kind to others – be purposeful in your desire to help others

3. Give thanks each and every day – there is much to be thankful for
4. When you make mistakes, and you will, say, “I’m sorry.”
5. Practice humility – acknowledge others for their contributions
6. Go to funerals – show respect for the dead and the survivors
7. Never say never – be persistent in all things
8. Protect the earth – leave it a better place for those who follow
9. Practice moderation – in all things
10. When everything is crazy (and there will be days), remember to “keep calm and carry on.”

You are now alumni of this great University, Your studies here are complete, you are finished or as we like to say, “Consider it Dunn.”

You will, however, always be a part of us. Stay connected, stay tuned, stay in touch, and always, Go Broncos!”

And now, please enjoy the slide presentation prepared for you and remember the good times, the people, places and things from your years here at Western Michigan University.”

(Platform party remains seated and views slide presentation from monitors on the stage)

(Slide Show- Music by Professor Steve Zegree)

President Dunn: “In closing, I would like to thank many people who work very hard to make this commencement ceremony meaningful and memorable for you.

Thank you to Derek Pothoff and the brothers of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia; Professor Steve Wolfinbarger and the Western Brass Ensemble; Professor Steve Zegree, pianist for the slide production. Thanks also to the commencement committee; and the many people who work behind the scenes and contribute so much to our commencement.

And finally graduates, thank you for all that you have given to us and for all that you will be giving to society in the years to come. Make your mark on this world, fulfill your dreams and always remember those who helped to make this all possible for you!

May you enjoy happiness, peace, and good health.

At this time the Brothers of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia will present the Alma Mater of Western Michigan University. After their performance, the Alma Mater will be repeated, at which time, all of you are invited to sing. Please rise for the Alma Mater and remain standing until the platform party leaves the stage.”

ALMA MATER

Western, we sing to you Brown and Gold
Western, we bring to you faith untold,
You challenge and inspire,
Your hope is our desire,
We sing to you our Alma Mater, Brown and Gold
