Committee presents recommendations on East Campus

The University should maintain the buildings and land on its East Campus, recognizing that to do so will require "many millions of dollars," the report of a study committee has recommended.

The report also recommended that the University "should continue its commitment to the Vine neighborhood and consider further avenues of cooperation with other institutions to address the revitalization of a significant residential neighborhood."

The committee was appointed last fall by President Haenicke in anticipation of the move of the Haworth College of Business from East Campus to its new building on West Campus in the fall of 1990. He posed several questions to the committee, to which it responded in the report.

"The East Campus, on perhaps one of the best locations in the area, dominates the western skyline of Kalamazoo, a symbol of the bond between Western Michigan University and the city of Kalamazoo," said L. Michael Moskovis, associate vice president for regional education and economic development and chairperson of the study committee, in an introduction to the report.

"The buildings are large and attractive, though dated," he said in presenting the report to the Academic and Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees on Sept. 15. "They are useful, both because of what they are and what they can be."

In addition to responding to questions from Haenicke, the committee also considered suggestions from others interested in the future of the East Campus and several proposals of its own.

The University's 24-acre East Campus includes historic East Hall, WMU's first building, which was occupied in 1905. Other structures include West, North and Walwood halls, the Speech, Hearing and Language Center and an upholstery shop.

A 1988 appraisal report placed the market value of the land at $341,000 or about $14,000 per acre with the buildings razed. The land and buildings together were valued at about $1.5 million.

The committee did not attempt a comprehensive plan for the buildings nor consider financial schemes.

"But clearly many millions of dollars will be required to renovate and maintain the existing East Campus buildings and land," the report stated. "Therefore, the most persuasive argument for selling the property is to avoid this cost."

However, the committee recommended against any sale of the property. The committee also recommended that:

- The offices of alumni affairs and development, including those of the WMU Foundation, should be relocated to Walwood Union and a plan developed for the use of Walwood Hall.

- The University should consider relocating University Archives and the Regional History Collections to North Hall and attempt to restore the two-story reading room located in the original library building.

- The University should consider a "theme approach" to the rest of East Campus, which could be art and include art and design instruction, gallery and storage space, and exhibit areas.

- The University should consider an "administrative theme," housing several administrative units, if an art theme is not possible.

- The University should consider the restoration of the Olmsted landscape plans for the East Campus in the spirit of the original design by J.C. Olmsted, a member of the nation's leading landscape architectural firm at the time.

"The East Campus presents both an opportunity and a challenge to preserve Western's heritage," Moskovis said. "The ultimate use of the East Campus will make long-term differences on both campuses.

"The complex nature of the issues demands a detailed plan, which this report is not," he continued. "A core of University administrators, faculty members and consultants will be needed to consider these recommendations -- and perhaps others -- and prepare a plan of action."

"The true value of this report," he concluded, "may lie in its ability to encourage and guide others in determining the future of the East Campus."

The other members of the study committee were Andrew A. Brogowicz, marketing; John R. Cooley, English; and Patricia B. Viard, consumer resources and technology, all members of the Faculty Senate's Campus Planning Council; and Patricia J. Marvin, a representative of the Vine Street Neighborhood Association.

The committee interviewed more than 50 persons, met with several student, faculty and staff groups, held a public forum and responded to many letters and telephone calls, Moskovis said. It began its work in December 1988 and completed its report in June 1989.

The report now goes to Haenicke for his consideration upon his return to the University from elective heart bypass surgery.

Nominations due Dec. 31 for 1990 faculty award

The Distinguished Faculty Scholars Committee is seeking nominations for that award for 1990. Nominations may be made by any member of the University community, including retirees, from now until Sunday, Dec. 31.

Up to three of the awards, which are based on outstanding professional achievement, are made each year. Each winner receives a $2,000 honorarium and a recognition plaque. Recipients also are invited to present a lecture, exhibition or performance for the University community.

All current, continuing Board-appointed persons with faculty rank are eligible, including part-time as well as full-time faculty. Nominees must have at least five academic years of service to the University, and individuals may receive the award only once.

Accomplishments of the nominees may be artistic, historical, literary, philosophical, scientific or technical in nature. Wide recognition by the academic community beyond WMU is essential.

Nomination forms have been distributed on campus. For more information, persons should contact Alicia J. Yeagley, Office of the Provost, 7-2380.

Cole begins alumni breakfast series

Richard T. Cole, president of the Michigan Education Trust, will be the speaker at a breakfast for WMU alumni and friends on Tuesday, Sept. 26, at the Kalamazoo Center.

He will discuss the trust during the event, which is part of a year-long series of six programs sponsored by WMU and its Alumni Association. All will begin at 7:30 a.m. and conclude at 8:20 a.m.

Cole, who serves as president of the MET on a voluntary basis, is an associate professor of advertising at Michigan State University. A 1969 WMU graduate and the recipient of a Distinguished Alumni Award, he also is a communications and management consultant to several state businesses, associations and organizations. Previously, he served as chief of staff and as press secretary to Gov. James J. Blanchard.

The emcee for the program will be Richard Y. St. John, a member of the WMU Board of Trustees and manager of community relations for the Upjohn Co.

Other programs scheduled for this year are:

- "The Class of 1994: How Things Have Changed!" with Stanley E. Henderson, admissions and orientation, on Tuesday, Oct. 24, at the Fetzer Center;

- "Contemporary Business Ethics" with Raymond E. Alie, management, on Tuesday, Nov. 28, at the Kalamazoo Country Club;

- "WMU and Economic Development: An Emerging Role" with Richard T. Burke, vice president for regional education and economic development, on Tuesday, Jan. 23, at the Kalamazoo Center;

- "Intercollegiate Athletics' Academic Game Plan" with Jeffrey A. Stone, intercollegiate athletics, on Tuesday, Feb. 27, at the Fetzer Center; and

- "The Positive Impact of WMU's Research Activity" with Donald E. Thompson, vice president for research, on Tuesday, March 27, at the Kalamazoo Country Club.

The cost for the continental breakfast is $5. Persons are encouraged to make reservations by calling the McKee Alumni Center at 7-6179.

APA plans tailgate before Sept. 30 game

The Administrative Professional Association is sponsoring a tailgate party before the WMU vs. Eastern Michigan University football game Saturday, Sept. 30.

Refreshments will be served beginning at 11 a.m. between Ebert Field and Hyames Field near Waldo Stadium.

The cost is $9 per person. That includes a game ticket, reserved parking and refreshments. Persons who have season tickets may pay only $3 for the refreshments.

To make reservations, persons should call Joyce L. DeRight, College of Education Office of Admissions and Advising, 7-3479.

Day at the races.....

Competitions ranging from grape stomping to bed racing were among the events featured in "Kickoff Kalamazoo/Welcome Back, WMU Day," a community celebration that took place Sept. 13. Despite the cold and rainy weather, representatives of the University and the community joined in the activities, which were designed to encourage students, faculty and staff to patronize downtown businesses. ABOVE: From right, WMU representatives Joe Gagie, executive director of public relations and communications, and Thomas E. Coyne, vice president for student services, call for a timeout during the grape stomp to protest some questionable tactics employed by The New City representatives Mike Schau and Donovan Kindle. The downtown team was using a hose to increase the amount of grape juice flowing from its barrel. All Gagie got for his trouble was a squirt from the illegal implement. SURPRISE VISITOR -- President Haenicke, left, surprised members of the Board of Trustees by making an appearance at the Budget and Finance Committee meeting Sept. 15. Haenicke, who underwent double heart bypass surgery Sept. 5, is greeted here by Carol A. Waszkiewicz of Kalamazoo, chairperson of the Board. He was discharged from Bronson Methodist Hospital on Sept. 11 and continues to recuperate at home.

Williams approved as associate dean in engineering

Molly Wells Williams, a WMU faculty member since 1973, has been named associate dean for research and graduate education in the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences.

Her appointment, effective Aug. 21, was approved Sept. 15 by the Board of Trustees. She replaces Robert M. Wygant, who had been serving as interim associate dean.

"Dr. Williams will have major responsibility for facilitating the research and graduate programs of the college," said Dean Leonard R. Lamberson, engineering and applied sciences. "Over the last year, the faculty has secured more than $1 million in contract research. We expect continued growth in research funding in the future."

Williams has been a faculty member in the Department of Mechanical Engineering. She was a visiting professor at the University of Michigan in 1985-86 and has served as a part-time research scientist for the Upjohn Co. in Kalamazoo. She is a registered professional engineer in Michigan and has been active as a resource person and role model in the area of women in engineering.

The author of numerous publications, Williams' most recent research has been in the field of tribology -- the study of friction and wear. Under a National Science Foundation grant, she has conducted research aimed at improving the understanding of the processes that contribute to the wear of sliding surfaces in machinery. This past spring, Williams was one of two faculty members honored by the Michigan Association of Governing Boards.

The Board also approved the appointments of two interim department chairpersons. John W. Dobbs was named interim chairperson and Martin Luther King Jr./Cesar Chavez/Rosa Parks Visiting Professor in the Department of Educational Leadership. William J. Stiefel was appointed interim chairperson of the Department of Mechanical Engineering.

Dobbs, whose appointment was effective Aug. 15, replaces Uldis Smidchens, who had been serving as interim chairperson. Since 1986, Dobbs has served as executive director of the Urban Education Alliance at Eastern Michigan University.

Between 1983 and 1986, Dobbs was superintendent of schools in Hempstead, N.Y. For 11 years before that appointment, he was assistant superintendent for school and community affairs in the Michigan Department of Education.

His stint at WMU, which runs through June 30, is under the auspices of the Martin Luther King Jr./Cesar Chavez/Rosa Parks Program, an initiative of the Michigan Legislature designed to increase the supply of minority faculty members available to post-secondary education.

Stiefel, who is a registered professional engineer, has been a WMU faculty member since 1964. He replaces in mechanical engineering M. Jerry Kenig, who had been serving as chairperson of that department and of the Department of Aircraft and Automotive Engineering. At the meeting, the Board accepted Kenig's resignation, effective Aug. 20, to become dean of the College of Engineering at the University of New Haven in Connecticut.

The trustees also approved the appointment of James R. Sanders, educational leadership, as associate director of the Evaluation Center, effective Aug. 21.

A WMU faculty member since 1975, Sanders has been devoting half time to his teaching duties and half time to work in the Evaluation Center. With this new appointment, he will be devoting full time to Evaluation Center projects.

In addition, the Board approved the retirement with emerita status of Margaret M. Sanders, chairperson of business information systems, effective Jan. 2, 1990. A faculty member since 1977, she has served as chairperson of the department since 1984.

The Board also approved these title changes: Clifford Davidson, from professor of English to professor of English and medieval studies; and Thomas Seiler, from associate professor of English to associate professor of English and medieval studies. Both are effective Aug. 21 and are intended to more accurately reflect the faculty

Drive named for Dennis W. Archer

The drive in front of the Bernhard Center will now be called "Dennis W. Archer Drive." That action was approved Sept. 15 by the Board of Trustees.

"The Epsilon Xi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha proposed to the administration that the drive be named for Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer," said Chauncey J. Brinn, vice president for development and administrative affairs. "I am pleased to support their request and recommend the Board of Trustees take this naming action."

Archer is a 1965 WMU graduate and a member of that fraternity.

"The fraternity members are very proud of the fact that Justice Archer is one of their fraternity brothers and a distinguished WMU alumnus," Brinn continued. "His accomplishments and his exemplary work for our state are an inspiration for all of us, but especially for all students at WMU. The University would be pleased to honor one of its most successful and prominent alumni in this fashion."

This is not the first time Archer has been honored by the University. He was awarded a Distinguished Alumni Award in 1982 and an honorary doctor of laws degree in 1987. A former attorney specializing in personal injury cases, Archer was named to the state Supreme Court by Gov. James J. Blanchard in 1985. He has been a leader in state and national bar associations.

Grants up 30 percent over last July's total

The University received $358,501 in grants and $92,570 in gifts during the month of July, according to reports presented to the Board of Trustees at its Sept. 15 meeting.

With the close of the 1988-89 fiscal year June 30, the University recorded a record-breaking $9 million in grants received during the year. The new July grant total starts the 1989-90 fiscal year off with a first month's total that is 30 percent higher than last July's total.

Among notable awards received during the month was a renewal grant of $84,359 from the U.S. Department of Education to support the second year of a three-year project to generate employment opportunities for blind and visually impaired persons. The project, called TEST CORE (Technical and Employability Skills Training for Competitive Occupational Related Employment), is a collaborative effort by the WMU Department of Consumer Resources and Technology, the WMU Department of Blind Rehabilitation and Mobility, the Michigan Commission for the Blind and the Calhoun Area Vocational Center.

Also received in July was a $68,987 renewal grant from the Southwest Michigan Library Cooperative to the University libraries. It supports WMU's role in the inter-library loan service that is available to the cooperative's member libraries through Waldo Library.

The July gift total included $70,331 in gifts made to the WMU Foundation and $22,239 in cash.

Cash gifts to the University included $5,850 from the Berrien Community Foundation to the Center for Science Education. The gift helped support an Operation Physics summer workshop that was conducted for 15 Berrien area science teachers by an Operation Physics training team that is based at the WMU center. Operation Physics is a national initiative sponsored by the National Science Foundation. Its goal is to enhance upper elementary and middle school teachers' understanding of physics concepts and to provide those teachers with ideas for effectively teaching the concepts to students.

members' educational backgrounds and experience.

In addition, the trustees approved a change in title for Norman C. Greenberg, from dean of international education and programs to senior adviser to the president for international affairs, effective Aug. 4. In this role, he will report to President Haenicke on the planning and implementation of new initiatives in the international arena.

The Board also accepted these resignations: John F. Bobalek, paper and printing science and engineering, effective Aug. 21; Jatinder S. Duggal, engineering technology, effective July 17; Robert C. Haight, business information systems, effective Aug. 20; and Neil Opfer, engineering technology, effective Aug. 2.

The trustees also approved a professional development leave for Daniel L. Stufflebeam, Evaluation Center, from June 1, 1990, to Aug. 31, 1990.

Board sets meetings dates, OKs other measures

The Board of Trustees Sept. 15 approved nine meeting dates for 1990.

All are on Fridays: Jan. 19; March 16; April 27; June 29; July 27; Sept. 21; Oct. 19; Nov. 16; and Dec. 21. No meetings are scheduled for February, May or August.

In other action, the Board approved a resolution authorizing the transfer of property on which the new building to house the Haworth College of Business and the expansion of Waldo Library are being constructed from the University to the State Building Authority. Law requires that projects funded by the SBA be owned by the SBA so it can sell bonds to finance the construction. The statute also provides the SBA authority to lease the site back to the University during the term of bonded indebtedness and to transfer the title of the property back to the University after the bonds have been paid off.

The Board also approved a resolution authorizing the University to establish an account at Bank One-Sturgis, which has a branch office in the Bronco Mall on the lower level of the Bernhard Center. The account will enable Bank One to administer WMU's Bronco Card, a debit card students can use to make purchases at many businesses in the Bernhard Center.

In addition, the trustees approved a resolution allowing the University to borrow $200,000 on an interest-free basis from the Mid-American Conference to cover the costs of adding seats at Waldo Stadium. Over the summer, 5,000 seats were installed in the stadium, bringing its capacity to more than 30,000. The improvements were needed to help preserve the MAC's Division I-A status in football. The University plans to pay back the five-year loan out of increased gate revenues in athletics.

The Board also authorized the purchase of properties at 823 Rankin and 713 Buckhout. The properties, located near the Haworth College of Business building on West Campus, will become part of perimeter parking to accommodate increased traffic when the college moves from its East Campus location in 1990. Funds for their purchase will come from parking system revenue.

Fulbright, foreign study grant applications due

The 1990-91 competition for grants for graduate study abroad offered under the Fulbright Program and by foreign governments, universities and private donors will close Oct. 31. Application forms and more information is available from Howard J. Dooley, international affairs, 2090 Friedmann Hall, 7-3958.

'Historical Research on Women in Education' to be focus of seminar and March publication

A free seminar titled "Historical Research on Women in Education: Discovering People and Perspectives" is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 29, at the University.

Sponsored by the Women's Center, the program is designed to stimulate interest and assist writers in preparing articles for a publication that will be printed during Women's History Month in March.

The seminar will begin at 10 a.m. in Red Rooms B and C of the Bernhard Center with a keynote address by Nancy Hoffman, dean of academic services in the Graduate School of Education at Harvard University. She will speak on "Hearing the Extraordinary in the Familiar: Interpreting Women Teacher's Lives." Hoffman is the author of the book, "Woman's 'True' Profession: Voices from the History of Teaching."

Two afternoon sessions on historical research will be directed primarily toward students, faculty members and other persons interested in submitting an article for the publication.

A workshop on "Oral History: How and Why" is scheduled for 1 to 2:15 p.m. in 210 Bernhard Center. The second session, which will focus on resources available at WMU and local libraries and archives as well as offer tips on historical writing, is set for 2:30 to 3:45 p.m. in the same room.

Afternoon speakers will be: Mary H. Cordier, education and professional development; Gwendolyn E. Etter-Lewis, English; William K. Smith, University libraries and archives and regional history collections; Catherine Larsen, Kalamazoo Public Library; Barbara S. Havira, history and Women's Studies Program; and Lewis H. Carlson, Bruce M. Haight and Peter J. Schmitt, all history.

No reservations are needed to attend the morning or afternoon sessions. Lunch is optional for $8 and by reservation only. Persons should make a check payable to the Women's Center and send it by Friday, Sept. 22, to the center, A-331 Ellsworth Hall. Persons with questions may call 7-2990.

The publication to be printed in March is titled "The History of Women in Education in Greater Kalamazoo." Organizers are seeking articles that provide a historical look at the impact women of Southwest Michigan have made in leadership roles in education.

The original articles written by adults can be based on oral histories or diary selections as well as library, newspaper or archival research. Topics must reflect the regional history of the six counties in the greater Kalamazoo area.

Articles are due Monday, Dec. 11, for editorial review. Writers should keep the length of their submissions between 750 and 1,500 words, and are encouraged to provide photographs and captions when possible.

To encourage student participation, organizers will award $50 each to six area college students for articles selected. Students should speak with faculty members about submitting their articles as semester projects.

Persons should mail or deliver their articles to the Women's Center at the above address. In addition to the Women's Center, the publication is being sponsored by the Women's History and Research Network, an association of researchers from area colleges and the community.

School of Social Work schedules luncheon

The School of Social Work will conduct its orientation and luncheon for field instructors from 12:15 to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27, in the West Ballroom of the Bernhard Center. This annual program provides an opportunity to thank field instructors for their service to the school.

The featured speaker at the luncheon will be Anthony J. Grasso, director of the Boysville Institute in Southfield. He will speak on "Integrating Administration, Program Evaluation and Direct Practice in Human Service." The luncheon is by invitation only.

ABLE ASSISTANT -- After working for 10 years in community mental health, Evelyn J. Freemire came to WMU so she'd have a better chance of advancement. She began as a receptionist in the Counseling Center four years ago and is now an administrative assistant, but isn't so sure about her plans to move up. "This is such a good place to work," she says. "I just haven't found another office I would like to work in as well." She assists the director of the Counseling Center and other staff members. Her duties include scheduling meetings, handling the payroll and supervising clerical employees. Freemire enjoys her work in the center, which provides personal and educational counseling for students. She says she believes the professional counselors with whom she works have played an important role in keeping many students in school. "The students get a lot of help here," she says.

Landscaping project under way near Bernhard Center

Landscaping and related construction has begun on a project to enhance the public space bounded by the Bernhard Center and Bigelow, Ellsworth and Hoekje halls.

Robert M. Beam, vice president for business and finance, reported on the project at the Sept. 15 Board of Trustees meeting.

The space includes a large parking lot that serves the Bronco Mall, the new retail facility on the lower level of the Bernhard Center. The mall includes three restaurants, a computer store, a travel agency and a bank.

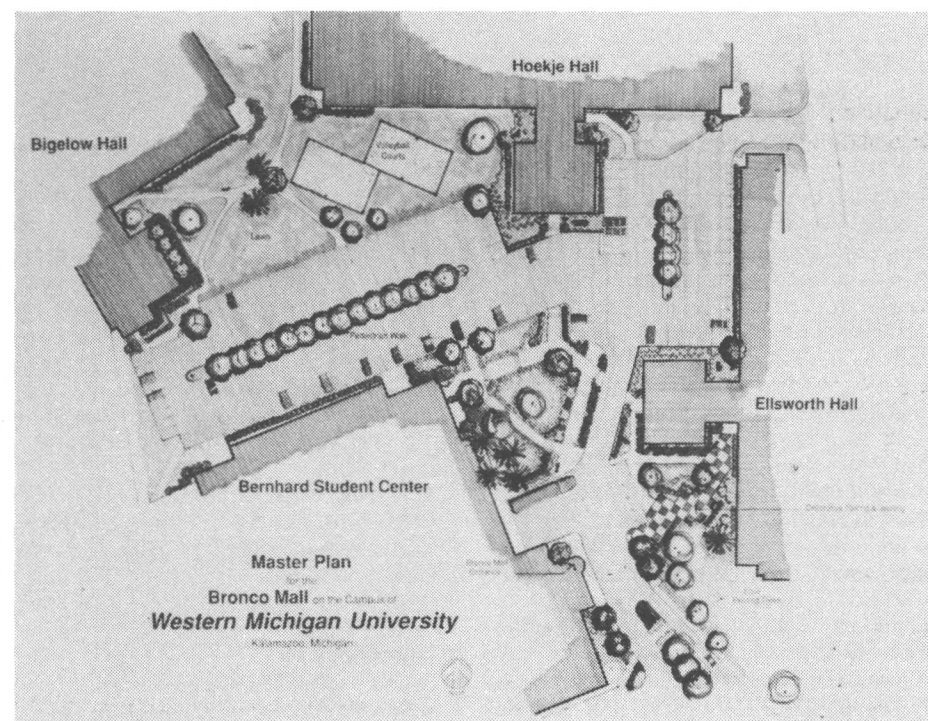

The project, which provides for extensive landscaping throughout the area and several new sidewalks, has three major centers:

- A courtyard between Bigelow and Hoekje residence halls that includes new sidewalks and two volleyball courts;
- A terraced area with timber retaining walls at the rear of the Bernhard Center with a sidewalk that leads from one part of the parking lot to an area near the mall entrance; and

- An enlarged walkway with outdoor benches located at the west entrance of Ellsworth Hall that leads to a new crosswalk to the Bernhard Center and additional benches for outdoor seating. This is a route used by persons going between the Bernhard Center and the University's only parking structure through Ellsworth Hall.

"These improvements, which will cost about $350,000, will benefit students who live in Bigelow and Hoekje halls, everyone who works in or visits Ellsworth Hall and everyone who uses the Bronco Mall and the Bernhard Center," Beam said.

"The project is intended to enhance public parking in the area," he continued. "But, clearly, it demonstrates that we can build a parking lot and improve the space that surrounds it significantly.

"This project has been a high priority of our president, Dr. Diether H. Haenicke," Beam said. "It reflects his commitment to what might be called the aesthetic unification of the campus."

In addition, the project includes an underground sprinkler system, storm-sewer modifications and additional lighting, said L. John Goes, operational services, who is coordinating the project.

"Virtually all of the existing trees in the area were saved and a large number of new trees will be planted, including a bank of trees down the middle of both parts of the parking lot," he said.

The project was designed by Solutions Unlimited Inc. of Kalamazoo, landscape architects, and used all local contractors, Goes said. The project, which is being paid for from parking system revenues, is expected to be completed by the end of October.

WMU selected to offer graphic arts institutes

WMU is one of four universities with graphic arts programs chosen to offer one-week institutes for entry-level sales representatives, sales managers and marketing managers.

Arizona State, Clemson and Drexel are the other universities offering the institutes, which will begin in September and take place throughout the year. The programs are sponsored by the Graphic Arts Sales Foundation.

WMU's Department of Paper and Printing Science and Engineering has worked closely with the paper and printing industries for many years. It is the only facility in the world with both paper and printing pilot plants on the same campus. The department offers a variety of annual conferences on topics of interest to industry.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS AGAIN -- The public cafeteria in the Bernhard Center re-opened for business Sept. 11 with a new look and some new menu features. The dining room has been remodeled in greens and mauves. There are new furnishings, floor coverings, lights, window treatments and live plants. The renovation of the dining room this summer coincided with the remodeling of the serving line. That area was enlarged and new equipment was installed. The new line is enabling the cafeteria to offer, besides main dishes, a soup and sandwich bar. In addition, a salad bar that formerly was located in the dining room has been incorporated into the line.

Campus sexual harassment seminar scheduled

Debbie, a college senior, is asked by a professor to join him for dinner and drinks. She refuses, but later finds that her papers for his class are getting very low marks and she is in danger of failing.

The above is an imaginary scenario, but the Women's Center wants to help prevent real incidents of sexual harassment from occurring on campus and in the community.

The Women's Center is sponsoring a seminar called "Perspectives on Sexual Harassment on Campus" from noon to 12:45 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 28, in Red Rooms A and B of the Bernhard Center.

The seminar will focus on the legal, ethical and psychological perspectives of sexual harassment. Participants will learn how to address concerns about sexual harassment and what their rights are.

"Sexism and sexual harassment are prohibited at WMU," says Darlene R. Mosher, Women's Center, who is directing the seminar. "Nevertheless, any person can be a victim. It is important for students and employees to know what sexual harassment is and what they can do about it."

Barbara S. Liggett, associate vice president for human resources, and Louise S. Forsleff, associate vice president for student services, will present information on sexual harassment and offer advice to students and staff members.

Participants will be asked to form roundtable discussion groups headed by WMU facilitators, who will provide legal and personal advice. The facilitators are: David A. Glenn and Jewell M. Street, affirmative action; Keith A. Pretty, vice president for legislative affairs and general counsel; R. Vincent Green, associate to the general counsel; and G. Gwen Raaberg and Mosher, Women's Center. Michael L. Smith, news services, will serve as moderator.

Following the group discussion, Liggett and Forsleff will respond to questions from the audience.

Chandler gets 1989 state Liberty Bell Award

Ralph C. Chandler, political science, has been selected as the recipient of the 1989 Liberty Bell Award by the State Bar of Michigan. He will be honored Friday, Sept. 22, during the State Bar's 54th annual meeting in Lansing.

Chandler

The award is presented each year to a non-lawyer Michigan resident who has made a significant contribution to the betterment of the community through the legal process, or whose actions have furthered the understanding of our justice system and the rights of individual citizens.

The statewide honoree is selected from among those who have received the award from a local bar association. Chandler also was the recipient of this year's Kalamazoo County Bar Association's Liberty Bell Award.

Chandler has shared his expertise in Constitutional government with the community through a variety of efforts. He wrote a six-part series for the Kalamazoo Gazette to inform readers of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. He wrote the script for "When Eagles Gathered," a drama presented at the University last year which documented events surrounding one of the key debates that led to the ratification of the Constitution.

He also helped organize last fall's race relations conference sponsored by WMU and the Kalamazoo Gazette. In addition, he has written three books on the Constitution with U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen and Peter G. Renstrom, political science.

Clysdale among six slated for Athletic Hall of Fame

J. Patrick Clysdale, health, physical education and recreation, is among six former WMU athletes who will be inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame during ceremonies Sept. 29-30.

Clysdale

Clysdale recently retired after serving as associate athletic director for 13 years to join the faculty. Earlier, he had been acting athletic director in 1980-81, assistant athletic director from 1968-76, administrative assistant from 1966-68 and assistant basketball coach from 1959-66.

As an undergraduate, he lettered in football and in basketball in 1949 and 1950. Clysdale earned All Mid-American grid honors in 1949, catching seven touchdown passes that year to match the third highest season total in school history. He was captain of the football team in 1950.

The other inductees are: 1920s football and tennis player Fred Zuidema; 1940s multi-sport athlete and college athletic administrator Ray Louthen; 1950s baseball player Tom Cole; 1970s men's basketball star Paul Griffin; and 1970s women's basketball and softball standout Ann Kasdorf. Established in 1973, the WMU Athletic Hall of Fame now includes 78 members.

Expert on religions to speak

Luther H. Martin, professor and chairperson of the Department of Religion at the University of Vermont, will speak at WMU Monday, Sept. 25, as part of the Visiting Scholars Program.

His address, titled "Religion and Dream Theory in Antiquity," will begin at 3:30 p.m. in 3770 Knauss Hall.

Martin is an expert on Hellenistic religions -- those practiced by Greeks at the time of the birth of Christianity. He will discuss his interest in whether modern theories about dreams can apply to the religion of the ancient Greeks.

A founder of the North American Association for the Study of Religion, Martin is the author of a number of books and articles for professional journals. His books include "Essays on Jung and the Study of Religion" and "Hellenistic Religions: An Introduction." He is the editor of Historical Reflections, an international scholarly journal.

Martin's visit to campus is being coordinated by the Department of Religion. The Visiting Scholars Program was established in 1960, and has provided nearly 400 visits by scholars representing some 65 academic disciplines. The Visiting Scholars Committee is chaired by Judith Stone, history.
