
Fall 1966

Comes Tomorrow

Christi Benson
Western Michigan University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/calliope>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Benson, Christi (1966) "Comes Tomorrow," Calliope (1954-2001): Vol. 14 , Article 12.
Available at: <https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/calliope/vol14/iss1/12>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the English at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Calliope (1954-2001) by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact wmu-scholarworks@wmich.edu.

When

What is it that causes thoughts to come
Unbidden at the strangest time
Pleading for expression?
And, if suppressed, where do they go?
Do they seek another's voice or eye or hand
To give them birth?
Or, helpless, drift lost-like about the earth?

Comes Tomorrow

I wonder if somewhere in a shadow world
There are wraiths of unborn poems,
Galleries of paintings forever left undone,
Misty archives deep-rowed with books unwritten,
Mute music, wordless songs all silent, unheard,
unsung.

Do these aborted things wait to be full born,
Or, once neglected, are they ever after dead,
Lost throughout all time, all space
Because we left them unexpressed, unseen, unsaid?

Christi Benson