from Ohio State University, followed by Richard Keeling, president of the world. Statistics show the number of AIDS were diagnosed in the United States will be the focus of a teleconference to focus on AIDS on campus.

The ethical questions and policy issues. At 8 p.m. Thursday, he will lecture on "The Joy of Recovery: How Do I Know If I Am Getting Better?" in the North Ballroom of the Bernhard Center. This address is free and open to the public.

He also wrote "Perfect Daughters: Adult Daughters of Alcoholics," published by Health Communications of Deerfield Beach, Fla., this fall. His seminar on Friday will focus on current research on children of alcoholics as well as other research on children of alcoholics. He was a member of the first graduating class of WMU's Specialty Program in Alcohol and Drug Abuse (SPADA) in 1977. He went on to earn a doctoral degree in sociology from WMU in 1979. The chairperson of the Mid-Atlantic Alcohol Training Institute in Pittsburgh, he has served as an adjunct clinical professor for SPADA since 1983. He was a founding board member of the National Association of Children of Alcoholics and currently serves on its executive board and as the research editor of its newsletter. Branch was the recipient last year of the Distinguished Faculty Award for Research from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of numerous articles for professional journals and seven other books, including "Abused No More: Recovery for Women from Abusive or Co-Dependent Relationships," published this year by TAB Books Inc. of Blue Summit Ridge, Pa. He has made a host of presentations across the country and, in 1988, appeared on NBC's "Today Show." In addition to SPADA and the Visiting Scholars Program, Ackerman's fall address is being sponsored by the Kalamazoo County Human Services Department.

A nationally known expert on children of alcoholics, Ackerman has written two recent books on the topic. He will present two events at WMU. Each is a seminar open only to WMU faculty and students, and reservations at the above number are requested. Titled "Perfect Daughters and Other Research," it will run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday in the Red Rooms of the Bernhard Center. It will be followed by a reception and book signing ceremony in the President's Dining Room of the center.

Ackerman, a professor of sociology at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, is the author of "Children of Alcoholics," which was published in a second edition by Simon & Schuster of New York City in 1987. In his first talk, he will present an overview of the recovery process for individuals growing up in alcoholic homes. He also wrote "Perfect Daughters: Adult Daughters of Alcoholics," published by Health Communications of Deerfield Beach, Fla., this fall. His seminar on Friday will focus on current research on children of alcoholics as well as other research on children of alcoholics.

The exercise is a simulation game entitled SIMSOC--short for Simulated Society. The workshop A cross section of about 50 WMU this fall. It will be expected to actively participate in the simulation game, he added.

Teleconference to focus on AIDS on campus

The ethical questions and policy decisions that administrators face due to the alarming increase of AIDS on college campuses will be the focus of a free teleconference on Thursday, Nov. 16, at WMU.

AIDS in the College Community: From Crisis to Management is scheduled for 1 to 5 p.m. in the Red Rooms of the Bernhard Center. The program will consist of a three-hour live interactive teleconference emanating from Ohio State University, followed by a discussion by the WMU AIDS Task Force on the issues of AIDS at institutions in Kalamazoo. In 1988, more than 66,000 cases of AIDS were diagnosed in the United States with an estimated 150,000 cases worldwide. Statistics show the number of AIDS cases on college campuses is increasing rapidly.

During the teleconference, a nationally recognized panel will offer insights into how AIDS affects their fields of expertise. One of the panels will be Richard Keeling, president of the American College Health Association and chairperson of its Committee on AIDS. The panel will also include representatives from student affairs, legal and health services, campus housing and the medical community, as well as a person with AIDS.

The panelists will discuss the issues that must be faced as a result of the AIDS crisis on campuses. Case studies will be examined and possible solutions to the problems will be developed.

The teleconference is targeted at persons in diverse areas of the college community. Representatives from housing, legal, health, academic and student affairs are encouraged to participate.

The program is being presented by the National University Teleconference Network and the OSU residence and dining halls, in association with the American College Health Association, the American College Personnel Association, the International Association of College and University Housing Officers and the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators.

Persons are requested to register by calling the Office of Conferences and Personnel Administrators.

Haenicke proposes plans for MLK observance; discusses race relations and budget with Senate

President Haenicke has called on the University community to observe the Jan. 15 holiday commemorating the birth of the late Martin Luther King Jr. - not with a day off but with discussions on race relations in classes that meet that day.

"I have been asked to close the University in honor of Dr. King," Haenicke told the Faculty Senate Nov. 2. "I have refused. I have other plans.

"Instead of providing an opportunity for many students to sleep in and then go shopping at the malls, I propose that we participate to the problems will be developed.

On campus

LEARNING THE LAY OF THE LAND - Lauri G. Needham says she's learned a little bit about geography and a lot about how the University works in her four years at WMU. She was a secretary for one year in the Department of Telecommunications and has worked as an administrative secretary in the Geography Department since November 1986. Needham was elected to the Tanzanian Parliament in 1980.

Her talk is being sponsored by WMU's Office of International Affairs, African Studies Program, Department of Geography and Lee Honors College, as well as the Kalamazoo College African Studies Program.

Economic Discrimination: A Bonanza of Opportunities is the title of a 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16, in 3750 Knauss Hall. The free talks are part of the WMU Department of Economics' 26th annual lecture-seminar series on "The Economies of Discrimination." A lecturer at the Solvay University of Agriculture in Tanzania from 1974 to 1980 and a consultant to the United States Agency for International Development in Africa from 1980 to 1981, Needham was elected to the Tanzanian Parliament in 1980.

The program was produced by media services.

Human Resources

Thanksgiving holidays ahead

WMU offices, except those designated in the campus applications, will be closed Thursday and Friday, Nov. 23-24, in observance of Thanksgiving holiday. Normal hours of operation will resume at 8 a.m. Monday, Nov. 27.

Christmas closure dates set

The 1989-90 Christmas holiday/closure period for non-bargaining unit employees will be Tuesday, Dec. 26-14.

The select offices that will continue operations Tuesday through Thursday, Dec. 28-30, of the closure period are listed here. Non-bargaining employees required to work during the closure period receive their regular pay for the work time. They will be given alternate work time and will also be serviced.

The appropriate vice president of each unit will determine the number of employees required to work in order to maintain adequate service levels during the closure period. AUAUP, AFSCME and police bargaining unit employees have holiday work schedules designated by their labor agreements.

persons with questions should contact their vice president, or the Department of Human Resources at 7-3620.

Zest for Life

The WMU-Zest for Life Corporate Olympic team is now recruiting for the 1990 YMCA Community Corporate Olympics scheduled for Sept. 19-22. If you did not participate in 1989 and would like to be involved in 1990 or would like more information, call the Zest for Life office at 7-3762 as soon as possible.

Volleyball will be added to the list of events next year so, we are looking for volleyball players as well as players for other sports.

The other events to be included are short- and long-distance running, race walking, time- predicted walking, time-predicted biking, tug-o-war, cheerleading, banner making and spirit.

The final results from the 1989 competition are now official. The honors for the four WMU teams earned include: third overall in Division IV; first in banner making; first in men's 4x100 relay race; third in the women's 4x400 relay race; second in the women's 4x400 relay race; third in the men's 4x400 relay race.

Zest for Life members may register as a team or as an individual. Registration fee is $2 per person. All registration fees are donated to the University of Akron and the University of Michigan to support the YMCA Community Corporate Olympics.

Participating on the WMU-Zest for Life Corporate Olympic team is a great opportunity to gain valuable physical fitness, company pride and team-building activities.

"We had a very good discussion," Haenke said. "That doesn't mean we agreed on every point. But at least our discussions may lead to clearer understanding of where each of us is coming from, which I hope will eventually improve relationships on all levels."

Haenke also pointed to the Race Relations Institute, which he said would begin operations in January, as a forum for discussion in addition to formal academic settings. "It will enable us to talk about the things that need to be talked about," he said.
