Winning the excitement of the fans is the goal of Western Michigan University's 1989 football season. WMU's March 30, 1989, edition of the WHERE WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY NEWS features an article about the forthcoming season by Gwen Frostic, who writes about the importance of season tickets and how returning fans can spread the word to encourage others to purchase their tickets.

The article highlights the camaraderie and support that fans feel during the season, with a particular emphasis on the role of friends and family in encouraging each other to attend games. Frostic notes the benefits of season tickets, such as the ability to lock in your preferred seating, exclusive access to pre-game events, and the opportunity to support the team throughout the season.

The article also features quotes from Dan Summy, the athletic director, who expresses his enthusiasm for the upcoming season and the potential for the team to improve and excel in the coming months. Summy emphasizes the importance of season ticket sales in supporting the football program and ensuring the long-term success of the team.

In sum, the article serves as a preview of the upcoming football season and a call to action for fans to purchase season tickets and spread the word to their friends and family. The emphasis on the collective experience and the support of the WMU community makes for an engaging read, encouraging readers to feel a part of something bigger than themselves.
WMU joins group to promote volunteer students

Student volunteerism at the University and in the state is getting a big boost with the establishment of the Michigan Compact. The purpose of the compact, which Western is a member, was announced at a news conference March 29 in East Lansing.

Dean Faith Gabelnick, Honors College, participated in the news conference as the University's liaison to opportunities fair this fall with the help of the Voluntary Action Center.

"Plans include volunteer opportunities for students in the fall as part of the Voluntary Action Center," Gabelnick said. "It will bring campus dozens of agencies in the Kalamazoo area to talk with students about their potential volunteering activities.

This winter, the Honors College has sponsored an additional group, "Leadership and Community Service: Preparing to Make a Difference." It was attended in part by grants from the National Collegiate Honors Council and the Kalamazoo Consortium for Higher Education.

"The Honors College is taking the lead on this important issue," Gabelnick said. "We need to promote specific volunteer opportunities around campus, and, through a course in the Honors College, we hope to educate students about the programs in the area where students may volunteer their time and skills.

"We are working to promote the concept of leadership and community service among students," Gabelnick said.

The Michigan Compact, initiated in May 1988, is affiliated with Campus Compact, a national organization with the Education Commission of the States in Denver. The national organization was founded in 1985.

The Michigan Compact has been awarded with a three-year grant of $444,000 from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek. It is based on a similar Compact receiving $125,000 for the news conference took place. Its mission is "to help Michigan's colleges and universities create and support programs that engage students in meaningful and sustained community service.

Shakespearean expert to speak on the works of plays

William Shakespeare will give two presentations Wednesday, April 5, in 107-107 Bernhard Center.

Felicia Londre, a faculty member at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, will discuss "Shakespeare on Stage" at 9 a.m. In addition, she will discuss "The Emergence of Society on the Soviet and World Stages" at 4 p.m.

Holocaust memorial planned

The worldwide commemoration of the Jewish Holocaust, which has claimed the lives of its 6 million victims will be commemorated locally with two events Wednesday and Thursday, April 5-6.

The commemoration will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday when an introduction to a series of public musical performances, readings and reflections, "at the Steps of the National Holocaust," will be followed by a reception and an audience discussion with the performers.

The local commemoration is being sponsored by the five institutions of higher learning in the Kalamazoo area, including WMU, and the Jewish Federation.

Public presentation set on multiple intelligences

"The first in a series of public presentations to go with the cable television series on "Multiple Intelligences," which is part of the "Multiple Intelligences for the Classroom" project, will air at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 2, and at 10 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, on Kalamazoo Community Access Television Channel.

Student volunteerism at the University and in the state is getting a big boost with the establishment of the Michigan Compact. The purpose of the compact, which Western is a member, was announced at a news conference March 29 in East Lansing.

Dean Faith Gabelnick, Honors College, participated in the news conference as the University's liaison to opportunities fair this fall with the help of the Voluntary Action Center.

"Plans include volunteer opportunities for students in the fall as part of the Voluntary Action Center," Gabelnick said. "It will bring campus dozens of agencies in the Kalamazoo area to talk with students about their potential volunteering activities.

This winter, the Honors College has sponsored an additional group, "Leadership and Community Service: Preparing to Make a Difference." It was attended in part by grants from the National Collegiate Honors Council and the Kalamazoo Consortium for Higher Education.

"The Honors College is taking the lead on this important issue," Gabelnick said. "We need to promote specific volunteer opportunities around campus, and, through a course in the Honors College, we hope to educate students about the programs in the area where students may volunteer their time and skills.

"We are working to promote the concept of leadership and community service among students," Gabelnick said.

The Michigan Compact, initiated in May 1988, is affiliated with Campus Compact, a national organization with the Education Commission of the States in Denver. The national organization was founded in 1985.

The Michigan Compact has been awarded with a three-year grant of $444,000 from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek. It is based on a similar Compact receiving $125,000 for the news conference took place. Its mission is "to help Michigan's colleges and universities create and support programs that engage students in meaningful and sustained community service.

Shakespearean expert to speak on the works of plays

William Shakespeare will give two presentations Wednesday, April 5, in 107-107 Bernhard Center.

Felicia Londre, a faculty member at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, will discuss "Shakespeare on Stage" at 9 a.m. In addition, she will discuss "The Emergence of Society on the Soviet and World Stages" at 4 p.m.

Holocaust memorial planned

The worldwide commemoration of the Jewish Holocaust, which has claimed the lives of its 6 million victims will be commemorated locally with two events Wednesday and Thursday, April 5-6.

The commemoration will begin at 8 p.m. Wednesday when an introduction to a series of public musical performances, readings and reflections, "at the Steps of the National Holocaust," will be followed by a reception and an audience discussion with the performers.

The local commemoration is being sponsored by the five institutions of higher learning in the Kalamazoo area, including WMU, and the Jewish Federation.

Public presentation set on multiple intelligences

"The first in a series of public presentations to go with the cable television series on "Multiple Intelligences," which is part of the "Multiple Intelligences for the Classroom" project, will air at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 2, and at 10 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, on Kalamazoo Community Access Television Channel.
Fenton named 'Woman of the Year'

Mary Frances Fenton, 76, professor, and professional development, has been named woman of the year by WMU, a special recognition on the status of women.

Fenton directs the faculty group at the Fetzer Center. She will receive the award at a luncheon at 11:30 a.m. today in the West Ballroom of the Bernhard Center. Seven nominees for the award include Marietta M. Muhle and Carol A. Waszkiewicz, faculty members of the math department. A member of the faculty since 1966, Fenton has been a distinguished member as an educator, researcher, artist and women's advocate. She has taught numerous courses in women's education and women's studies, often focusing on the effects of sexism in society.

Fenton was a graphics consultant for the nationally recognized 1974 slide-tape presentation, 'Sex Bias in Children's Textbooks,' which gave impetus to publishers to change their portrayal of women in books.

As a biographical/historical researcher, she has investigated the role of women in art, education and the community. She has written extensively on the life and works of WMU's native daughter, an American sculptor. Most recently, she served as project chairperson of 'The History of Western Michigan University Education in Kalamazoo, a tabloid sponsored by the Kalamazoo County Education and Research Network and published, supplemented by a supplement to the Feb. 27 Western Herald. Fenton's interest is in studying about women's roles in inter-college sports. American Indian cultures and museums.

Fenton's concern for women's issues also is reflected in her art. Her works have appeared in numerous women's art exhibitions, and her sculpture, 'Bronco,' was designated as representing women as the first distinguished alumna Merle Tate. In February 1983, Fenton was one of the first women in the Matrix, the first feminist art group in Kalamazoo.

Since her retirement, Fenton has been working on her current project, 'The History of Western Michigan University Education in Kalamazoo, a tabloid sponsored by the Kalamazoo County Education and Research Network and published, supplemented by a supplement to the Feb. 27 Western Herald. Fenton's interest is in studying about women's roles in inter-college sports. American Indian cultures and museums.

Fenton's concern for women's issues also is reflected in her art. Her works have appeared in numerous women's art exhibitions, and her sculpture, 'Bronco,' was designated as representing women as the first distinguished alumna Merle Tate. In February 1983, Fenton was one of the first women in the Matrix, the first feminist art group in Kalamazoo.

Fenton's career also is characterized by long-standing efforts to support various women's advocacy groups. In 1972, she became a member of the Commission on the Status of Women. For 10 years, she has served as the commission's mentor to faculty and staff women pursuing grievances procedures relative to women's issues and practices. In addition, she has provided legal and organizational and affirmative action committees on both the University and state levels.

Missy N. Higgins, who will be honored are: Susan Creighton, St. Andrew's School; Diana A. Hines, senior majoring in social work from Kalamazoo; Doris J. Moore, College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, who is vice president of the Clerical/Techni-

42 to be honored as Presidential Scholars

President Haase will give the address at a 1989 Presidential Scholars Convocation Thursday, April 6, at the Fetzer Center. Forty-two seniors will be honored as Presidential Scholars. The award, the university's highest honor to a senior majoring in social work from Kalamazoo; Doris J. Moore, College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, who is vice president of the Clerical/Techni-

Greenberg selected for teaching recognition program

"Professor Greenberg" describes an article on the life and work of WMU alumna Malvina Hoffman, an American sculptor. The latter was designed to provide easier access to women's studies materials in the WMU libraries for those persons interested in knowledge and research on women. Greenberg is known for her research, especially at beginners who might feel overwhelmed with finding such materials.

"Dr. Greenberg's approach has been to encourage students to develop an enhanced self-concept through expanding their knowledge base and improving their critical thinking and communication skills," the nomination letter said. "She not only motivates, she assists her students in acquiring the means to achieve."".

Jobs

The listing below is currently being posted in the university's employment office. Interested regular full-time or part-time employees should submit a job application for employment opportunities available during the posting period.

(R) Assistant Professor (Temp., 1-Year Position), 1-30, Social Work, 88/89-39/40, 324-43/49.
(R) Director (Executive Officer), Parking Services and Operations, 88/89-39/40, 324-43/49.
(R) Vehicle Dispatcher, 88/89-39/40, 324-43/49.
(R) Replacement WMU is an EEO/AA employer.
Evaluation (Continued from page 107)

so they become fiscally viable, well managed corporations with clearly defined goals. The second objective is to turn the involvement of the community in the work of the corporation.
To achieve this, members play an active role in development decisions. The third objective is to help the corporations do an effective job in developing, marketing and maintaining the re teal estate.

"Our overall research objective is to monitor each corporation to see how much improvement there is in meeting these objectives," Stufflebeam says.

To do that effectively, he says, the Evaluation Center team must study and record information about the environment in which each corporation operates. The effects of such variables might include interest rates, grant availability, city politics, city planning, crime, the pressures of gentrification are all operated. The effects of such variables as interest rates, grant availability, city politics, city planning, crime, the pressures of gentrification are all operated. The effects of such variables as interest rates, grant availability, city politics, city planning, crime, the pressures of gentrification are all operated. The effects of such variables as interest rates, grant availability, city politics, city planning, crime, the pressures of gentrification are all operated.

AAUP LEADERSHIP Officers for this year's WMU chapter of the American Association of University Professors are: (seated from left) George S. Miller, education and professional development, president; Phillip P. Caruso, economics, vice president; (standing from left) James VanDePolder, engineering technology, treasurer; and Richard G. Cooper, occupational therapy, secretary.

The chapter's next meeting is at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, April 13, in 205 Bernhard Center, second floor, Schubert Administration Building, 3 p.m.