Senate approves revised policy on political activities

The Faculty Senate May 11 approved a revised policy on visits by political candidates, the posting and distribution of literature and canvassing that provided added protection of First Amendment rights and academic freedom. The revised language of the document, called the "Political Activities Policy," makes it clear that the policy does not apply to visits of political candidates or organizations that were invited to speak by faculty members in their classes. It also clarified the procedure by which student organizations may wish to sponsor the visit of a candidate or its representatives. Authority to sponsor the visit of a candidate or its representatives is vested in the Senate. The policy states that candidates be invited to speak to the recognized student organization and places responsibility for making all arrangements for the visit with that organization. The policy notes, for example, that materials may not be distributed in academic facilities, including classrooms, "except for materials distributed by those individuals who have been invited by a professor to speak in an academic setting." The policy sets out guidelines for the posting materials and for the distribution of literature and canvassing that provided added protection of First Amendment rights and academic freedom. It states that, because of limited space, "any poster or handout must be registered with the Office of Student Life and may not be posted "on lawns, trees, buildings, a telephone pole, fire hydrants, parking meters, trash cans, public signs in any athletic stadium, or on campus." Forfival flyers are limited in size to 14 by 22 inches and can be posted only on bulletin boards provided by the University for the purpose of posting. The policy declares that "literature distributed by those individuals who have been invited by a professor to speak in an academic setting," the fieldhouse or adjacent parking lots is prohibited." Escorted canvassing in University residence halls is limited to 6 to 9 p.m. weekdays and noon to 5 p.m. weekends.

The policy goes to President Haeselick and then to the Board of Trustees for final approval. It was first discussed by the Board in January and then by the Senate during its March meeting, when the Senate asked that the policy be reviewed for academic freedom and First Amendment rights. In other action, the Senate approved a series of changes in its own bylaws that, among other things, limits the service of the standing and committee chairpersons to no more than three consecutive one-year terms. Another change calls for a review of the standing and committee chairpersons to no more than three consecutive one-year terms. Another change calls for a review of the Senate's Budget and Finance Council such as personnel, laboratory space, equipment, library and other media resources, and graduate assistantships and fellowships.

Fourteen faculty members were approved for tenure. Eighteen faculty members were approved for tenure by the Board of Trustees April 21. The appointments are effective with the beginning of the 1989-90 academic year.
