

Board of Trustees to meet Friday

Approval of the 1984-85 general fund budget and the capital outlay budget for 1985-86 are on the tentative agenda for the next regular meeting of the Board of Trustees at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 19, in the Student Center.

Academic and non-academic personnel reports, the monthly gift and grant report, a resolution on Proposal C and a report on international student services also are on the tentative agenda.

Special Board meeting set

Chairman Alfred L. Edwards has called a special meeting of the Board of Trustees for 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in the Board Room of the Student Center.

Chauncey J. Brinn, secretary to the Board of Trustees and vice president for University relations, explained that the Board intends to go into executive session for the purpose of discussing collective bargaining.

Sara Swickard open house

Faculty and staff are invited to attend an open house at the Sara Swickard Preschool, 1211 Knollwood, from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19.

Talks may resume Oct. 24

Negotiators for the University and the AAUP faculty union are tentatively scheduled to resume collective bargaining at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 24, with State Mediator George Rickey.

Both parties bargained for 8½ hours last Friday night (Oct. 12) and for 9½ hours last Sunday (Oct. 14). Mediator Rickey was present for both sessions.

Western Network to meet

A program on "The Microcomputer: Discover Its Potential and Yours" will be presented at the meeting of the Western Network for the Advancement of Women at 11:45 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 18, in the Faculty Dining Room of the Student Center.

Elizabeth McLaughlin, of Grosse Ile, vice president for Stryker Association P.C. and owner of a microcomputer consulting business, will speak. She will cover: how to overcome fear of computers; what opportunities exist in the computer field; and how to manage the new technology.

ROTC members receive national award

Members of Western's Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) unit received one of eight special performance awards being presented by the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) during its annual meeting this week in Washington, D.C.

Western's student AUSA company, comprised of ROTC cadets, took top nationwide honors in AUSA's "best activities to assist the ROTC unit" competition during the 1983-84 school year. During the year, the student AUSA company devised a program describing ROTC for presentation to summer orientation students. The program, developed by Sharon L. Schmidtke, a Schoolcraft junior, was implemented during the summer of 1984.

Schmidtke joined eight other Western ROTC cadets and two faculty members at

Proposal C 'dangerous, sinister,' Bernhard declares

Describing Proposal C as "dangerous, sinister and ill-conceived," President Bernhard last week joined several of his colleagues in higher education in urging its defeat by voters Nov. 6.

The proposal, a proposed constitutional amendment on the Nov. 6 general election ballot in Michigan, would roll back state and local taxes to 1981 levels. It would require a four-fifths vote by the appropriate legislative body or a majority of voters to reinstate or increase them.

"The devastating effects of Proposal C would be immediate," Bernhard said at a news conference in Grand Rapids last Thursday, noting that the proposal would take effect within 90 days. "The state would have to cough up at least $700 million immediately out of this year's budget."

"This would result in a series of executive-order budget cuts that Gov. Blanchard would have to issue, and it would be devastating to all of the social services of the state," Bernhard said. The loss to higher education would be at least $80 million, and to Western $3.8 million to $4 million immediately.

In addition, Proposal C would:

- Eliminate the gasoline tax, which is helping to rebuild the state's roads and bridges at a rate faster than they're wearing out for the first time in 10 years.
- Repeal unemployment compensation reform, designed to improve the state's business climate.
- Repeal the cigarette tax, which is easing the state's critical cash-flow problems.

PROPOSAL C—"Dangerous, sinister and ill-conceived," is how President Bernhard described Proposal C at a news conference last week in Grand Rapids. The proposal's impact would be "immediate and devastating."

- Repeal the quarter-percent income-tax surcharge that is helping reduce the state's debts.

Arend D. (Don) Lubbers, president of Grand Valley State College, noted that tuition at the state's 15 public colleges and universities was frozen at last year's levels. "If Proposal C were in effect, we estimate that tuition rates would have had to increase by an average of $415 a student."

Lubbers noted that state income taxes already have been rolled back 21 percent and 16 percent last year and this year, respectively, and 1981 levels will be reached in three years or before, if the state's economic performance continues to improve.

Philip Ward, president of Glen Oaks Community College and president of the Michigan Community College Association, said that the state's 29 community colleges would face a loss of $28 million in local taxes and another $11 million in state support.

Bernhard establishes task force on Proposal C

President Bernhard has established a joint University task force on Proposal C representing all of the University's internal constituencies, including the AAUP, APA, AFSCME, CTO, Faculty Senate, Graduate Student Association, Residence Hall Association and Western Student Association.

The task force, chaired by Michael J. Matthews, public information, has among its charges the dissemination of information on the "disastrous effects" of Proposal C, the proposed amendment to the state constitution on the Nov. 6 ballot. The proposal would roll back state and local taxes to 1981 levels, "crippling higher education and the state's economic recovery," Matthews said.

The task force is making available a program on Proposal C that includes a brief slide tape presentation to any group that wishes to schedule it. To schedule the program, persons may call Matthews at 3-0981.

Five to be honored for teaching excellence Oct. 25

Alumni Teaching Excellence Awards will be presented to five faculty members at the fifth annual Academic Convocation Thursday, Oct. 25.

Also honored at the convocation, which will begin at 3 p.m. in the Dalton Center Recital Hall, will be recipients of the Distinguished Service and Distinguished Faculty Scholar awards.

Presented annually by the WMU Alumni Association, the teaching excellence awards are given to Western faculty members displaying superior classroom teaching skills and professional expertise. Each award includes a $1,000 stipend.

This year's honorees are: Raymond E. Alie, management; Clara L. Gamble, dance; Jack L. Michael, psychology; Steven C. Rhodes, communication arts and sciences; and David L. Rozelle, accountancy.

Recipients were selected by an Alumni Association committee, which sought nominations from current juniors and seniors, academic department chairpersons, association members and others. Sterling L. Breed, counseling center, a past president of the Alumni Association and the chairperson of the teaching excellence awards committee, will present the awards.

More than 80 faculty members have received the award since it was instituted in 1966. No more than five faculty members are named to receive the award each year.

A member of the Western faculty since 1979, Alie also has served as an administrator at Kalamazoo College, as an instructor and administrator at Nazareth College and as an administrator at Longwood College in Farmville, Va. As well as his teaching duties at WMU, he is a consultant for Management Planning, Inc., of Grand Rapids. He is the vice president of the Kalamazoo Academy board of trustees and is a member of the board of directors of the Kalamazoo Institute for Human Resource Development.

He earned his doctoral degree from Western and his bachelor's and master's degrees from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va.

Gamble has taught physical education and dance at WMU since 1965. She currently teaches modern dance, kinesiology and choreography. Prior to coming to Western, Gamble taught physical education at Southwest Texas State University and at Oklahoma State University. Her choreographic works have been seen by local, regional and international audiences.

She earned a master's degree from the University of North Carolina and a bachelor's degree from Alabama College.

Michael joined the WMU faculty in 1967. He also has taught at Arizona State University, the University of Houston and the University of Kansas. He has served as president of the Association for Behavior Analysis and of a division of the American Psychological Association. Michael has won an American Psychological Foundation distinguished teaching award and has been honored as an American Psychological Association master lecturer. Articles by Michael have appeared in numerous scholarly publications.

Michael earned bachelor's, master's and

FOUNDATION FELLOW—Robert E. White, U.S. ambassador to El Salvador under the Carter administration, spoke to local media representatives at a news conference Monday during his visit here as a speaker on the WMU Foundation Fellowship program. When asked at the conference what he thought was the most misunderstood thing about El Salvador and Central America, White replied, "The most misunderstood thing is the fiction that revolution is imported from Moscow and Havana. These revolutions in Central America are home-grown, authentic and we would be facing exactly the same situation in Central America whether the Soviet Union existed or not." While on campus Monday and Tuesday, White gave a major public address, spoke to classes and met with faculty, staff and students.

Two experts to be visiting scholars Oct. 24

Experts on social welfare administration and on communications theory will be at Western Wednesday, Oct. 24, as speakers on the WMU Visiting Scholars program.

Rino J. Patti, professor of social work at the University of Washington, and Nelson M. Blachman, senior scientist with GTE Communications Products Corp., Mountain View, Calif., will be giving a series of talks throughout the day.

Patti will be a visiting scholar in the School of Social Work and the Center for Human Services. He will speak at 10 a.m. on "Social Welfare Administration in a Developmental Context" in the Fetzer Center; at 2 p.m. on "Environmental Intervention in Social Work" in the Fetzer Center; and at 7:30 p.m. on "In Search of Purpose in Social Welfare Administration" in 3750 Knauss Hall.

A consultant and trainer in a variety of health and human services organizations, he was one of 20 scholars/administrators selected for a special conference sponsored by the Silverman Foundation to formulate analyses and plans for social services that would produce recommendations to the Carter administration.

Patti recently has published two texts, "Change from Within" and "Social Welfare Developmental Context."

Blachman will be a visiting scholar in the Department of Electrical Engineering. He will speak at 8 p.m. on "An Historical Introduction to Information Theory" in 2750 Knauss Hall.

A doctoral recipient and former researcher at Harvard University, he also has worked at Brookhaven National Laboratory in Upton, New York. Before joining GTE in 1954, he was a staff member of the mathematical sciences division of the U.S. Office of Naval Research in Washington, D.C., where he administered the program of supported research in computers and mathematics.

In addition to being a senior scientist at GTE, Blachman also is currently a consultant on statistical communication theory. From 1958-60 and 1976-78, he took leaves of absence from GTE to do scientific liaison work in electronics as a staff member of the London Branch of the U.S. Office of Naval Research. In addition, he has taught at Stanford University in the off-campus programs of the University of Maryland and the University of California and under the Fulbright program in Madrid, Spain.

The WMU Visiting Scholars program was established in 1960 and has provided more than 315 visits by scholars representing some 65 academic disciplines. Visiting Scholars Committee members are appointed by the vice president for academic affairs.

Patti's visit is being coordinated by Edward J. Pawlak, social work, while Blachman's visit is being arranged by S. Hossein Mousavinezhad, electrical engineering. The WMU Visiting Scholars Committee is chaired by James J. Bosco, education and professional development.

Alumni Association elects new officers at meeting

Allen C. Emmons, a 1965 graduate of WMU now living in Grand Rapids, has been elected 1984-85 president of the WMU Alumni Association.

Officers and members of the board of directors were elected at the annual meeting of the association on campus Friday, Oct. 5, during Homecoming weekend.

Emmons is treasurer of The Universal Companies in Grand Rapids. He succeeds Alan C. Coe of Warren, Ohio, who served for two years. Emmons served as treasurer of the WMU Alumni Association in 1982-83, and as its vice president in 1983-84. He is a life member of the association.

Other officers of the association elected to one-year terms were: Keith A. Pretty, a 1973 graduate, who was elected vice president. He is an attorney with Standard Oil Co. in Lansing; and Richard G. Carlson, a 1971 graduate, who was elected treasurer. He is a partner in Touche Ross & Co. in Chicago.

Newly-elected to three-year terms on the association's board of directors were: Lorraine Beebe, a 1932 graduate, of Kalamazoo; Michael C. Dallas, a 1971 graduate, of Eaton Rapids; David E. Robinson, a 1951 graduate, of Ypsilanti; Georgia Vam Adestine, a 1978 graduate, of Jackson; and Emily Word, a 1977 graduate, of Battle Creek.

Suzanne Geha Merpi, a 1973 graduate, of Grand Rapids, was re-elected to another

Center for Women's Services hosts open house

"Hats Off to You" will be the theme of an eighth anniversary open house sponsored by Western's Center for Women's Services (CWS) from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25, at the Oaklands.

Besides celebrating the anniversary of the establishment of the center in 1976, guests will be able to preview a new CWS television documentary and a booklet on nontraditional jobs for women, and meet women working in nontraditional careers. Exhibits showing past accomplishments and future plans of the center will be displayed.

Dorothy McCuskey, president of the CWS advisory board and WMU professor emerita of educational leadership, will be honored for her years of service to the center.

The CWS offers career counseling, a library, an information and referral service on women's issues, workshops and a speakers' bureau. The center has expanded its services considerably since its formation, and this year offers workshops on career planning, time and money management, returning to school and political power. All programs and services are available to both men and women.

The documentary to be shown for part of the evening features Kalamazoo-area residents working in nontraditional careers: Sharran Calvert, a boiler inspector; Reta J. Corsi, a housing inspector; and Stella R. Fricano, a refrigeration specialist. The film was produced by Alice Foote and directed by John Dill.

The new booklet to be presented at the open house, titled, "Hard Hats, Boots and Goggles," looks at nontraditional jobs for women, especially minorities. It profiles 10 women, including the three women from the documentary, in their careers: Nanci Zeran, a carpenter; Trudith Rogier, a plumber; Rosemary McAllister, a production worker; Dawn Koziol, a police officer; Sue Ellen Block, a fork lift driver; Marjorie Lightfoot, a customer service representative; and Cora Lee Davis, a tool and die maker.

Many of the profiled women will be present at the open house. The project staff for the booklet included Allene Dietrich, project director; Alice Foote, project manager; Pat Sulier, interviewer-writer; Judy Stewart, editor; and Mary Witkowski, editor. Funding was provided by the City of Kalamazoo and WMU.

Hats representing jobs of the past and present also will be displayed at the open house, along with exhibits describing the center's services and programs. Refreshments will be served and the event is free. For more information, persons may visit or call the center in A-331 Ellsworth Hall, 3-6097.

Students participate in Espanol Bowl here

Spanish students representing seven area high schools participated in the Third Annual Espanol Bowl at Western Sept. 18 and 20. Sponsored by the Department of Languages and Linguistics, the unique event was conducted in the Brown Hall auditorium.

"What separates the Espanol Bowl from the usual language tournament is the fact that students do not really compete against each other or other schools," said Robert J. Griffin, languages and linguistics and the master of ceremonies for the event. "Each student is sponsored and will receive pledges in varying amounts for every correct answer. The money thus earned will be used to defray the expense of a trip to a Spanish-speaking country next year."

Second and third year Spanish students from Allegan, Athens, Battle Creek Lakeview, Comstock, Hackett Catholic Central, Parchment and Vicksburg high schools participated in Espanol Bowl.

"The idea was masterminded by local teachers who meet regularly on their own time to discuss problems and projects of mutual interest. They were seeking a solution to the challenge of energizing the review period necessary at the beginning of the second and third years of language study. When tried on an experimental basis in 1982, it was found that the prospects of participating in the Espanol Bowl provided a wonderful incentive for all students and a very special reward to those taking part," Griffin said. "It would appear that the Espanol Bowl is now a tradition that will be carried on for many years to come."

three-year term on the board of directors. State Sen. Robert A. Welborn, a 1965 graduate, of Kalamazoo, was re-appointed by President Bernhard to another three-year term as the presidential appointee on the board.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Western News, Office of Public Information, Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, MI 49008.

Western News is distributed without charge to faculty and staff members, emeriti faculty members, members of the Parents Association and other friends of the University including students, who may obtain copies at several campus locations.

Deadline: Items to be considered for publication should be submitted to the Office of Public Information by noon Tuesday of the week of publication. Offices that receive too many copies—or too few copies—are asked to call 383-0981. WMU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution.

Student, staff member chosen for workshop

A student and a staff member were chosen to participate in a special basic radio production training workshop for Latinos this week in Philadelphia.

Nitza Carrillo, a senior from Grand Rapids, and Miguel A. Ramirez, assistant director of minority student services, were selected to participate in the training project which is funded by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. It was conducted by Western Public Radio, a non-profit production and training company based in San Francisco.

Carrillo attended her workshop Oct. 15-16, while Ramirez attended Oct. 18-19. Only 10 applicants from states east of the Mississippi were selected for each workshop.

Carrillo and Ramirez received hands-on training in the radio production process at Toucan Productions in Philadelphia.

Carrillo, who is majoring in communication arts and sciences at WMU, is president of Western's chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho, the national broadcasting society. She is past president of the WMU Hispanic Student Organization, and this past summer was an intern at WOTV, channel 8, in Grand Rapids.

She also is a newscaster at WIDR, the student-oriented radio station at Western, and has been a reporter for "Community Voice/La Voz," a bi-monthly publication in Grand Rapids.

Ramirez is a 1978 graduate of Western and has worked here since 1980. He is director for the Alma Latina radio program aired on WMUK, the University's public radio station, and is advisor to the WMU Hispanic Student Organization. He is a member of the Midwest Latino Council on Higher Education.

Emeriti

Emeriti faculty members and associates are invited to take advantage of a mature driving course to be offered Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 31-Nov. 1.

Titled "55 Alive/Mature Driving," the course will be presented from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday and from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 2:30 p.m. Thursday, in 211 Student Center.

The classes will be taught by trained volunteer instructors. The course fee is $7 per participant. For more information and registration, persons may call Dic Leonardelli at 382-1539 or Hermann Rothfuss at 382-1208.

The course is sponsored by the National Retired Teachers Association, the American Association of Retired Persons and the WMU Emeriti Council.

The Office of Residence Hall Life is sponsoring a photography contest titled "Capture the Brown and Gold." The competition is open to all enrolled students and monetary prizes will be awarded to winners.

Shots must be on the campus, either with or without people, and must be entered by Friday, Nov. 16.

Entries must be color slides which must bear the name, address and telephone number of the photographer. Persons may make no more than two entries.

All entries will become the property of the Office of Residence Hall Life and may be used in promotional displays. First prize will be $25, second will be $15 and third will be $10.

Asylum Lake is the site of land improvement project

Historical restoration, recreation and youth employment are all being served through a land improvement project at Western.

The project, in the relatively undeveloped Asylum Lake area southwest of WMU's main campus, is a cooperative effort involving several University departments and the state-funded Michigan Youth Corps (MYC).

During the past two summers, about 23 acres of land in the Asylum Lake area have been cleared of brush and undergrowth by Western personnel and students and MYC workers. Cleared areas have been carefully mowed in an effort to control undesirable undergrowth and to aid the growth of prairie plants and oak saplings.

"This area is a prairie, in effect, underneath a canopy of oak trees," explained project director John T. Houdek, consumer resources and oak savanna. "This is what is known as an oak savanna. This project is giving us an opportunity to restore this area to its original condition—the condition it was in when the pioneers settled in this area in the 1820s and '30s."

"There's great interest nationally in historical restoration projects," Houdek continued, "and this is an unusual area. Oak savannas are not that common."

Clearing efforts have increased the area's recreational value. "It's now more attractive for joggers, hikers and cross country skiers," noted Houdek. "We hope to be able to mark out some cross country ski trails in the area in the near future."

Open to the public, the area is accessible through gates off Drake, Winchell and Old Colony roads.

The MYC crew clearing the area included as many as 12 workers during the months of July and August. A smaller number of MYC participants who range in age from 18 to 21 years old worked in the Asylum Lake area during the summer of 1983.

"This is a positive project for the MYC," said Paul MacNellis, grounds. "We've given youths an opportunity for summer work on a project with historical and recreational value. And during the summer, the MYC workers had opportunities to attend job skills workshops and learn about various careers."

The area under development was part of a 375-acre parcel of land transferred from the Michigan Department of Mental Health to WMU in 1975. At one time, several state mental hospital buildings stood on the restoration site. Other parts of the parcel have seen use over the years as cropland.

"The project grew out of a desire to spell out how this wooded area and the fields around it not being used for cropland would be used," said Houdek. "A plan was worked out by the WMU Department of Agriculture (now part of the Department of Consumer Resources and Technology) and the Department of Biology and approved by the Campus Planning Council. The restoration effort focuses on a part of the woods, while another part of the area will remain untouched. Another part is being used in a woodlot management course."

Houdek hopes to clear six-to-eight more acres of brush and undergrowth this coming summer and begin the next phase of the project.

"The next step, which will begin probably next year, is to plant seeds of many of the savanna plants that were once growing there. Biology and prairie restoration groups are going to be important to our efforts. They gather the seeds of some of these plants that are no longer present at our site. Re-establishing these prairie plants may take 15-to-20 years."

Historical vegetation maps of the area produced by WMU's Departments of Biology and Geography are being used as guides in the restoration effort.

"Eventually, the area will have a park-like appearance under the trees," said Houdek. "Some of the vegetation will be tall during the growing season and you'll see some unusual and attractive plants."

Houdek credited Robert W. Hannah, former WMU vice president for governmental relations, for being the driving force in getting the project started. "It simply wouldn't have happened without his support," Houdek said. Also lending considerable support and expertise to the project, according to Houdek, have been William J. Kowalski, assistant vice president for facilities engineering; Richard Phippen, chairperson of biology; and Chris Fox, a former WMU student who conducted extensive research in the Asylum Lake area while working toward a master's degree in biology.

Student journalists to be on campus tomorrow

More than 80 student journalists and their advisors from south-central and southwestern Michigan high schools will meet at Western Friday, Oct. 19, for a day of learning about journalism from teachers and practitioners.

The "Journalism Day" will be sponsored by the community journalism program, a section of the Department of English, and the Western Herald. Activities will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and most will take place in Brown Hall.

A highlight of the day will be a roundtable discussion with five working journalists from various media at 12:45 p.m. in 1114 Brown Hall. On the panel will be:

Suzanne Geha, anchorperson for WOTV, channel 8, in Grand Rapids; Richard Cole, press secretary for Gov. James J. Blanchard; Doug Durfee, managing editor of the Cadillac Evening News; Jacqueline Mitchell, reporter for the Kalamazoo Gazette; and Donna Christian, Kalamazoo freelance writer.

The panelists will describe their jobs to the students, and share insights on future job prospects in journalism. The discussion will be moderated by Tom Thinnies, reporter for the Kalamazoo Gazette and part-time journalism instructor at WMU.

The morning of "Journalism Day" will be filled with workshops on various subjects led by WMU faculty members and area journalists. The topics will include writing the news story, editorial and column writing, sports writing, headline writing, and copy editing, feature writing, photography, press freedom and censorship and managing the high school newspaper.

High school teachers and newspaper advisors will attend workshops on publishing the high school newspaper and press freedom and censorship within the school setting.

The high school journalists will have an opportunity to tour the Western Herald's facilities and to try out the newspaper's electronic text system. In addition, Western faculty members will offer critiques of high school newspapers and give suggestions for improvements.

The "Journalism Day" program is designed to teach the young journalists skills they can use to produce better high school newspapers. It also serves to acquaint them with the growing community journalism program at WMU. Although Western has offered journalism courses for many years, the community journalism emphasis was accepted as an academic major less than two years ago. Many WMU students also minor in journalism.

Chairperson for the event is Lois D. Matthews, assistant professor of English and former newspaper journalist.

Briefs

Faculty and staff are invited to a reception for international students to be from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19, in the Student Center cafeteria.

Moore named to position in social work

Beverly A. Moore, formerly foster care supervisor at Family and Children Services in Kalamazoo, has been named director of admissions and student services in the School of Social Work.

Moore earned a Moore bachelor's degree from Ohio State University and a master of social work degree from WMU. She is a member of the board of trustees of the Kalamazoo Public Schools.

Moore had worked in various capacities at Family and Children Services since 1980. Previously, she had worked in Washington, D.C., in the Department of Human Services and the Department of Human Resources.

doctoral degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles.

A member of the WMU faculty since 1975, Rhodes also has taught at Pennsylvania State University. He earned his master's and doctoral degrees from Pennsylvania State and his bachelor's degree from the University of Northern Colorado.

Rhodes has served as a consultant for the Michigan Department of Education and has written and spoken extensively on issues related to speech communication. He has served as an officer of the Michigan Speech Association and on committees and advisory councils of the Speech Communication Association and the Central States Speech Association.

Rozelle has taught history and accounting courses during a career at Western that began in 1970. During recent years, he also has served as a staff accountant for Ernst & Whinney and as a consultant for various small businesses. He is a vice president of the Greater Kalamazoo United Way and a member of the board of directors of the Kalamazoo Amateur Athletic Federation. He previously received a teaching excellence award at WMU in 1975.

Rozelle earned master's degrees from Western and Michigan State University and a bachelor's degree from the University of Toledo. He holds certificates in management accounting and public accounting.

Burian elected head of agency

Dean William A. Burian, health and human services, has been elected as president of the board of trustees of the Southwest Michigan Health Systems Agency.

The agency is responsible for developing comprehensive plans to improve the health status and health services of the eight-county southwestern Michigan area. It also is responsible for assuring quality control and cost containment through its action on proposals. Institutions and agencies in the eight-county area must seek the approval of this 35-member board for capital im-
