

MORE PARKING—This bulldozer is paving the way for 106 new parking spaces for Western students. The lot, located on the corner of Wilbur St. and Marion Ave. near the Fetzer Center, is for commuter students — those with "W" or "Z" parking permits, according to Lanny H. Wilde, director of public safety. It will be ready for the start of fall semester classes.

Board approves revised '83-84 budget

The Board of Trustees Friday, June 15, authorized the University's administration to revise the 1983-84 General Fund budget and to temporarily continue normal operations in 1984-85 under the authority of the 1983-84 revised budget. The University's fiscal year begins July 1.

The revised General Fund budget of $81,282,600 for 1983-84 includes a deficit of nearly $1.4 million, the second year a deficit has been reported. The original 1983-84 budget approved by the Board in September 1983 was $78,301,600, which included a deficit of $1 million.

"The deficit in the revised budget is somewhat larger than the one in the original budget because of the amount of funds being 'carried forward' by various units of the University, largely as one-time expenditures for important purposes," said Robert B. Wetnight, vice president for finance.

In related action, the Board approved an annual resolution permitting the administration to earmark unexpended building maintenance and repair funds in the 1983-84 budget for use during 1984-85. The same resolution permits earmarking unexpended funds in all other General Fund accounts that exceed the $1.4-million deficit for the same purpose.

"The resolution reflects the Board's continuing commitment to provide for the upkeep of the campus's physical plant as feasible within budget limits," said William J. Kowalski, assistant vice president for facilities engineering. "The list includes items that total $1.5 million, but the expectation is that we'd get to only the top few items."

The list is headed by a project to remodel space in Kehrman Hall to accommodate computer facilities for the computer-assisted design/computer-assisted manufacturing (CAD/CAM) system in the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences. The cost of that project is put at $40,000. Other projects include roofs, floors, ceilings, roads and equipment.

Wetnight said he expected that the deficit would be eliminated during the 1984-85 budget year as part of the two-year plan to eliminate the deficit that he reported to the Board of Trustees a year ago. "That expectation depends on the legislature providing the funding to Western that has been recommended by its various committees," Wetnight said.

"When I reported a deficit to the Board a year ago, which was the first deficit in Western's history, I told the Board that I wouldn't report such a deficit without a plan for its elimination. We're still on target with that plan."

The deficit occurred as a result of a number of executive-order budget cuts, the last of which came too late in the budget year to be absorbed, Wetnight explained. The deficit then was $1.1 million.

Wetnight said that the continuation approved by the Board today allows Western to meet payrolls and pay bills starting July 1 and until the state's 1984-85 budget is adopted; the Board then can approve an operating budget for the University for 1984-85.

Sharma named general studies chair

The Board of Trustees Friday, June 15, approved the appointment of Visho B. L. Sharma as chairperson of the general studies faculty in the College of General Studies.

Sharma, whose appointment was effective July 1, replaces Dale H. Porter, who will return to full-time teaching.

SHARMA

The Board also accepted the resignations of these other administrators: Robert W. Kaufman, director of the Center for Environmental Affairs, the Science for Citizens Center and the Institute for Public Affairs, effective July 1, to return to full-time teaching.

Robert B. Trader, chairperson of the Department of Marketing, effective Aug. 12, to return to full-time teaching; and Clyde R. Willis, director of the Center for Human Services, to become the dean of the College of Health and Community Services at Bowling Green State University, effective July 1.

Sharma has been a faculty member at Western since 1967, when he was a visiting professor. Since 1970, he has been the non-Western world course coordinator and a professor of social science in the College of General Studies.

"The addition of Dr. Sharma to the administration of the college will add considerable strength, and we're looking forward to having his many talents available to us in the coming years," said Nita H. Hardie, director of the integrated program in the College of General Studies.

The author of numerous papers presented at conferences around the world, Sharma has written nine books and manuals.

In other action, the Board approved the leaves of absence for these faculty members: Ruth M. Davis, health, physical education and recreation, from Aug. 13, 1984, to Aug. 23, 1985, to pursue professional objectives; Jaimy Gordon, English, from Aug. 13, 1984, to Aug. 12, 1985, to accept a fellowship at the Bunting Institute of Radcliffe College; Jack D. Jones, health, physical education and recreation, from Aug. 13, 1984, to Aug. 23, 1985, to pursue professional objectives; and Arthur R. McGurn, physics, from Aug. 13, 1984, to April 27, 1985, to do solid-state physics research at the University of Oregon.

Distinguished professor dies

Leo C. Stine, a faculty member in political science for 27 years and the author of "Western—A 20th Century University," died Tuesday in Little Rock, Ark. He and his wife, Margaret, were participating in an Elderhostel at Arkansas College in Batesville when he was stricken with a hemorrhage Friday.

STINE

Stine retired from the University in 1979 as a distinguished professor of political science. He joined the faculty in 1952. He was associate dean of the Graduate College from 1962 to 1969 and dean of continuing education from 1969 to 1977, when he returned to teaching as a distinguished professor.

He was acting director of the Center for Public Administration from July 1978 until his retirement. He had been a resident of Ocala, Fla., for the past three years and spent summers in Kalamazoo.

A memorial service is scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday at the First United Methodist Church in Kalamazoo. Donations may be made to a scholarship in Stine's name establishing a graduate fellowship in public administration, a program he helped to found, in care of the WMU Foundation, or to the Wesley Foundation.

Trader, long-time chair, to resign

The resignation of the longest serving chairperson of an academic department at Western was accepted Friday, June 15, by the Board of Trustees.

Robert B. Trader, the only chairperson of the Department of Marketing since it began, has resigned, effective Aug. 12, to return to full-time teaching. A replacement has not yet been named.

"During the years of Dr. Trader's leadership and service to the College of Business, the College has grown tremendously in size and quality of its programs," said Dean Darrell G. Jones, business. "Much of this growth is due to his participation and contribution."

Trader joined the faculty in 1951 as an assistant professor of general business. He was promoted to an associate professor of business in 1956 and to a professor of marketing in 1962 when he was selected to chair the newly-formed department.

A specialist in sales administration and in marketing research, Trader has served as a consultant for a number of local and national firms, and has conducted sales training and selection workshops on both levels.

He is past president and a member of the West Michigan Chapter of the American Marketing Association, and in 1982 received the chapter's "Distinguished Marketing Educator" award. He also is a member of the executive advisory board of the Midwest Marketing Association.

This past spring, Trader was named the recipient of the Aid to Advertising Education award by the WMU Ad Club, a student chapter of the American Advertising Federation (AAF). It is the highest honor that can be given by a college chapter of the AAF and is an opportunity for students to show their appreciation to an individual or organization for providing support to the chapter during the academic year.

Trader earned a B.S. degree from Indiana University, an M.S. degree from the University of Pittsburgh and an Ed.D. degree from Michigan State University.

Sandberg recognized by Guam

The Legislature of Guam has recognized John E. Sandberg, former dean of the College of Education, on his retirement as dean.

Sandberg's retirement became effective June 30 after 13 years as dean to serve as a tenured faculty member in the college. He came to Western in 1971 from a position as deputy director of the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory in Portland, Ore.

Under Sandberg's leadership, Western established a doctor of education degree program in educational leadership at the University of Guam, which operated between 1975 and 1978. Several of the college's graduates hold significant positions at the University of Guam, including its president, Jose Q. Cruz. He earned his degree in 1981.

Sandberg, who received Guam's Ancient Order of Chamorro for his work there while at the educational laboratory, was cited by the legislature for establishing the doctoral program and for his "outstanding support of the people of Guam."

Sandberg, a native of Washington state, holds bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from Washington State University.

As associate director, Ramsey will be responsible for planning and administering the programs of the Office of Faculty Development. These include a newsletter, the tuition subsidy program, numerous workshops and seminars, interinstitutional exchanges, the administrative internship program, faculty sharing, development support, and counseling for faculty on professional development needs. She also will chair the Faculty-Development Advisory Committee and work with departments and colleges in order to assist their development programs.
