

1995

a perfectly timed cliché

brian ewald

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/calliope>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

ewald, brian (1995) "a perfectly timed cliché," Calliope (1954-2001): Vol. 1995 , Article 29.

Available at: <https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/calliope/vol1995/iss1/29>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the English at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Calliope (1954-2001) by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact wmu-scholarworks@wmich.edu.

a perfectly timed cliché

the cliché rolled off my tongue like a wet cherry, and before i could snatch it out of the air, falling,
streaming a trail of cream behind it,
another slipped out,
and another,
and another,
and soon we were all wading in the red juices of false wit
and stolen idea;
and for this i was ashamed.
but they swam and drank it all in,
the tainted water,
the bittersweet blood,
and gave me congratulations -
for what i could not say;
all i had done was spit wet cherries into a room where dry cherries were much more common.

brian ewald