More than 350 persons attended a special open house last weekend at the School of Homesteading, located just north of Bangor, where Dr. Maynard Kaufman, WMU associate professor of religion, is supervisor. On display was an anaerobic digester that is under construction for producing methane gas from animal manure for use as household fuel.

Trustees Meet Friday

Personnel appointments, departmental name changes and a revised tenure policy are on the agenda for the monthly meeting of the Western Michigan University Board of Trustees to be held at 1:45 p.m. Friday, Oct. 18, here in the University Student Center.

DANCERS TO PERFORM HERE — The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater will perform at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, in Miller Auditorium as part of a 3-day residency, Oct. 21-23, on the WMU campus. The Tuesday evening performance is the second in the 1974-75 International Concerts series sponsored by the College of Fine Arts and University Cultural Arts Committee.

Ailey Dancers To Spend Three-Day Residency Here

The Alvin Ailey City Center Dance Theater will be here at Western from Oct. 21 through 23 for a three-day residency program. In conjunction with the residency, the main concert, which is the second event of International Concerts 74-75 series, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, in Miller Auditorium.

Now a company of more than 20 exciting young dancers, they have thrilled audiences around the world and have prompted critics to highest praise. When Alvin Ailey founded the company in 1958, he called it the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and under this name it grew and expanded until 1972 when it became a constituent of New York's City Center of Music and Drama, Inc.

The Ailey Company has toured university campuses and arts festivals throughout the United States, and has made yearly tours of Europe from 1964-68. In 1966, the Dance Theater participated, with a highly successful appearance, in the first World Festival of Negro Arts at Dakar, Senegal.

Lecture demonstrations and master classes will be held at various times during the three-day residency, making use of Miller Auditorium, Walwood Union and the University Student Center and are available to the public. Information regarding the cost and exact times of the residency should be directed to the department of dance which is located in Western's Walwood Union.

Tickets for the Tuesday concert are available at the Miller Auditorium ticket office and prices range from $2 to $6.

Health Center, WMU Pledge Medical Care

In a joint statement issued Sunday, WMU administration and the University Health Center staff physicians pledged to continue to provide medical care for Western's students past a previously announced Nov. 4 effective date for a mass resignation by the medical doctors.

Tom Coyne, WMU vice president for student services, explained that the current staff physicians will stay on at the Health Center under a temporary agreement if a new relationship has not been settled by Nov. 4.

Dr. Fred L. Wedeking, M.D., acting director of the WMU Health Center, and Dr. Richard A. Proos, M.D., currently a Health Center staff physician and director of the WMU facility for 10 years until he resigned only last month as its director, commented, "Previous information has been misinterpreted. We merely wanted to have the salary of three of our physicians raised to an acceptable minimum annual salary."

"Our primary concern is to negotiate a new type of relationship with the University to improve and expand the health care programs on campus," they said. They explained that, under the current agreement, there are too many physicians available for the spring and summer sessions and not enough medical doctors for the peak loads in the fall and winter semesters.

"We feel that we can only provide better service with a medical group that has the capability of calling in a greater number of physicians than what the University can presently do under the existing relationship," they continued. All eight of the doctors who have resigned are members of such a medical group that is currently providing emergency services in the Southwestern Michigan area.

The ninth WMU Health Center physician will retire later this year. They further explained that the Nov. 4 resignation effective date was "to conform with good policy and to set a mutually agreed upon deadline" under which to negotiate a new agreement.

Coyne had stated Saturday afternoon that the University was negotiating with the current Health Center physicians as well as with other local and area physicians. Coyne Sunday expressed the belief that a new arrangement is preferable and he hopes that one can be established in the very near future.

Food Supervisor Dies

Richard L. Ketelaar, 46, unit supervisor of the food service in Goldsworth Valley II, died Oct. 5 at Borgess Hospital following an illness. He worked in several campus food service units during his nine-year career at Western. He previously had served in the Marine Corps for 20 years. Ketelaar is survived by his wife, Dorothy, three sons and two daughters.

For Teacher Excellence

Alumni Assn. Cites Five Faculty

Five faculty members were presented Teaching Excellence Awards during WMU's annual homecoming buffet luncheon Saturday in the University Student Center. The annual awards are given by the WMU Alumni Association.

The recipients are: Thomas L. Gossman, associate professor of general business, law area; Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of history; Luretta C. McCray, assistant professor of dance; Dr. George K. Stegman, associate professor of engineering and technology; and Dr. Jess M. Walker, associate professor of teacher education.

Along with the award is a check for $1,000 to each of the recipients. This is the eighth year the awards have been given, with a total of 33 WMU faculty honored over that period. William Griffin of Kalamazoo, president of the WMU Alumni Association, made the presentations.

Gossman, a Western faculty member since 1970, earned B.S. (1963) and Juris Doctor (1966) degrees from Indiana University and entered private law practice at Seymour, Ind., where he was born and raised. He then joined the faculty of Northwest Missouri State University, Marysville, Mo., serving 1966-70. He was also a municipal judge at Marysville, Jan. 1, 1968 to Aug. 1, 1970.

Dr. Maier joined WMU in 1959, two years after receiving a Ph.D. degree at the University of Basel, Switzerland, where he studied under famed scholars Karl Barth and Oscar Cullman under a Fulbright Scholarship. He earned B.A. and B.D. degrees from Concordia Seminary in 1952 and 1955, respectively, and an M.A. from Harvard. He is the author of numerous articles published in journals and magazines and has written four very successful books, three centering on the life of Jesus Christ from an historical perspective. He was born in St. Louis, Mo., the son of Dr. Walter A. Maier, the originator of the famed Lutheran Hour radio program. Maier's first book, "A Man Spoke, A World Listened," was a biography of his father.

McCray, a 1967 WMU graduate, earned an M.A. here in 1972. She served as a part time dance instructor in the Women's Physical Education Department 1969-70 until joining the faculty full time in Sept., 1970. She has been a participant in numerous seminars around the nation as a consultant in choreography and has choreographed many student performances at WMU as well as at playhouses and workshops off campus. She was born in Detroit.

Dr. Stegman, a WMU faculty member since 1962, earned B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Wisconsin-Stout, Menominee, Wis., and his doctorate at Wayne State Univ. in 1962. Prior to coming to WMU he had taught at West Virginia Institute of Technology 1958-59, and the University of Iowa 1959-62. Stegman has written numerous articles published in technical journals as well as two drafting textbooks. He has served as visiting professor at Iowa State University (1965), Mississippi State College for Women (1972) and New York State University at Oneonta (1974). He was born in Melrose Park, Ill.

Dr. Walker joined WMU's faculty in 1965 after spending a year in the C. S. Mott Foundation Leadership Training Program at Flint. He earned B.S. and M.A. degrees at the University of Utah in 1960 and 1964, and his Ph.D. at Michigan State University in 1972. He has written several published articles on a study of high school dropouts and on personalized reading in an open-learning environment and traditional-learning environment. Walker has been a consultant to the U. S. Office of Education and the Michigan Department of Education. He was born and raised in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Wind Ensemble Presents Concert

The University Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Carl Bjerregaard, will present its first 1974-75 concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, in the Laura V. Shaw Theatre.

Trent Kynaston, assistant professor of music, will be featured as saxophone soloist in Ingolf Dahl's "Concerto for Alto Saxophone and Wind Orchestra."

The 40-member Wind Ensemble also will perform "Fanfares Pour Britannicus" by Jolivet, "Sonatine fur Blaser" by Richard Strauss, Shinn's "Three Folksongs" and "Circus Overture" by Schumann.

The Jolivet will feature the brass portion of the ensemble, while the Strauss will exhibit the woodwinds' proficiency.

Kynaston teaches applied saxophone, music theory and directs the University Jazz Orchestra. He received his bachelor's and master's of music degrees from the University of Arizona. He has taught in public schools in both Arizona and California and has performed with the Tucson Symphony, the Don Ellis Jazz Orchestra, the King Family, Urbie Green and Sonny and Cher.

This program will be the second LeviLevel concert presented this fall. Program notes by Dr. Joan Boucher, a musicologist and department of music faculty member, will appear on all programs. This come-as-you-are series is supported by the University Cultural Events Committee not only to encourage student attendance, but family attendance as well. The LeviLevel series is an enrichment series available free of charge to everyone.

Middle School Teachers Conference Here Oct. 25

Teachers from throughout Michigan's lower peninsula will gather here Oct. 25 for WMU's 10th Middle and Junior High School Conference. The theme is "Better Tools for Middle Schools." Dr. Thomas Ryan, chairman of WMU's department of teacher education, will extend the welcome.

Luncheon speaker for the conference will be Dr. Clara Chiara, WMU professor of teacher education, who will discuss "Who's in the Middle in the Middle School?" Additional information is available through the WMU Division of Continuing Education.

Represents State on Program

James VanDePolder, assistant professor of transportation technology, represented Michigan at a recent training program on emission control held at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, sponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The project was designed to develop training materials in the emission control area as a response to the need for training of auto mechanics in the new muffler device which is required on all 1975 cars.

Artists / Teachers Meet on Campus

Leading artist-teachers from the United States and Canada will meet with arts educators from throughout Michigan for the 1974 Inter-arts Conference Oct. 18-19 at Western.

Under the theme "Artists and Teachers Together," the two-day meeting is planned to demonstrate new approaches in inter-related arts education and their effect on classroom teaching.

Among those serving as conference leaders are John Baldwin, Michigan State University, who will discuss "University Theatre, Children and Drama"; Mimi Chenfeld, Ohio State University, "Creative Writing and Children's Movement"; R. Murray Schafer, Simone Frazier University, British Columbia, a leading Canadian composer; and three members of the staff of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City.

Common interest in inter-relating the arts prompted the organization of the Inter-Arts Consortium, a representative group of arts teachers and administrators. Members are from the State Department of Education, the public schools of Kalamazoo and Ann Arbor, and Eastern Michigan, Michigan State and Western Michigan Universities. Chairman of the Consortium Committee is Lou Rizzolo of the WMU art department faculty.

The conference, which will be held in the University Student Center, is sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

N.S.F. Grant Supports

Transfer Scope Purchase

An instrument used to transfer data from aerial and satellite photographs to maps has been purchased by the WMU geography department. The acquisition of the Zoom Transfer Scope was made possible by a matching grant of $2,500 from the National Science Foundation.

The money was awarded to WMU in support of the instructional scientific equipment program under the direction of Dr. Ranier Erhart, associate professor of geography. An anamorphic lens system, in addition to the zoom quality of the instrument, provides for quick and accurate transfer of data which is suitable for a variety of urban and rural land-use surveys, or for natural resource inventories, he said.

The Western News

The Western News is published by the Office of University Information each Thursday when classes are in session during fall and winter semesters.

Created to disseminate news to the entire University community, distribution is by mail to faculty, staff and emeriti, and students may pick up copies at several on-campus locations. Items should be submitted by noon Monday for publication.

University Information office hours:
8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday.
Telephone: 383-0981.
Martin R. (Joe) Gagie, Director; Patricia M. Coyle, Associate Director.

Ice Show Opens Wed.

Open House At New Center

An open house at the newly established Susan B. Anthony Center at the Canterbury Chapel, 2210 Wilbur St., is set for 3-9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21, to introduce staff personnel and programs to the WMU community.

The Center, an extension of Western's student services division, was developed by the Commission on the Status of Women in cooperation with the University Counseling Center and several University departments.

According to Laura Manis, an assistant professor in the Counseling Center, "the Center will provide a visible location where new innovative programs can be developed and used to meet the needs brought about as a result of changing social roles."

The Center will offer several workshops and programs for men and women, personal counseling by Counseling Center professionals from 1-4 p.m. Tuesdays, and a variety of special services.

For further information call the Center at 344-4462.

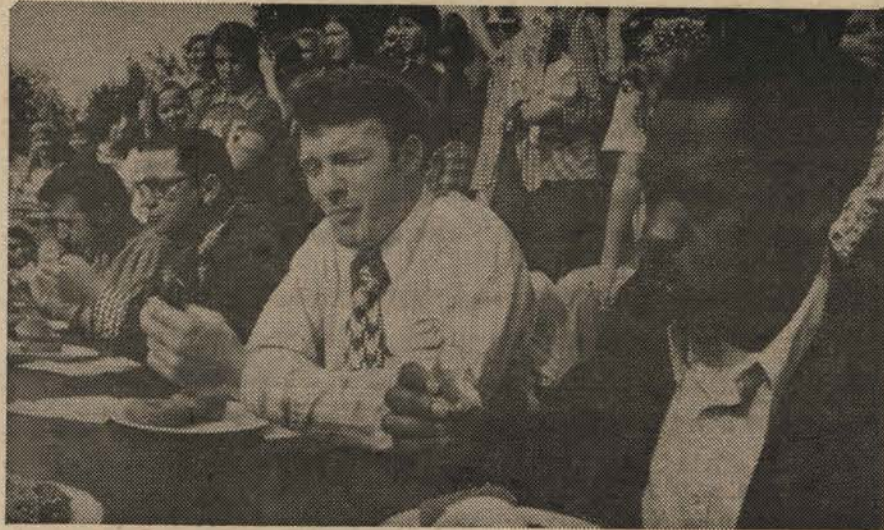

Visiting Scholar Here Oct. 22-23

Dr. Robert N. Bellah, internationally known for his sociological analysis of Asian religions, will be a Visiting Scholar here Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 22-23. He is currently Ford professor of sociology and comparative studies and chairman of the Center for Japanese and Korean Studies at the University of California-Berkeley.

Bellah will present a free public lecture on "The Roots of Religious Consciousness: Primitive Religion and the Counter Culture" at 8 p.m. Tuesday in 3750 Knauss Hall. Following his address, there will be a reception in Sprau Tower, 10th floor.

He also will speak on "Self and Society in China and Japan" at the noon Wednesday luncheon of the Institute of International and Area Studies in 159 University Student Center. His schedule also includes participation in department of sociology and department of religion seminars.

His WMU visit is being sponsored by Western's Institute of International and Area Studies, Comparative Cross Cultural Studies, and departments of religion and sociology.

A WMU alumna, Miss Frostic will be in-residence on the Western campus Oct. 21-23 for a series of guest lectures and demonstrations. She will present a free public lecture/demonstration from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 23, in Shaw Theatre.

University Police Get Radar

WMU's police department has acquired a portable radar unit and began using it to enforce the 25 m.p.h. campus speed limit at midnight Monday, Oct. 14, as an added safety measure to cut down on traffic accidents.

"Since the vast majority of our campus traffic is on foot, it is imperative that automobile drivers and motorcyclists slow down for their own safety and that of the pedestrian," commented Capt. John Cease, uniform division commander of the WMU Public Safety Office.

"It is a well established fact that if you can reduce speed, you can reduce your accident rate and, more importantly, the severity of the accidents," Cease said. "We're getting complaints of speeding here on the campus."

He reported that, in the first six months of this year, there were 133 property damage accidents, 13 personal injury accidents and 51 hit and run accidents on the WMU campus. Since July 1, there have been 28 property damage accidents, 10 personal injury accidents, 16 hit and run accidents, one fatality, and 27 private property accidents; the latter is a new category that usually involves parking lot accidents.

University police personnel are being trained in the operation of the new radar unit by a qualified manufacturer's instructor. The unit

Award Dr. Hunt Fulbright Grant

Dr. Chester L. Hunt, WMU professor of sociology, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to lecture in the Philippines, beginning June 6, 1975.

During the semester he is there, Hunt will present lectures on sociological theory and research at Central Philippine University in Iloilo City. The school has an enrollment of over 2,000 and ranks as the most influential educational institution in the area.

Hunt has been active in Philippine sociology since first going to the country in 1952. He has since served as head of the sociology department at the University of the Philippines and has taught at Silliman University there. Two of his books are widely used in that country. He also was one of the founders of the Philippine Sociological Society and was the first editor of the Philippine Sociological Review.

Offer Pakistan Study Support

A limited number of fellowships in Pakistan Studies for 1975-76 are now offered to WMU students through the American Institute of Pakistan Studies.

The institute, an independent organization whose aim is to promote research on Pakistan, is governed by a board of trustees affiliated with 37 universities and colleges in the U.S. Dr. Lawrence Ziring, WMU professor of political science, is secretary of the group of which the university is a member.

Applications for summer study and other grants beginning next September are available from Ziring.

University Police Sgt. David Kakuri demonstrates the department's new portable radar unit that has been acquired and is being used on campus as of midnight last Monday.

has both a tripod and in-car mounting.

Cease pointed out that motor violations will be written under Michigan state law, not University ordinance, and that WMU does not realize any revenue from any moving violation fine; the money goes to the State of Michigan General Fund.

Broncos Visit Marshall Sat.

"We're simply going to have to regroup and will need an excellent performance in order to win on Saturday," stressed Western Michigan Coach Bill Doolittle in looking ahead to the coming game with Marshall University at Huntington, W. Va.

Last week, the Broncos dropped a 31-24 decision to Toledo, the team's third straight setback, and the fourth loss in six starts this fall.

Harriers Run In Wisconsin

Western Michigan's cross country team heads back out on the road this weekend to compete in the fourth annual Tom Jones Invitational at Madison, Wis., on Saturday. The meet will be a 5-mile affair.

The Broncos are coming off a convincing 17-44 win over Mid-American Conference rival Ohio University here last Saturday, and Coach Jack Shaw looks to the upcoming meet as an important one for his club.

Soccer Squad Hosts Purdue

Now sporting a fine 4-2 record, the Western Michigan soccer team will be preparing for a visit by the Purdue Boilermakers this Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in Waldo Stadium.

This past week, Coach Pete Glon's team lost to Bowling Green, 2-0, and outscored Toledo 6-2.

Badminton Tourney Ends

The intramural badminton singles tournament was won by Hassan Morshidi. Morshidi defeated three opponents before defeating Baha Ruddin Ghani in the finals, 15-13 and 15-10, respectively. Ghani drew a bye the first round and then defeated two opponents before meeting Morshidi in the final match. A total of 13 players competed.

Ghani got some revenge in the double competition as he teamed with Rahim Omar to take the title. Ghani and Rahim defeated Hassan and Nasir in the final match 15-10, 15-9 respectively. The tournament was played on a round robin schedule with five teams entered. Ghani and Omar had a perfect 4-0 record.

A team badminton tournament is scheduled for later in the semester with Nov. 1 as the entry deadline. Each team will consist of four men with teams playing in a league.

Computer Center

The WMU Computer Center has GPSS (General Purpose Simulation System) installed and operational for the PDP-10 time sharing Computer. GPSS is the leading computer discrete simulation language that can be applied effectively to a broad range of problems. It is suitable for non-programmers. Up to October 1, 1974, there have been 634 successful executions of GPSS on the PDP-10 by users. For additional information on GPSS, call Bill Granet, manager, Computer Applications (3-0095) or Dr. Thomas Mason, department of management (3-6086).

Plan Afternoon of Halftime Shows

The first annual Cavalcade of Bands, a colorful and exciting marching contest and show, will be staged on the astroturf of Waldo Stadium at 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19. It will feature some of the most outstanding high school marching bands in Michigan.

Each band, performing in its own halftime show style, will be judged by six adjudicators on various aspects, including music, marching and show design. One of the primary aims of the Cavalcade will be to offer the audience a program in a wide variety of marching band styles of the highest caliber.

On that same Saturday morning, three different clinics will be presented for the benefit of participating as well as observing band students and their directors. These clinics will deal with flags and rifles, use of multiple percussion in the drum line, and drum and bugle style and the marching band.

The following high schools will be sending their marching band and auxiliary units to participate in the Cavalcade contest: Battle Creek Pennfield, Roy Swaffield, director; Bridgeport, DeVere Fader, director; Chesaning, James King, director; Crosswell, Paul Parets, director; Dansville, Jon Francis, director; Flushing, R. Winston Blackford, director; Marlette, James Fader, director; Otisville Lakeville, Drex Wonzor, director; Reed City, Jerry Thornton, director; South Haven, Robert Boerma, director; and Three Oaks River Valley, Jeff Cole, director.

This new event is sponsored jointly by WMU's Marching Band and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, professional music fraternity. Coordinating the events of the day are Richard Swinsick, director of the WMU Marching Band and assistant director Don Baker.

Tickets for the afternoon Cavalcade of Bands show are available at Kalamazoo area merchants including Discount Records, Don Dillon's Music Center, Grinnell's in the Maple Hill Mall, Lowry Organ and Piano Center in the West Main Mall, Midwest Music Service, Stevenson Instrument Repair, and Treva Reed Music. Tickets also are available from the Athletic Ticket Office at the WMU Fieldhouse, all WMU Marching Band members, and all Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia members, as well as at the gate. Tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children 12 years and under.

Co-Host Trusts, New Tax Seminar

More than 500 area attorneys have been invited to a New Tax Laws and Charitable Trusts Seminar at noon Thursday, Oct. 24, here in the Student Center, sponsored by the American National Bank and Trust Company of Michigan and WMU. This is the 16th annual lawyer's conference for American National, but the first meeting co-hosted by WMU.

Philip R. Converse, vice president, Robert F. Sharpe and Co., Inc., Memphis, Tenn., will speak on "Prospects of Future Tax Legislation" and "The Charitable Trust and Tax Implications." He has served as director of development for estate planning at Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., and was director of estate planning and deferred giving for the University of Tennessee System (five campuses).

Cited in 1972 by the U.S. Jaycees as one of the outstanding young men in America, Converse serves on an American Alumni Council tax committee which completed a workbook on the administration of the Charitable Remainder Trusts under the 1969 Tax Reform Act. He has recorded a series of talks on taxation and deferred giving which are distributed nationally.

Opening remarks will be made by Donald C. Smith, executive vice president of the American National Bank and Trust Company. WMU President John T. Bernhard will discuss "The Mission of Western Michigan University."

Additional information about the seminar may be obtained by contacting The American National Bank and Trust Company or the WMU Development Office.

Name Dr. Weaver Mott Consultant

C. S. Harding Mott, president of the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation, has announced the appointment of Dr. Donald C. Weaver, WMU professor of education, as consultant to the Mott Foundation in the field of community education.

The Mott Foundation funds training and dissemination programs nationally as well as models on a local basis in the field of Community Education. According to Mott, "there are a number of critical areas of current concern in which Dr. Weaver is uniquely qualified to help the Foundation at this time."

Mott said that the Foundation is in the process of assessing its future role in the development of community education in America because of two critical factors. First, there are emerging Federal and State legislative actions implementing community education, second, there is need to maintain quality and momentum in community education's growth. "Specifically, we must answer the question of what community education will look like in 1980," Mott said.

In addition to his duties as consultant to the Mott Foundation, Weaver will direct the National Doctoral Training Laboratory in Flint, Mich., sponsored jointly by WMU and the Mott Foundation.
