

To Examine Tuition Plans

A special ad hoc committee to study alternative tuition plans has been appointed by the WMU Faculty Senate's Budget and Finance Council.

Members are: Dr. Adrian Edwards, professor of general business, committee chairman; Dr. Myron Ross, professor of economics; Robert Beecher, controller; Dr. Bradley Huitema, associate professor of psychology; James Nadon, assistant professor of political science; Dr. John Sheppard, associate professor of accountancy; Marvin Winegar, associate director of student financial aid; Dr. Paul Holkeboer, professor of chemistry and coordinator of the science education Ph.D. program; and a student to be designated by the WMU Associated Student Government.

Their charge includes reviewing Western's current tuition plan for its equity among various student groups, impact on revenue, impact on student load and relationship to the WMU student and those at other comparable institutions; and investigating tuition plans based on the student and/or course level and special fees as a part of the tuition plan.

They also will investigate plans based on encouraging enrollment, such as a different rate for spring and summer and the relationship of higher or lower enrollment as a result of changing the tuition rate level.

Interested persons are encouraged to provide pertinent information to the committee, said Robert Wetnight, WMU vice president for finance.

Campus Briefs

The Doctoral Examination of Olugberno A. Ajayi, for the Doctor of Education degree will be held at 1 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 17, in The Graduate College conference room. His topic will be "Perceptions of Curriculum Emphasis: A Pilot Q Sort Study." All interested persons are invited to attend.

Western's debate team had two wins and two losses in the annual Butler Invitational Debate Tournament recently at Indianapolis.

To Evaluate Previous Foreign Language Study

The foreign language placement evaluation will be offered on two dates in early January, 1975, Western's department of modern and classical languages has announced.

The evaluation, which must be taken by students who studied a foreign language in high school and wish to continue studying the same language at Western, will be given at 4 p.m. Monday, Jan. 6, and Thursday, Jan. 9, in 1117 Brown Hall. The evaluation will take approximately one hour.

Foreign Student Enrollment Up; 59 Countries Are Represented

There are 40 percent more foreign students enrolled here at Western this fall than last year, for a total of 622, according to a report from WMU's Foreign Student Affairs Office.

Last fall the number was 443 and two years ago it was 340. Total

Study Impact Of Operating Year Round

The WMU Faculty Senate Budget and Finance Council has appointed an ad hoc committee to review the impact of year round operations.

Named to the committee are: Dr. Robert Nagler, professor of chemistry, committee chairman; Dr. Raymond Zelder, professor and chairman of the economics department; Dr. Ernst Breisach, professor and chairman of history; Dr. Barbara Sherman, assistant to the vice president for academic affairs for academic planning and budgeting; Robert Beam, director of budgets and financial planning; Dr. David Taylor, associate professor of teacher education; Dr. Don Nantz, professor and director of college of applied sciences counseling and admissions; Dr. Thomas Gossman, associate professor of general business; and a student to be designated by the Associated Student Government.

Their charge is to make any appropriate recommendation concerning year round operations impact on scheduling and student academic program requirements; utilization of faculty resources and its relationship to faculty compensation; utilization of space; and the budget process.

The committee should feel free to review any other matters relevant to the year round operations, commented Robert Wetnight, vice president for finance. He encourages interested persons to provide pertinent information to the committee.

Faculty Booklet Analyzes Area

The past, present and future growth of Southwestern Michigan is the subject of a booklet written by three WMU geography department faculty members.

"Population Patterns of Southwestern Michigan" was co-authored by Drs. Charles F. Heller, Eldor C. Quandt and Henry A. Raup. It provides background material for educators, laymen and private and governmental bodies concerned with various aspects of population change.

The new publication presents statistical data and commentary pertaining to many of today's major questions: How fast is population growth in Southwestern Michigan? Where are the areas of slow growth? Are the suburbs still expanding ev-

WMU enrollment this fall is 21,113.

Western's foreign students come from 59 different countries and 39 percent of them (243) are graduate students with 61 percent (379) undergraduates. Eight percent (500) are men and 20 percent (122) are women.

Marlon Gerould, WMU director of foreign student affairs, said there are several reasons for the dramatic gain in foreign student enrollments. He said WMU's academic programs are becoming better known in foreign circles, both among educators and government agencies, who are more prone to channel students here. Gerould also says previous foreign students have generally had a good experience at WMU and recommend it to other foreign students.

Iran, with 106 students, has the greatest representation on the WMU campus, followed by Nigeria with 59, India—44, Canada—37, Hong Kong—27, Thailand—25, Saudi Arabia—23 and Japan—20.

WMU's undergraduate general curriculum seems to be the most popular with 70 foreign students enrolled, followed by business administration with 54 and graduate economics with 36.

Western's engineering curricula have attracted considerable interest from the foreign students with 25 of them enrolled in pre-engineering, 22 in electrical engineering, 21 in industrial engineering, 17 in graduate technology and 14 in mechanical engineering. Another 15 are enrolled in pre-medicine and 15 in the graduate business administration curriculum.

Choral Concert Tonight

The Women's Chorus from the department of music will present a free public concert of sacred and Christmas music at 8 o'clock tonight in Kanley Chapel.

Works to be performed will include "Four Sacred Songs for the Night," "Missa Brevis in D" by Britten, "Sing We Noel," "The Coventry Carol" and "The Twelve Days of Christmas." The Women's Chorus is under the direction of Will Hahnenberg.

PLANNING SEMINAR — Approximately 30 emeriti, alumni and friends of the University were present at a recent financial planning seminar for emeriti, sponsored by the Alumni Affairs and Development Office in the University Student Center. Pictured above is Dr. Adrian Edwards, professor and chairman of finance in the College of Business, who spoke on investment plans, guarding against inflation, and stocks, bonds and real estate. Other speakers were Dr. William McCarty, professor of law in the Business College, and Timothy Reilley, planned giving consultant. McCarty discussed wills, inheritance tax rules, the state tax laws and the federal estate tax. Reilley discussed trusts, life income opportunities and charitable gifts.

Commencement Wed. Night

President John T. Bernhard will preside over his first WMU commencement at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 18, in Read Fieldhouse.

A total of 1,528 persons are candidates for various degrees, including seven doctorates, 11 specialist (6th year), 356 master's, and 1,154 bachelor's degrees.

Heading the bachelor's degree list are 182 candidates for graduation with honors, including 28 summa cum laude (with a grade point average of 3.9 or better on a 4.0 scale), 61 magna cum laude (between 3.7 and 3.89 grade average), and 93 cum laude (between 3.5 and 3.69).

Musical selections at the commencement will be provided by the University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Herbert Butler, professor of music.

The Rev. Roger Greeley, pastor of the People's Unitarian Universalist Church, Kalamazoo, will give the invocation.

Sell Christmas Items

A Christmas sale of hand-made items will be held from 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Friday, Dec. 13, here in the University Student Center Craft Shop, ground floor of the Center. Shadow boxes, tree ornaments, wreaths, suncatchers and wall plaques are among the items for sale, according to Mrs. Sue Green, director of the Craft Shop.

'Met' Greats, Tucker & Merrill, To Perform Jan. 8 at Miller

Richard Tucker and Robert Merrill will join forces at 8 p.m. Wednesday, January 8, 1975, to present a joint recital of operatic arias and duets at Miller Auditorium.

The two Metropolitan Opera stars, called by a critic of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin as "two of the seven wonders of the world," will be on the Western campus as the fourth event of the 1974-75 International Concerts series.

Unequivocally called "the greatest tenor in the world" by Time Magazine and "the Met's second Caruso" by Saturday Evening Post, Tucker recently found himself the focus of a nationwide "Silver Jubilee" celebration as the Metropolitan Association joined to honor the twenty-fifth anniversary of his now historic Metropolitan Opera debut and commemorate a quarter of a century during which time he has continued setting the standard and providing the inspiration for an entire generation of singers.

Born Reuben Ticker, some fifty years ago, on New York's Lower East Side, Tucker did his first singing at the age of six as a boy alto in the Allen Street Synagogue. After attending high school, where he distinguished himself as an athlete, Tucker got a job as a runner for a Wall Street brokerage office and became interested in the stock market, an avocation which he still dabbles in today. During this time, he also picked up money singing at weddings and confirmations which helped subsidize his vocal studies towards becoming a musical minister of his faith in the role of a synagogue cantor.

His goal was soon achieved, as he had in fact worked himself up to one of the top cantorial posts at the Brooklyn Jewish Center where Paul Althouse, the celebrated Metropolitan Opera tenor of a former day persuaded him that his remarkable gifts might be used to sing operatic scores of Verdi and Puccini. So it was in January of 1945 that the young cantor, virtually unknown, stepped onto the stage of the New York Metropolitan Opera House as Enzo Grimaldi in "La Gioconda" and, disclosing a vibrant tenor voice that was the nearest to Caruso's that anyone could remember hearing, brought down the house in one of its historic ovations.

Merrill, the Brooklyn born baritone, last season celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his Metropolitan debut with a special gala performance of Verdi's "La Traviata," the role in which he made his debut on December 15, 1945, becoming the youngest artist ever to sing a leading role at the Metropolitan Opera.

Throughout his career, Merrill has also performed as soloist with every major orchestra in the United States, conducted by many of the world's greatest conductors. In 1946, the young baritone, then only 26, was heard by Toscanini, who was so impressed that he invited

Merrill to sing the role of Germont for his historical broadcast of "La Traviata" with the NBC Symphony. That radio performance was the first opera broadcast approved by Toscanini for release on records. Merrill became a favorite of Toscanini and collaborated with him several times over the following years and, in 1954 when the conductor was 87, he asked Merrill to sing Renato in "Un Ballo in Maschera," Toscanini's final opera broadcast.

Acclaimed by critics as "one of the great natural baritones of the century," Merrill is one of the few operatic stars to venture successfully into other media. On television, he is a frequent guest of Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Dick Cavett and many others. In addition to opera, he has recorded music of the Broadway stage including "Porgy and Bess," "Showboat" and "Carousel."

One of the most memorable moments for Merrill is when he conquered the world of musical theatre for the first time during the summer of 1970 when he starred as Tevya in "Fiddler on the Roof," performing to standing-room-only audiences and breaking box office records.

Tickets for the Tucker-Merrill program range from $3.00 to $7.00.

To Perform, Discuss Two Zupko Compositions On National Radio

Ramon Zupko, WMU composer/conductor, will be interviewed Saturday, Dec. 14, on The Composer's Forum in New York City following the performance of two of his works. The program will be taped for presentation later on the National Public Radio network.

Western's Brass Quintet, a faculty music ensemble-in-residence at WMU, will perform Zupko's "Masques" for piano and brass quintet, with C. Curtis-Smith, WMU composer/pianist, at the piano. Katherine Rowe, a member of the Sarah Lawrence College faculty in N.Y.C., will be the guest soloist for the performance of Zupko's "Voices" for amplified soprano and 4-channel tape.

Members of the quintet are: Donald Bullock and Stephen Jones, trumpets; Neill Sanders, French horn; Russell Brown, trombone; and Robert Whaley, tuba. Zupko notes that "Voices" is "a social commentary piece... a mixture of theatre and music," featuring voices of the media, such as radio-TV news, crying, shouting, laughing, mass crowds and an actor reciting the poem, "Prayer Before Birth."

Prior to joining the WMU faculty in 1971, Zupko was director of the Laboratory for Experimental and Electronic Music at Roosevelt University in Chicago; he also lectured, performed and taught for six years in Europe. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the Juilliard School of Music and later studied under the pioneer in electronic music, Gottfried Coenig, at University of Utrecht.

His composition, "La Guerre" for soprano and chamber ensemble was selected in a 1970 national competition to represent the United States at the International Festival of the International Society of Contemporary Music in Basel, Switzerland.

Kirk Elected

MANWC President

Dr. Wyatt D. Kirk, assistant professor in Western's Counseling Center, has been elected president of the Michigan Association for Non-White Concerns, a division of the American Personnel and Guidance Association.

He also is the director of a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Title IV program in Grand Rapids. Kirk received his B.S., M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from WMU. Prior to joining the Western faculty, he taught at Benton Harbor High School and was a counselor at the Fort Custer Job Corps Center and with the Kalamazoo Public Schools.

Other officers are: Leslie Sabbath, University of Michigan at Dearborn, vice president; Carole F. Hollis, Grand Valley State College, Grand Rapids, secretary; and Festus H. Valentine, Lake Michigan College, treasurer.

Job Openings

Below is a listing of the position openings currently being posted by the University Personnel Department, for current University employees.

Regular full-time and regular part-time employees interested in applying for these positions should submit a Job Opportunity Program application form to the Personnel Department during the posting period.

Clerk II, C-2 (H-3) Registration— posted 12/6-12/12

Set Vacation Library Hours

The WMU libraries have announced their hours of operation for the semester break, Christmas and New Year holidays. All libraries will be closed Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 21 and 22; Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 24 and 25; Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 28 and 29, and Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1. In addition, the School of Librarianship library will be closed Monday, Dec. 23, and Monday, Dec. 30. All libraries, except Waldo, will also be closed Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 4 and 5. Waldo will be open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Jan. 4, but will be closed Jan. 5.

All libraries, including Waldo, the Business Library, the Educational Resources Center Library, the Music Library, the School of Librarianship Library (except as previously indicated), and the Physical Sciences Library will be open until 5 p.m. on the following dates: Dec. 18, 19, 20, 23, 26, 27, 30, and Jan. 2 and 3. Regular hours will resume on Monday, Jan. 6.

Job Board

Helps Students

The Student Employment Referral Service (SERS) is of great help to students who are seeking employment. One of these services offered is the "Job Board."

The job board consists of 10 job categories. Each current job is posted on the board and explained in a brief, which consists of a short description of the job, and of pay, along with the number of hours involved.

If the student is further interested in a job he sees on the board, he can look through job books which contain more information concerning the job, such as: location, whom to contact and how, etc.

When a job is filled, it is pulled from both the board and the job books to keep an up-dated listing of jobs.

Stop by and check it out in the Student Services Building in the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships. Don't miss the "Job Board" located outside the SERS office on the third floor.

The Western News

The Western News is published by the Office of University Information each Thursday when classes are in session during fall and winter semesters.

Created to disseminate news to the entire University community, distribution is by mail to faculty, staff and emeriti, and students may pick up copies at several on-campus locations. Items should be submitted by noon Monday for publication.

University Information office hours:
8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday.
Telephone: 383-0981.

32 Years at Western

Retiring Dean Maus Comments On Student Attitudes, Sports, Future

"College students today are maturing quicker and they are easier to talk to than a few years ago, more willing to listen and exchange viewpoints," says Clayton J. Maus, WMU dean of records and admissions.

Maus retires at the end of this month, ending 32 years at Western, including 11 years as teacher and coach and 21 years in administration.

He says perhaps he will most miss the 300-400 conferences, most individually, he has had with students each year in his capacity as dean.

"I believe that more students today are concerned over their future and the future of this nation than in the past," he said. "Students today are becoming more truly interested in education and their future. Compared to five or six years ago, they are much less uptight now."

Dean Maus observes that the student who really gets involved today in college, whether it be in environmental concerns, politics, or just helping humanity, "will probably continue that involvement after graduation."

When talking to Maus, you not only become aware of his respect and liking for students, but an intense feeling for athletics and the obstacles facing athletes and coaches also comes through. Although he has been out of coaching since 1953, it is evident that he still misses the sports world in spite of its coaching headaches.

"It was a complete change for me when I went into administration as assistant registrar in 1953," said Maus. He had been a biology and physical education teacher and headed Western's student recreation sports program when he first joined the faculty. He also served as assistant basketball coach and in 1947 was named head track and cross country coach.

Prior to joining Western's faculty in 1942, Maus had logged nine years as a high school biology, physics and chemistry teacher and track and basketball coach at Avon Lake, Ohio. He earned a B.S. degree from Ashland College in Ohio and an M.A. from the University of Wisconsin.

He said, "When I left coaching for administration I was concerned about where the new job would lead." Obviously, after seven years as dean of admissions and records and nine years before then as registrar and director of admissions, before the deanship was created, he had no real concerns on that score.

Maus observed that the organization and self discipline required in his coaching career had a great carryover benefit to his present position. He said, "A good coach is usually a good teacher and organizer and administration certainly requires organization."

Maus said he discovered early in his coaching career that a coach must never lose his composure, that generally a well-disciplined coach presents a well-disciplined and trained team. "A coach must learn to control his emotions, to exert self discipline on himself in spite of pressure and strain," he said.

"I know I'm a better sports spectator for having been a coach," he noted. "I can sympathize with a coach's problems on the field." As a consequence, Maus has been an avid spectator and supporter of WMU varsity athletics, even to the point of following WMU teams to such distant points as California.

Looking into the future of college admissions, toward a time when the pool of college age persons will be down considerably, Maus said, "Colleges will have to retool themselves and offer solid academic programs which the students and society need," if they are to attract students.

He noted that faculty must also retool, especially those who today teach a subject or material which may be obsolete in 15 years. "In-service training and new programs will be needed so colleges and faculty can keep pace with these changing times," he said.

Maus suggests that colleges may find it to their advantage to initiate regular and short-term internships for their own faculty, as well as those from other schools, to upgrade their knowledge. He said, "We expect our doctors to regularly attend seminars; why shouldn't we do the same?"

With this in mind, he said, "I recently burned all of my old biology, anatomy and physical education teaching notes, just in case I might decide to return to teaching." He said this would then force him to up-date his own knowledge in these areas.

But, with a 50-acre farm which he cultivates in Oshtemo Township west of Kalamazoo, a string of five Arabian horses he enters in various shows, a vital interest in cultural and athletic events at WMU and in the Kalamazoo area, and a host of friends in Michigan, he just might be too busy to squeeze in teaching. Add to these interests his membership in the Oshtemo Township Zoning Board and also the Oshtemo Township Land Use Planning Committee and you can see how busy and vital a man he is.

Looking fit and trim enough now to play basketball as he did in school, Maus' retirement will see no slowing down of his energetic pace.

Maus was honored at a retirement dinner Dec. 7 in the Student Center, where some 200 persons paid tribute to him. His wife, Ruth, was there along with their three grown daughters.

Appoint Review Board Members

Eleven faculty members have been appointed to the four review boards of the research screening committee of the Faculty Senate's Research Policies Council here at Western Michigan University.

Their appointments were announced today by Dr. Stephen R. Mitchell, vice president for academic affairs. The four review boards screen and rank WMU faculty proposals in their respective disciplines for grants and fellowships from the University Faculty Research Fund, he explained.

Mitchell said that both the screening committee and review boards will consider 143 applications for 1975 awards totaling approximately $85,000.

New appointees are as follows: Applied Arts and Business—Dr. Alan Leader, management, one year replacement term; Dr. Gale Newell, accountancy, and William Haynes, distributive education, 2-year terms; Humanities and Fine Arts—Robert Johnston, art, and Dr. Richard Joyce, humanities area, 2-year terms; Natural Sciences—Dr. George Bradley, physics, and Dr. Robert Harmon, chemistry, one-year replacement terms; Dr. Ronald Flaspohler, natural science area, and Dr. Don Goldsmith, mathematics, 2-year terms; and Social Science and Education—Dr. William Carlson, counseling and personnel, and Dr. George Beech, history, 2-year terms.

Continuing members are: Applied Arts and Business—Dr. Frank Wolf, engineering and technology; Humanities and Fine Arts—Dr. Seamus Cooney, English, and Joseph Work, music; and Social Science and Education—Dr. Alonzo Hannaford, special education, and Dr. Charles Heller, geography. Respective review board chairmen are Wolf, Cooney, Harmon and Hannaford.

Dr. J. M. Keenan, professor of management, is chairman of the screening committee.

Some Employees

Receive Statements

The University's personnel department has recently received statements of account from the Michigan Public Schools Employee Retirement System. These statements are being sent to employees in their department over the next few days. Only employees who are enrolled in Michigan Public Schools Employee Retirement System as their basic retirement program will receive those statements.

Employees who have elected TIAA-CREF as their basic retirement program will not receive a statement of account. These statements include earnings and contributions for the period of July 1, 1973, and June 30, 1974 (1973-74 fiscal year).

Any employee who worked prior to July 1, 1974, and does not receive a statement of account or any employee who has selected TIAA-CREF as their basic retirement program but has retained membership in MPSERS can receive a statement by writing to the retirement office. The address is: Michigan Public Schools Employees Retirement System, Department of Administration, Stevens T. Mason Building, 2nd Floor, Corner of Allegan and Pine Streets, South Wing, Lansing, Michigan 48913.

Anthropology Offers

Three New Courses

New developments in the field of anthropology—environmental impact studies, Pacific island cultures and urban cross-cultural studies—will be the focus of three courses to be offered for the first time this coming winter semester by Western's department of anthropology.

"Archeology in Industry and Government: Cultural Resource Management" will be concerned with the various approaches and field techniques involved in conducting environmental impact studies relating to the protection and preservation of non-renewable resources, such as historical and prehistoric remains, as well as existing social and cultural community patterns. The course, Anthropology 500-DA will be taught from 11 a.m.-12:20 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays by Dr. Ernestene Green, associate professor.

Major new innovations in the understanding of prehistoric beginnings and the historical development and peopling of various island cultures of the Pacific will be studied in "Pacific Island Cultures," Anthropology 500-LB. The course will be taught by Dr. Robert Maher, professor, from 7-9:30 p.m. Thursdays.

Anthropology 545-LD, "Urban Anthropology," will deal with the ways in which cross-cultural studies of urbanization throughout the world help us to understand the social problems and cultural patterns of modern American urban areas. Mark Curchack, assistant professor, will teach the course from 7-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Hockey Entries Due

Intramural hockey entries will be due at a manager's meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 9, in 105 Gary Center, the Intramural Office has announced. Schedules will be available at noon Monday, Jan. 13, and play begins that day.

Also, handball doubles and paddleball singles entries will be due by noon Friday, Jan. 10. Play in both sports begins in three divisions Monday, Jan. 13.

Hockey Broncos Host St. Mary's

Western Michigan's hockey team carries a 6-1 record into Friday and Saturday games at 7:30 p.m. here in Lawson Arena against St. Mary's College of Minnesota. All six Bronco victories have been achieved on home ice.

In its last two outings, Coach Bill Neal's squad whipped Lake Forest by margins of 13-5 and 8-3 to open Central Collegiate Hockey Association Division II competition.

Neal will be forced to perform a juggling act for Friday's match since four Broncos will miss that encounter because of fighting disqualifications. In this quartet are centers Murray Pickel and Phil Eve and defensemen Al Hamernick and Mike Shafer. Pickel paces the club in scoring with 12 goals and eight assists.

Western also entertains Bowling Green at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 17, in Lawson Arena. The Midwest Invitational Tournament Dec. 20-21 at Utica, Mich., has been cancelled.

Broncos On Road After Fast Start

Western Michigan's basketball team, off to its best start since 1952-53 with three straight victories, faced a crucial Mid-American Conference assignment last night at Central Michigan University. Results of that contest were not known at press time.

Coach Eldon Miller's club passed its initial MAC test by an 80-65 count here against Eastern Michigan. On Saturday, WMU clubbed Northern Iowa, 101-72, in posting the school's biggest victory margin in a 125-game span.

The Bronco cagers face the University of Michigan at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 27, in the opening round of the Motor City Tourney at the University of Detroit Memorial Building. Western will then face host Detroit or Eastern Michigan the following night at 7 or 9 p.m. depending on the outcome of the Friday contests.

Prior to that holiday tourney, Western plays Dec. 14 at Michigan State, Dec. 21 at Oral Roberts and Dec. 23 at San Diego State. The Broncos also travel to Miami, Ohio, Jan. 4 before returning home to Read Fieldhouse Jan. 8 for a 7:30 p.m. game with Ball State.

Wrestlers Visit BeeGee Friday

Western's wrestling team started its 1974-75 dual meet activity last night against Olivet College at Battle Creek's Harper Creek High School and then travels to Bowling Green for its first Mid-American Conference test on Friday.

Coach George Hobbs is currently battling the worst run of injuries in his six-year tenure at WMU. Five would-be regulars are sidelined, including Mid-American Conference champion Gary Martin.

Extend Library Hours

Western's Waldo Library has announced extended hours of operation for the end-of-semester weekend, Dec. 13-15. The hours will be: Friday, Dec. 13, 7:45 a.m.-11 p.m.; Saturday, Dec. 14, 8 a.m.-9 p.m.; Sunday, Dec. 15, 1 a.m.-11 p.m.

Campus Calendar

- Dec. 12—Women's Chorus Concert, Kanley Chapel, 8 p.m.
- Dec. 12—Math Colloquium on "Project SEED" by William Burdick, Rm. 1118, Rood Hall, 11 a.m.
- *Dec. 13-14—Hockey: WMU vs. St. Mary's (Minn.), Lawson Arena, 7:30 p.m.
- Dec. 15—Annual Christmas Concert, Miller Auditorium, 3 p.m.
- *Dec. 17—Hockey: WMU vs. Bowling Green, Lawson Arena, 7:30 p.m.
- Dec. 18—Fall semester commencement, Read Fieldhouse, 7 p.m.
- Jan. 4—Final registration for winter semester, Read Fieldhouse.
- Jan. 4—Wrestling: WMU vs. Kent State, Gary Center, 1 p.m.
- Jan. 6—Classes resume.

*Admission charged.

Grid Broncos Cite Matthews, Baetens, Lintjer for Awards

Rushing and scoring leader Dan Matthews was cited as both the "most valuable" and "top offensive player" by his 1974 WMU football teammates.

"Top defensive player" honors went to junior tackle Tom Baetens of Mount Clemens, while Grand Haven sophomore split end Ted Lintjer was the recipient of the "most improved player" award.

Matthews, a Pontiac junior, rushed for 769 yards in nine games for a 5.4 average per play and topped the team with 42 points. His rushing figure is the fourth best seasonal total in school history and he also ranks No. 6 on the career charts with 1,127 yards.

Baetens led the front-four in tackles with 94, including five for losses of 16 yards, and was second overall among all Bronco defensive players. He also was credited with two fumble recoveries and a blocked punt.

Lintjer was switched to split end after previously playing at defensive safety. He ended up with 18 receptions for 300 yards and a touchdown to rank third on his team in pass catching.

Three Juniors

Assault Grid Stats

WMU football juniors Dan Matthews, Ted Forrest and Wesley Cates already rank high among all-time career statistical leaders in several categories with still another season of varsity competition ahead of them.

Cates owns the standard for kick-off return yardage with 778, combining for a record 411 yards as a sophomore and almost bettering that showing with 367 in 1974 before missing the final three games with a broken hand.

The Columbus, O., native also stands third on the punt return yardage list with 394 and has an excellent chance of surpassing the 470-yard record accounted for by Dave Hallabrin from 1969-71.

Detroit wide receiver Forrest finished his third year of regular duty sharing fifth place among career pass catchers with 47 and holding down the third spot in yardage at 754. Greg Flaska, who operated at tight end from 1968-70, owns both career marks with 69 catches for 982 yards.

Pontiac halfback Matthews rates sixth among the rushers with 1,127 yards after posting the fourth best seasonal total of 769. The only Bronco to surpass the 2,000-yard plateau was Roger Lawson, who joined the Chicago Bears in 1972 after gaining 2,018 stripes during his three-year undergraduate career.

Baetens Wins Gary Sportsmanship Award

Junior defensive tackle Tom Baetens is Western's 1974 recipient of the M. J. "Mike" Gary Sportsmanship Award, which is presented by the Downtown Coaches Club.

The Mount Clemens product, who was runner-up for team tackle honors with 94, was earlier cited as WMU's football "defensive player of the year."

Kosmides Gets Soccer MVP

Senior halfback Mike Kosmides of Detroit has been elected the "most valuable" player on Western's 1974 soccer team in a vote conducted among his teammates.

"Most improved" player honors went to another halfback, Midland freshman Paul Saam. Honorary captains were sophomore goalkeeper Dale Hetherington of Bloomfield Hills and forward Klaus Wheeler, a freshman who played his high school soccer in Mannheim, Germany.

The 1974 Broncos finished with a 7-5-1 record, the school's best showing since soccer achieved varsity status in 1971.

Detective Completes Investigation Course

Wesley R. Carpenter, a University police department detective, recently completed a one-month advanced criminal investigation training program at Delta College, University Center, Mich.

The program included intensive training in crime scene protection and search, photography, fingerprints, casting, fatal and hit-and-run accidents, interrogation, pathology, toxicology, legal aspects, firearms identification, narcotics and explosives.

Annual Christmas Concert Sunday

In keeping with a tradition which encompasses more than a quarter of a century, Western's department of music will present its annual "Christmas gift" to the community free to the public at 3 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 15, in Miller Auditorium.

This year's Christmas Concert will feature the performance of J. S. Bach's "Magnificat." The University Symphony Orchestra and Grand Chorus will perform the original (1723) version of this famous work. Herbert Butler will conduct, with the choir having been prepared by Mel Ivey.

Purge Computer Disk System

As of Dec. 26, all user files not accessed since Oct. 26 will be transferred to magnetic tape and purged from the disk system. The access date is up-dated by reading, up-dating or running the file. In order to recover a file purged from the disk, a user must request that it be reinstated through the PLEASE command or a written notice to the Manager of Computer Operations.

To check the access date of a file, use the SLOW option of the DIRECT command: DIRECT/SLOW.

Frein Wins First Pugno Scholarship

A Muskegon senior, John W. "Duffy" Frein, Jr., has been awarded the first annual Pugno Scholarship by the WMU College of Business.

The scholarship is named for Al Pugno, Fremont business executive and past president of the University's Alumni Association. It is given to a student which the Scholarship Committee of the College of Business recognizes as "outstanding" in his curriculum.

Frein is enrolled in business administration and is majoring in economics. He is a member of the WMU Pre-Law Society, Consumer Complaint Council and the American Marketing Association. He is a graduate of Mona Shores High School.

Shaw To Stage 'Sheba' Jan. 15-18

The William Inge drama, "Come Back, Little Sheba," will be presented by the University Theatre in the Arena of Laura V. Shaw Theatre at 8 p.m. Jan. 15-18, 1975.

Inge also wrote "Picnic" and "Bus Stop." His "Come Back, Little Sheba" has been praised for its "delicate, unusual structure" and as "a rarely honest piece of theatre writing"; it is a realistic play of lost youth and although serious, has comedy and warmth.

General admission tickets are priced at $2.00, and mail orders will be accepted beginning Monday, Dec. 30. The box office will open for walk-in sales and reservations the following Monday, Jan. 6.

Trustees Meet Tuesday

Affirmative action and promotion policies and the Code of Student Life will be considered by the Western Michigan University Board of Trustees as its next regular meeting at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 17, in the University Student Center.
