

Campus Briefs

The Gabel Pool located in the Student Recreation Building will be closed during semester break, Sunday, April 27, through Sunday, May 4. Spring semester hours will be Monday through Friday from noon to 1 p.m. and will be open to WMU faculty, staff and students.

It is important that University employees keep insurance records up to date, in order to be sure the policies list the correct beneficiaries and dependents. If you are not sure what coverages you carry, or what your insurance records show, you may call the benefits section of the Personnel Department for verification, (3-1650).

As of May 8, all users' files not accessed since March 8 will be transferred to magnetic tape and purged from the disk system. The access date is updated by reading, updating or running the file.

In order to recover a file purged from the disk, a user must request that it be reinstated through the PLEASE command or a written notice to the manager of Computer Center operations. To check the access date of a file, use the SLOW option of the DIRECT command: DIRECT/SLOW.

Carter Fellowship To Janice Stroman

Mrs. Janice Stroman, a graduate student from Portage, has been awarded the Homer L. J. Carter Fellowship for the 1975-76 academic year at WMU.

The $500 stipend goes to a graduate student studying teaching of reading. Mrs. Stroman is the third recipient of the fellowship.

It is named for the late Homer L. J. Carter who served as director of WMU's Reading Center and Clinic for 32 years until retirement in 1964.

Computer Center Has New Program

SPEAKEASY-3, a higher level language that is capable of doing most of the operations done by the APL language, was developed by Stan Cohen and his staff at the Argonne National Laboratory in Ill.

A version of SPEAKEASY-3 has been modified and implemented on the PDP-10 time-sharing computer here at Western under the name of SPEAKZ by Russell Barr of the Computer Center staff. A major feature of SPEAKEASY-3 is to provide the user the ability to formulate complex problems with a minimum of algebraic knowledge, explained Jack R. Meagher, director of the WMU Computer Center.

The SPEAKEASY-3 manual (ANL-8000) is available at the Physical Science Library and in the Business Library. The Computer Center has available for users a documentation on SPEAKEASY-3 (no. 1.1.8). For further information, call Barr at the Computer Center, 3-0095.

Inauguration, Commencement Saturday

To Observe Summer Hours

WMU will adjust its work day schedule to observe summer hours for the months of June, July and August, according to an announcement by Robert B. Wetnight, vice president for finance.

"After carefully assessing the results of last year's experiment in extended summer hours, evaluating the often-conflicting preferences of Western's personnel, and weighing the overall needs of the University, we have decided that beginning this year and in ensuing years Western will follow a summer hours schedule of 7:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m., effective the first working day in June through the last working day in August," he said.

As stated previously, special groups, especially those covered by contracts or the University police may have different shift times. However, all offices and regular operations will follow this new summer hours schedule.

Wetnight stressed that this announcement of a summer hours schedule does not effect the implementation of a new work schedule for the other nine months of the year; that is, effective Monday, April 28, the regular work day will be 7:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and 12:45 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. This change has the work day starting and ending 15 minutes earlier than what is presently in effect.

Reish Heads P.B.K. Group

The WMU Phi Beta Kappa Group has elected Dr. Joseph G. Reish, assistant professor of French in the department of modern and classical languages, as its new president for the coming academic year.

Dr. John W. Petro, professor of mathematics, is president-elect and Elizabeth Giedeman, associate professor, department of modern and classical languages, is the new secretary.

Some 90 WMU faculty members belong to Western's Phi Beta Kappa Group, which has a 250-page application for full membership in Phi Beta Kappa awaiting action by the national organization of the prestigious liberal arts and sciences honor society. Action on WMU's application is expected at the December 1976 meeting of the national body, according to Reish.

Consequently, the WMU group has no official status at this time other than to document the application seeking designation as a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. The WMU group was established in 1969 expressly to seek full Phi Beta Kappa membership for Western.

Dr. John T. Bernhard will be inaugurated as the fifth president of WMU as part of commencement exercises at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 26, here in Read Fieldhouse.

Approximately 300 graduate and 1,439 undergraduate degrees will be conferred by President Bernhard.

Robert D. Caine of Hickory Corners, chairman of the WMU Board of Trustees, will preside at the inaugural investiture. He will present the Board's charge to Bernhard; the new president will then respond.

A medallion, henceforth to be used as the symbol of the University's office of the presidency, will be unveiled at the inauguration/commencement ceremonies. The Board of Trustees commission-

Trustees Meet Here Friday

Western's Board of Trustees is expected to act upon proposed room and board rate increases and a tuition increase for out-of-state students at its monthly meeting at 1:45 p.m. Friday, April 25, here in the University Student Center.

The Board, in accordance with its established practice concerning proposed fee increases, tabled both proposals at its March 21 meeting.

The proposed room and board rate increase is $50 per semester; that would bring the per semester total to $690 "which is still one of the lowest rates in the state," according to Robert B. Wetnight, WMU vice president for finance. Other rate hikes for room only and rental fees for University apartments also have been proposed.

Wetnight explained last month that the proposed $7 per credit hour tuition increase for non-resident students is necessitated to comply with Section 7 of the Public Act 227 of 1974 which requires that non-resident students pay at least 75 per cent of the total instructional cost.

Academic and non-academic personnel reports also are on the agenda for the Board meeting.

ed two art department faculty members, Robert P. Johnston and Paul Mergen, to produce the medallion. It was designed by Associate Professor Johnston; its chain was designed and executed by Assistant Professor Mergen. The castings were made by Dwayne Lowder, associate professor of art; Arden Pridgeon, associate professor of industrial engineering; and WMU students.

Music will be provided by the University Symphonic Band, conducted by Carl Bjerregaard. Invocation and benediction will be given by the Rev. Mabry Gardner, minister, Galilee Baptist Church, Kalamazoo.

The entire program will be broadcast live on the University's FM radio station, WMUK (102.1).

Bernhard came to WMU in September, 1974, after having served six years as president of Western Illinois University at Macomb. He succeeded Dr. Myron L. Coulter, who served as Western's chief executive officer for the six month interim period from the retirement of Dr. James W. Miller to the arrival of Bernhard. Miller was WMU president from 1961-74.

Dr. Paul V. Sangren was president from 1936-60. Western's first president was Dr. Dwight B. Waldo. He served from 1904-36. WMU has had two acting presidents, Dr. William McCracken and Dr. Gerald Osborn served in that capacity from 1922-23 and in 1960, respectively.

Dr. Russell H. Seibert, emeritus vice president for academic affairs and professor of history, is chairman of the inaugural committee that was appointed by the Board of Trustees. He noted that no honorary degrees will be awarded at the April commencement because it would detract from the importance of the inauguration itself and make the total commencement ceremony too long.

Other members of the inaugural committee are: Coulter, now vice president for administration; Dr. Julius Franks, Jr., Grand Rapids, trustee; Marlon Gerould, president, Administrative Professional Association and director of foreign student affairs; Dr. Laurel Grotzinger, president of the Faculty Senate and professor of librarianship; Mrs. Mildred L. Johnson, Muskegon, trustee; Ms. Judy Layne, Associated Student Government vice president for academic affairs; and Dr. John E. Sandberg, dean, College of Education.

Bassett To Head Michigan Group

Thomas A. Bassett, foreign student advisor in Western's office of Foreign Student Affairs, was recently elected 1975-76 chairperson-elect of the Michigan Association of Foreign Student Affairs (MAFSA).

As chairperson-elect he will serve as program chairperson for the 1976 MAFSA annual conference. During that conference Bassett will become MAFSA chairperson for 1976-77.

Medieval Conference Here May 4-7

Children of the Middle Ages, deviant behavior and a greater emphasis on art are just some of the new directions to be examined by some 1,000 medieval scholars from around the world May 4-7 here at WMU's 10th Conference on Medieval Studies.

Africa will be represented for the first time with four scholars from there among the participants. It is traditionally the largest medieval conference held anywhere, attracting five times as many persons as the next largest, according to Dr. John Sommerfeldt, professor of history and director of the WMU Medieval Institute, conference sponsor.

This year there will be 132 sessions, 15 more than last year, as the conference continues to grow in scope. All speaker sessions will be held in Goldsworth Valley Residence Hall Complex II and III.

Sommerfeldt notes that in addition to the first-time representation of Africa by four persons (two from Libya and one each from Egypt and South Africa), upwards of 25 medieval scholars are expected from Europe.

One of the latter will be Dr. Jean Leclercq of Clervaux, Luxembourg, and Rome, Italy, where he is a professor at the Gregorian University and also at the College of St. Anselm. Dr. Leclercq, who received an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from WMU last year at the conference, will present a general address to the conference at 9 a.m., May 6, in Goldsworth Valley II dining room on "Bernard of Clairvaux and the Language of Love." He is an adjunct professor of medieval studies at WMU.

The first general address will be made at 9 a.m., May 5, by Ilene H. Forsyth of the University of Michigan on "Children in Medieval Art," also in the Goldsworth Valley II dining room.

One of the "new directions" of the conference, says Sommerfeldt, "is a great deal on children in the middle ages, with at least six sessions to be devoted to this subject matter." He said no one in the past had spoken exclusively about children in the middle ages.

Another new subject, he points out, is deviant behavior, with two sessions on this. And art will be greatly emphasized, with 11 sessions on medieval art, compared to two or three in the past. Sommerfeldt notes that sessions on psychoanalysis and psychohistory will also be offered for the first time.

In conjunction with the medieval conference at WMU there will also be concurrent meetings of the Fifth Cistercian Conference, the North American Patristics Society, the International Center of Medieval Art, the Academy of Research Historians of Medieval Spain, and the Canadian Committee of Byzantine Studies.

A number of free public special events will be held during the conference. At 1 p.m., Sunday, May 4, the Society for Creative Anachronism, Inc., will hold a jousting tournament near the Goldsworth Valley pond including demonstrations of personal combat with wooden swords, cudgels and other weapons between "knights" wearing homemade "armor" of sorts. These combat tournaments sometimes get quite exciting.

Also at 1 p.m., the Northwoods Mummer Guild will present a medieval play in the lounge of Goldsworth Valley Complex III, the same time that an arts and crafts fair is scheduled to begin in Goldsworth Valley near the pond.

At 8 p.m., May 4, the Collegium Musicum of WMU, directed by Dr. Joan A. Boucher, assistant professor of music, will present a "Program of Medieval and Renaissance Music" in the Goldsworth Valley II dining room.

Also at 8 p.m., May 4, a medieval dance class will be held in the lounge of Goldsworth Valley II.

At 9:30 p.m., May 6, in the University Student Center west ballroom, a group from the Institute for Medieval and Renaissance Studies, City University of New York, will perform a medieval concert on "Season, Sex and Sense."

In addition, a book display will be held in the Goldsworth Valley II lounge throughout the conference and also feature examples of medieval weaving, musical instruments, brass rubbings, and the making of bread, paper and dolls in medieval times.

Six WMU faculty will be speakers during the conference and seven will chair individual sessions.

Speaking will be Dr. Otto Grundler, professor of religion; Sommerfeldt; Dr. Clifford Davidson, associate professor of English; Dr. James P. Zappen, professor of business education and administrative services; and Dr. George Beech, professor of history.

Chairing sessions will be Paule Hammack, assistant professor of modern and classical languages; Beatrice Beech, assistant professor and humanities librarian; Dr. E. Rozanne Elder, director, Institute of Cistercian Studies; Dr. Robert Palmatier, chairman, linguistics department; Dr. Guntram Bischoff, associate professor of religion; Dr. Ernst Breisch, chairman, history department; and Dr. Grundler.

Student Telephone Talkathon Sets World Record, Helps Burn Center

WMU students were planning to "hang up" their world's record length telephone talkathon upon reaching the 1,000 hour mark at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The 100 students taking part from Bigelow Hall, a men's residence, and Henry Hall, a women's residence, broke the old world's mark of 724 hours on Saturday, April 12. That previous record, held by Morehead State University, was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Thomas Weidman, a WMU freshman from Royal Oak, is the unofficial leader of the talkathon which he organized and began March 12. He admits that this week, with its final examinations, has been the toughest one to fill the one hour shifts at either end of the phone line between Bigelow and Henry Halls.

And the talking is not just for talking. Weidman says the talkathon has raised nearly $500 for donation to the Kalamazoo Burn Center at Bronson Methodist Hospital. Another $100 has been pledged, he said. But Weidman hopes for much more.

Pledges to aid the Burn Center may be made to the Bigelow-Henry Talkathon, Box 4-A, Bigelow Hall, WMU, Kalamazoo, 49008.

Weidman notes that a number of guys and gals who are enrolled in the same classes used the phone line to study together for their exams, going over class notes to their mutual benefit. He said most of the students just talked off the top of their heads about virtually every subject and they really got to know most of the members of the opposite sex involved in the talkathon.

In fact, said Weidman, about a half dozen couples have started dating. He said the cost of installing and paying charges for the corridor phones in the fourth floor wings of each dormitory were borne by the Men's Union Board at WMU and the Kalamazoo Firefighters Local 394.

The conversations were usually set up on a staggered basis by a half hour so a student got to talk to two people at the other end. Some students took two-hour shifts and one reportedly talked all night over the weekend to keep the record intact.

Commencement Note to Faculty

Faculty who are marching in the commencement procession should assemble in the second floor hall of the Gary Center at 1:30 p.m. Wraps may be left in Room 224 of the Gary Center, where you may don your regalia.

Publish Article, Co-Author Paper

Linda Harrison, instructor of geology, is the author of an article, entitled "For Cro-Magnon Woman—in Eclipse," in the April issue of The Science Teacher.

She recently returned from Dallas, Tex., where a paper she co-authored was presented to the annual meetings of The American Association of Petroleum Geologists and Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists. It was entitled "Stratigraphy, Petrology and Paleontology of Several Holocene Rio Grande Delta Distributary Systems in Cameron County, Texas."

Another article, written by her, was published in the January, 1975, issue of Science and Children.

Two on Reading Conference Program

Dr. Dorothy J. McGinnis, professor of teacher education and director of Western's Reading Center and Clinic, and Betty L. Hagberg, assistant professor at the center, made three presentations at a recent joint secondary reading conference in Kankakee, Ill.

Their presentation demonstrated how social studies teachers can improve the reading-study skills of their students through regular course work. Emphasis is placed on how to develop a social studies vocabulary, how to generate purposeful reading by the manner in which assignments are made, and how to equip students with better techniques for mastering social studies concepts.

Western News Changes Format

The Western News will continue to be published weekly during the spring and summer sessions, but not in the tabloid newspaper format.

A newsletter format will be used; it will be distributed every Thursday morning that classes are in session. Deadline for submission of copy to the University Information Office, 3020 Administration Building, or the News and Publications Office, Knollwood Building, will be 5 p.m. Monday.

The next issue of the Western News will be distributed May 8.

Health Center To Remain Open

The University Health Center will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday during the semester break, April 28-May 4.

Nursing services will be provided as in the past and a physician will be on duty from 2-4 p.m. Monday through Friday during the recess.

The Health Center will open for the spring session at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 4.

Join Editorial Board

The scholarly journal "Medievalia" has named Dr. Clifford O. Davidson, associate professor of English, to its editorial board. The periodical is edited and published by the faculty of medieval studies at the State University of New York, Binghamton.

Davidson is the author of more than three dozen articles and a book on Shakespeare's play "Macbeth." He has been one of the editors of "Comparative Drama," an international scholarly journal published at WMU, since it began in 1966. He recently served as editor of a special issue of the journal.

The Western News

The Western News is published by the Office of University Information each Thursday when classes are in session during fall and winter semesters.

Created to disseminate news to the entire University community, distribution is by mail to faculty, staff and emeriti, and students may pick up copies at several on-campus locations. Items should be submitted by noon Monday for publication.

University Information office hours:
8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Dr. Grotzinger Gives Final Address As Outgoing Faculty Senate President

Following are excerpts from a report presented by Dr. Laurel A. Grotzinger at the annual Faculty Senate dinner meeting April 17 as outgoing Senate president.

"This is, if calculations and memories of dinners can be counted, the 18th year and presumably, the 18th annual dinner of the Senate. Significantly then, this evening concludes the year in which the Senate comes-of-age.

"Each year, at approximately this time, the members of the past Senate, the elected members of the coming Senate, and all who held leadership roles during the past year are honored at this dinner. Traditionally, we salute the chair-people of the Councils and the committees who have spent innumerable hours in, as our Preamble to the Senate Constitution describes it, 'the development of principles, policies, and programs which affect the professional and personal welfare of the Faculty in the affairs of the University [and] advise the president in a wide range of University matters.' The areas considered by these Councils and committees are as diverse and comprehensive as a selected list of the names: Educational Policies, Graduate Studies, Budget and Finance, Continuing Education, Research Policies, Campus Planning, Fringe and Supportive Benefits, Insurance and Retirement, Salary, Nominating Elections, Sabbatical Leave, Faculty Relations, Professional Concerns, Grievance, Standards and Academic Grading, Evaluation of Administrators, Student Services, Teaching Excellence, Athletic Board, Academic Fairness, Part-time Faculty, University Parking, and on and on. Some of these are peripheral and do not report to the Senate, but the Senate's Councils and standing committees have, for 18 years, produced what we so blithely call 'shared governance' or, by definition, a faculty/staff/student/trustee partnership in the operation of the University. Tonight, and for the weeks to come, all of this stands in jeopardy.

"Again, lest you linger too long and interpret too far, let me turn to the essence of my remarks this evening. A few weeks ago, in a letter from an individual who, in contemporary phraseology, will be referred to as a 'highplaced source in the administration,' there was a comment about 'all that the Senate has contributed to the quality and progress of W.M.U.' The note concluded, 'this legacy will not be forgotten.' The word and its implications caught my attention. What, indeed, is the legacy of this Senate? What does it bring to the University in its 18th year? What, above all, must we preserve? These are momentous questions for those of us here tonight and for all of our colleagues in this community of scholars. Let me take the bit in my teeth, the documents in hand, and identify at least four areas which are part of that inheritance.

"1) Collective responsibility: Anyone who speaks of the primary legacy of the Faculty Senate must automatically turn first to the concept of collegiality or, as it is defined by one maker of dictionaries, 'the collective responsibility shared by each individual engaged in any given enterprise.' Although that word 'collective' may give some of us pause, we are, I assume, agreed that our enterprise is higher education in general and Western Michigan University in particular. Some four years ago, a president of this Senate, David Adams, addressed the question, 'What is a University?' He ended his discussion by noting that Western is 'challenged to provide a new and viable vision of education, to offer a new model of human excellence in which thought and commitment are united in socially responsible action.' The clear implication of collegiality, of collective responsibility, is that each of us is accountable for the political and educational leadership of Western if that new and viable vision is to come into existence. The record of this Senate shows that it has, during the past two years, dealt responsibly and professionally with such significant issues as (1) university governance, (2) academic standards, (3) general education, (4) faculty assessment through promotion and tenure, (5) academic advisement, (6) the rights and status of women and part-time faculty, (7) state-wide involvement in educational concerns through the Association of Michigan Collegiate Faculties, (8) faculty development through sabbatical leaves and research support, (9) rights of the human subject in research, (10) faculty and staff benefits relative to salary, insurance and supportive concerns, (11) university budgetary matters and program assessment, (12) affirmative action, (13) special contracts for continuing education and even (14) selection and evaluation of administrators. In fact, as we all know, our president and vice president for academic affairs—constitutional and traditional members of this Senate—were selected by means specifically developed and approved by this body. Moreover, this brief summary is much like the tip of an iceberg in its characterization of the 'collective responsibility' of Western's Senate. Through its six major Councils and its 10 standing committees, as well as its direct and indirect input into dozens of other University committees and activities, this Senate, as past President Philip Denenfeld wrote in 1966, 'contributes to a real sense of cooperative enterprise between faculty and administration and minimizes the traditional conflict and antagonism which can sap the life of the University. It gives them common cause, or where this already existed but covertly, it makes manifest their common ends.' That, gentle people, is a legacy which we must preserve.

"2) The academic profession at Western: 'The key element in the academic process and in the academic community is the faculty.' Another quotation but from John Millett's classic essay, The Academic Community. (1962). As the then president of Miami University noted,

'The goal of the academic community is to provide an environment of learning, not a product of learning . . . There is no other justification for the existence of a college or a university except to enable the faculty to carry on its instructional and research activities. Without a faculty, higher education has no reason for being. It is the faculty which realizes or fails to realize the basic objectives of each college or university.'

"Although American higher education has reached a crossroads in this decade, there is little doubt in most of our minds that our University has expanded its educational goals to meet the increasingly wider range of both academic and vocational needs. To a great degree, there has been consensus that our academic community shall avoid the temptation of hucksterism, shall not resort to gimmicks, shall not sacrifice the good for the easy or the convenient. In a recent document, prepared as part of the application for a Phi Beta Kappa chapter on this campus, past Senate President Sam Clark wrote, 'The mind or intellect of the institution is almost entirely in the hands of the faculty.' Such a statement might not rest happily with all here, but its corollary is a clear and present danger. In a report to the National Conference on Trusteeship, presented on April 20, 1974, Howard R. Bowen recalls his 30 years of involvement in higher education and emphasized that . . .

'colleges and universities tend to be incubators of anxiety for most professionals who work in and for them. 'Sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought' is more than a Shakespearean aphorism. It is an endemic academic tendency which, unless constantly fought and dispersed, casts a dark mist upon the groves of academe . . . With new tensions created by tight budgets, internal governance struggles, and affirmative action mandates, the mist of the moment is all but ubiquitous.'

"Such a ubiquitous mist can endanger us all. The scholar's endeavor and his or her welfare is inextricably intertwined with the welfare of the community in which he or she must function. This Senate, through its selected and purposeful mingling of the diverse elements of the Western community, provides a mechanism for that special professional relationship inherent to a company of scholars. In his final comments to this body two years ago, President Clark urged that we hold fast to the idea of value itself—that inner dynamic of the institution, primarily a faculty phenomena, which insists that institutional quality be intensified.' That, gentle people, is a second legacy which we must preserve.

"3) Individualism and freedom. In another chapter of his essay, Millett begins, 'The basic unit in the education process is the individual faculty member . . . Like the lawyer and the doctor, the professor works alone.' If collective responsibility is the essence of collegiality, the other side of the community of scholars lies in the chosen isolation of its membership. Each faculty member largely determines his or her own fate and sets the goals and the degree of effort which he or she is willing to give to the discipline. Although the Senate has provided the medium by which faculty can participate broadly in governance of the University, it has been equally protective of the necessity for the smallest organizational unit, the department, to tailor and define its procedures in a fashion which will recognize, encourage, and reward individuality. In summing up her experiences as President of this Senate, Jean Lowrie commented, some 10 years ago, that participation in the Senate had made her 'more aware than ever of the democratic strength and academic freedom which we as a faculty here at WMU may experience. . . .

That, gentle people, is the third legacy which we must preserve.

"4) Finally, the fourth and concluding point. The concept is simple, that of involvement; the implications, immense. For some 18 years, the Senate has been the voice by which talented, highly educated and skilled individuals could bring their talents, their education and their skills into conjunction with the problems and needs of the University as a whole. During the past year, over 250 faculty have served on one or more of the committees or Councils connected with this Senate. The results of their efforts are as mixed as the activities, but the overall record of cooperative and effective participation in the making of policy at Western can not, whatever the rumors and misinformation, can not be faulted. However, somewhere in these past years and recent months, faculty have lost their loyalty to Western, to our institution. At its worst, that loyalty was misplaced, even maudlin, but at its best, it brought a security and a mutual trust which was critical to the well-being of the institution. Now, as Howard R. Bowen gravely comments,

'In a world in which the only responsible education is education for contingency; when all the familiar moral landmarks seem to have crumbled; when true feeling is threatened by transient sensation; when, in the haunting words of Sir Francis Bacon, 'My soul hath been a stranger in the course of my pilgrimage,' a renewed concern with improving the human resources within our several institutions of higher education might have enormous significance. For institutions of higher education peopled by vibrant human beings could, if we give them a little time, turn the decay we see all around us into the nourishing mulch of some future Spring awakening.'

"That gentle people, is not a legacy to preserve, but a past, a present and a future yet to be determined.

"It would be lax of me not to pass on some finger post of wisdom to incoming president James Casey—along with the gavel, the keys to the Senate office and the problems. Once again, Lewis Carroll does not fail to give the right guidance.

'Be what you would seem to be; or, if you'd like it put more simply—Never imagine yourself not to be otherwise than what it might appear to others than what you were or might have been was not otherwise than what you had been would have appeared to them to be otherwise.'

Jacobs To Give Capstone Address

Dr. Alan H. Jacobs, professor and chairman of the department of anthropology, WMU, is the capstone speaker for a special program devoted to contemporary problems of Africa and organized by the African Studies Committee of De Pauw University, April 21-25. He will speak on "Pastoralism and Economic Development in East Africa."

Carnegie Recital Hall Concert Culminates Brass Quintet Tour

The Western Brass Quintet, faculty ensemble-in-residence at the WMU department of music, will culminate a tour of the Eastern United States with a May 1 performance in New York's Carnegie Recital Hall.

Since its formation in 1966, the ensemble has performed extensively throughout the Midwest and North Central United States. The quintet specializes in concerts for college and university communities, with its repertoire drawn mainly from literature of the Baroque and contemporary eras.

Members include: Donald Bullock and Stephen Jones, trumpets; Neill Sanders, horn; Russell Brown, trombone; and Robert Whaley, tuba.

Four major works have been programmed for the Carnegie Recital Hall performance. The "Suite of Dances" from music by Johann Pezel represents some of the earliest music ever written for winds. Two contemporary works also to be performed include the "Quintet for Brass Instruments" by Alvin Etler and Michele Leclerc's "Par Monts et par Vaux."

The final composition, "Masques" for brass quintet and piano was composed by WMU faculty member Ramon Zupko. "Masques" establishes a relationship to its 16th century counterpart by the directed movements of the performers on stage, as well as by their costume which creates a uniform group of people, such as vaudeville minstrels. The inclusion of theatrical elements in music is a conscious direction taken by Zupko in order to enhance the live presentation of music, as opposed to recorded performances.

Broncos Sign All-State Guard

Herman Randle of Muskegon Heights, one of the top high school basketball guards in the state of Michigan, has signed a national letter of intent to attend WMU, according to Bronco Coach Eldon Miller.

The 5-11, 165-pounder was an All-State Class B selection by United Press International this past winter and earned second team honors on the Associated Press balloting. He averaged 18 points per game and connected on 51 per cent of his field goal tries.

As a junior, Randle was the floor leader on Coach Oddie McCarty's state championship team. In the last two years, Muskegon Heights won 38 games against 14 losses.

Two Ice Hockey Standouts Sign

Right wing Mark Beach and defenseman Joe McMahon, who played on strong secondary school hockey teams in London, Ont., have signed national letters of intent to attend WMU.

Beach is a 6-0, 175-pounder who tallied 18 goals and 18 assists as his Montcalm secondary team posted a 14-1-1 regular season record. He ranked as one of the top three scorers in the London District Conference and also fired in another four goals in a like number of playoff games.

The 5-11, 175-pound McMahon captained a Oakridge Secondary School club that went to the All-Ontario finals, after a 14-2 season mark. Like Beach, McMahon carries a B academic standing.

The music must be seen in its spatial environment, as well as heard, in order to be fully appreciated.

C. Curtis-Smith, also a faculty member in the WMU department of music, will be the pianist.

History Department Cites 12 Students

Twelve students recently were honored for academic excellence in a special WMU history department ceremony.

The James O. Knauss award was given to James H. Gill, Jr., a Huntington Woods senior. This annual award is given to the senior history major who has compiled the highest career grade-point average in history courses.

Dr. Knauss was on WMU's faculty 30 years and headed the history department 11 years. He retired in 1956, 14 years before his death. Knauss Hall, a complex of lecture halls at Western, is named for him.

The Smith Burnham award was presented to Anne C. Halliwell, a junior from Kalamazoo. This annual award goes to the junior history major who has the highest career grade point average in history courses.

Smith Burnham served as head of the history department from 1919 until his retirement in 1939. He died in 1947. A WMU residence hall is named for him.

In addition to these prestigious awards, 10 seniors from Michigan, with outstanding academic records in history courses this school year, also were cited. They are:

Rolf M. Grandstaff, Battle Creek; Robert P. Stoddard, Coloma; Cheryl A. Tenbrink, Fremont; Denise M. Roosien, Grand Haven; James E. Myers, Grand Rapids; William H. Gokee, Harbor Springs; Jane E. Nusbaumer, Constance S. Obreiter and John A. Reimanis, Kalamazoo; and David T. Elias, St. Clair Shores.

Geology Students To Grand Canyon

Thirty adventurous WMU students will depart Friday morning on a geology field studies trip which will take them to the floor of the Grand Canyon and adjacent areas.

The journey includes covering 90 miles on the rugged Colorado River via motorized inflated rafts over 3-1/2 days, camping out on the river bank at night. The group will get the kinks, if any, out of their legs following the river trip by hiking the 10 mile Bright Angel Trail up the south wall of the canyon to the rim.

This trail rises from 2,500 feet above sea level at the river level to 7,000 feet at the rim while crossing most of the same rock formations seen during the raft trip.

Dr. Lloyd Schmaltz, professor and chairman of WMU's geology department, says close up study of the Grand Canyon is vitally important because it is one of the few places on earth where a student can examine thousands of feet of rock from the ancient inner gorge to the newer limestone at the rim.

Schmaltz, who is making his third such trip, says that more than two billion years of earth history is represented in the canyon rock formations.

Revise U.S.C., Walwood Hours

The University Student Center and the Walwood Union snack bar will operate under a revised schedule of open hours during spring session, May 4-June 25, while the Goldsworth Valley snack bar will be closed.

The Walwood Union snack bar will be open from 7 a.m.-1 p.m. Monday through Friday, and closed Saturday and Sunday.

The Student Center building and counter will be open from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday; 7 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 7 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday; and 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday.

The public cafeteria in the Student Center will be open from 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. Sunday; 11:15 a.m.-1:15 p.m. Monday-Friday; and closed Saturday.

The snack bar will be open for vending only from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday; and from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday. The snack bar grill will be open from 7 a.m.-2:45 p.m. Monday-Friday; and the vending area will be open from 7 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and from 7 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday.

Offer Cardiovascular, VD Health Ed. Courses

Two health education courses, one on "Cardiovascular Health" and the other entitled "VD Education," will begin here May 6 and continue through June 10.

Registration for these courses should be made at WMU's Division of Continuing Education. The registration deadline is April 25.

Offered by the women's physical education department, in cooperation with the WMU Continuing Education Division, the evening courses are held on Tuesdays. Both offer one hour of academic credit and meet in 2210 Sangren Hall.

Senate Elects Representatives

New members of the WMU Faculty Senate Executive Board, Senate Councils, and representatives, the Athletic Board and the Association of Michigan Collegiate Faculties were elected by the Faculty Senate at their April 17 meeting.

The new Executive Board members are: Sharon A. Ratliffe, associate professor of communication, corresponding secretary; Dan H. Thompson, assistant professor of social work, treasurer; and Paul T. Mountjoy, professor of psychology, recording secretary.

Most members of the Faculty Senate Councils were elected to serve three-year terms ending in April, 1978.

The Budget and Finance Council members are: Norman E. Carlson, associate professor of English; George G. Lowry, associate professor of chemistry; and Carol Payne Smith, associate professor of teacher education.

New members of the Campus Planning Council, are: Louise Forsleff, professor in the counseling center; F. William McCarty, assistant professor of general business; and Harold E. Way, assistant professor in the library. Elected to a one-year term ending in April, 1976, was Peter M. Kettner, assistant professor of social work.

Serving on the Continuing Education Council will be: Ted E. Kilty, associate professor of teacher education; and Ellen P. Robin, assistant professor of sociology. R. Mark Spink, associate professor of instructional communications, will serve a one-year term ending in April, 1976.

The styling shop and the craft shop will be open from 8:30 a.m.-4:15 and 4:30 p.m. respectively Monday-Friday and closed Saturday and Sunday.

The Gold Room will be open from 11:30 a.m.-1:15 p.m. Monday through Friday, and closed Saturday and Sunday.

The games area will be open from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Monday through Friday, and closed Saturday and Sunday.

The bookstore will be open from 7:45 a.m.-4:45 p.m. Monday-Friday, and closed Saturday and Sunday. Special hours for the final day of registration, May 3, will be from 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m., and on May 5, 6, 7 and 8 from 7:45 a.m.-6 p.m.

Publish Several Western Articles

The current March/April issue of the Community Education Journal contains several articles by Western Michigan University College of Education personnel.

George S. Wood, Jr., associate director of the Community School Development Center at WMU, is co-editor of the issue and also the author of "The Evaluation Process: The Place To Start Is With The Groundwork."

Dr. Daniel Stufflebeam, director of Western's Evaluation Center, authored the article, "Evaluation As A Community Education Process."

Professor Emeritus of Education Maurice F. Seay contributed the article, "We In Community Education Are Turning On Many Lights."

A graduate student in educational leadership and an intern in the Community School Development Center, Eric Smith, wrote the article, "Center Staff As Evaluation Team."

The Educational Policies Council will be composed of: Margaret S. Large, professor of physical education for women; John R. Lindbeck, professor of industrial education; and Charles V. Spaniollo, associate professor in the counseling center.

Elected to the Graduate Studies Council were: Peter P. Malanchuk, assistant professor in the library; Robert J. Ricci, associate professor of music; and Carol F. Sheffer, associate professor of educational leadership.

New members of the Research Policies Council are: J. Michael Keenan, professor of management; Robert Jack Smith, professor of anthropology; and Richard R. Williams, assistant professor of social science.

Serving on the Student Services Council will be: Robert F. Hopkins, professor of counseling and personnel; and Beverlee White, assistant professor in the counseling center.

Patricia Klein, assistant professor of social science, was elected as a member of the Athletic Board.

Elected to two-year terms ending in April, 1977, to the Association of Michigan Collegiate Faculties, was Laurel A. Grotzinger, professor in the School of Librarianship, as the delegate; and Roger A. Bennett, associate professor of natural science, as the alternate.

Also, in a special departmental election in March, Dr. Don R. Lick, professor of mathematics, was elected a Senator, representing the mathematics department; and Dr. James H. Powell, professor of mathematics, was elected a Faculty Senate representative-at-large.

Marketing Club Cites Scholars

Twenty students were recognized for academic excellence at the recent WMU Marketing Club honors banquet.

Ms. Judith Radt of Kalamazoo, a graduating senior, was recognized as the Marketing Student of the Year Award winner. She also will be honored May 21 at the West Michigan American Marketing Association chapter meeting in Grand Rapids.

Laurie Moelker, a graduating senior in retail from Grand Rapids won the $500 District Turn*Style Collegiate Scholarship Award. She was nominated by the manager of the Turn*Style store where she works. The award is presented to an employee by the Jewel-Turn*Style Co.

Three $500 scholarships, provided by the Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, were awarded to: Karen Dillon, a junior in general marketing from Rochester; Sandra Gilde, a junior in industrial marketing from Midland; and Nancy Trowbridge, a junior retail major from Benton Harbor. They were selected on the basis of academic achievement, community service and extracurricular activities with the University.

The following graduate students also were honored: Robert Crain,

Farmington; Douglas Blazer, Grand Rapids; Paul Roobol, Kalamazoo; Randall Corio, Mt. Clemens; and Frank Gibson, Plainwell. Undergraduate students recognized for academic achievement include: Steven Arnold, Berrien Springs; Terry A. Wallace, Dearborn; Patrick Berg, Grand Haven; Marc Maynard, Judith Radt, Patrick Rau, Michael Steffes and Robert Vollink, Kalamazoo; Gordon Dill, St. Joseph; Gregory Nelson, Vicksburg; and Kathleen Kilroy, Mt. Prospect, Ill.

The WMU collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association was started in 1959. The West Michigan chapter of AMA is the parent and sponsoring chapter of Western's Marketing Club.

The main purpose of the Marketing Club is to provide an opportunity for students to integrate classroom theories with current activities of the business world. The club meets monthly, bringing in guest speakers who are currently involved in marketing programs of their respective firms. A question/answer session usually follows the speaker's presentation. Once each semester, the club sponsors a field trip to firms in the West Michigan area to provide an opportunity for students to see marketing techniques put to work in a corporate atmosphere.

Announce Office Name Change

Western's Office of Foreign Student Affairs will be renamed the Office of International Student Services, effective May 1, Thomas Coyne, vice president for student services, has announced.

According to Coyne, a merger of the former Office of Foreign Study Services with the Office of Foreign Student Affairs necessitated a title which would more accurately reflect the expansion of departmental services and the broader range of people to be served.

The Office of International Student Services is organized to provide assistance to both United States citizens and foreign nationals. Students and faculty who wish to work, study or travel abroad are encouraged to visit this office for information and for assistance with securing international student identification cards and American youth hostel passes.

The office will continue to provide a full range of admissions and facilitative advisory services for students from other countries who seek to enter and then enroll at the University, according to Lon Gerould, director.

In conjunction with the office name change, a change in title for Tom Bassett from foreign student counselor to assistant director of international student services will be effective July 1.

The International Student Services Office is located on the third floor (east) of the Student Services Building.

Discontinue Faculty Meal Subsidy Program

The faculty meal subsidy program, which permitted WMU faculty to eat in student dining halls at a reduced rate, has been discontinued as of the end of the 1975 winter semester, according to the office of the vice president for academic affairs.

A statement released Wednesday, April 23, explained that "the costs have risen to the point where the program is no longer possible."

Select Outstanding Philosophy Student

H. Robert Von der Osten of Kalamazoo has been selected as the winner of the 1975 Robert Friedmann Award given annually to the outstanding student in the WMU philosophy department.

The award is named for the late Robert Friedmann, who joined the WMU faculty as an associate professor of history and philosophy in 1945. Under his direction, instruction in philosophy was first offered at Western. Dr. Friedmann retired in 1961 as an emeritus professor of philosophy and history. He died in 1970.

On Program Committee

James Dean, assistant manager of the food service, will attend the 17th annual, National Association of College and University Food Service Conference May 1-3 in St. Louis, Mo. He is on the program committee. Dean will be on the national membership committee for 1975-76.

WMU Student Honors String Quartet Wins National Chamber Music Award

One of the Honors String Quartets at WMU walked away with top honors at the conclusion of the Joseph Fischhoff National Chamber Music Competition held April 19-20 in South Bend, Ind.

Members of the winning quartet are: Barbara Thomas, violinist from Owensboro, Ken.; Harriet Heacock, violinist from Kalamazoo; Steven Wedell, violist from Muskegon; and cellist James Reck from Fruitport. The ensemble performed quartets by Mozart and Hindemith. They are coached by Dr. Joseph Work, WMU associate professor of music.

The Honors String Quartet program at Western is a professional training program for eight outstanding students (two quartets). The program is made possible by grants from the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra and WMU. Each Honors String Quartet rehearses five hours

Show Design Center Work

A free public graphic design display by the Design Center, department of art, continues through Friday, April 25, and then reopens again May 8-18, following the break between the winter semester and spring session here in Gallery II, Sangren Hall.

Gallery II is open 10 a.m.-4 p.m. daily and 10 a.m.-noon on Saturdays.

The show consists of displays of eye catching posters, brochures, newsletters, flyers, programs, buttons and clothing patches designed by students and staff members of the WMU Design Center.

Gifts, Grants Total $205,328

A total of $205,328 in gifts and grants was received by Western in February, Robert B. Wetnight, vice president for finance, told the Board of Trustees March 21.

The total includes $192,414 for instruction; $1,800 for student financial aid; and $11,114 in other gifts.

Among the instructional grants received is a $28,530 grant from the National Science Foundation to provide student science training for high ability secondary school graduates, under the direction of Dr. Neil D. Kent, professor of psychology. Western previously received funds for this project from 1969-73.

Wetnight also informed the Board of a $158,000 grant from the Charles S. Mott Foundation to support the dissemination, implementation and training activities of the Center for Community Education, under the direction of Dr. Gerald C. Martin, professor of educational leadership.

"This is the ninth renewal of this grant from the Mott Foundation, and the total funds received to date is $963,679," Wetnight said.

Western Has Its First Woman Ranger in Army R.O.T.C. Program

When Western's ROTC Ranger Club concludes its 1974-75 school year activities with a canoe trip on the Manistee River, April 26-27, something new will be added to the traditional event.

That something new is Alexandra

Present Five Shilling Awards

Five recipients of D. C. Shilling Awards in political science for 1974-75 recently were honored at the seventh annual political science department awards ceremony held on campus.

The awards are made to students who have completed their junior year of study and exhibit proficiency and promise in political science.

The awards honor the late D. C. Shilling, a WMU faculty member from 1921-52 who was head of the department for seven years. He died in 1956, four years after retirement. A campus residence hall in Goldsworth Valley is named for him.

The recipients, all seniors from Michigan, are: Darrell Lindman, Cheboygan; Nancy J. Diehl, Grosse Pointe; Mark Clevey, Howell; Susan Gerrits, St. Clair; and David Selmer, St. Joseph.

To Landscape Kanley Field

The WMU Board of Trustees have awarded a $4,140 contract for the landscaping of the University's new Kanley Field running track, just east of Read Fieldhouse, to Light's Landscape Nurseryman, Richland, Mich.

The landscaping will be completed by May 1. WMU will host the Mid-American Conference outdoor track and field championships there May 15-17.

The project calls for 79 Simon's columnar poplar trees—41 at the east end and 38 at the west end of the track, 8-10 feet high; nine 8-foot Colorado blue spruce trees; 10 silver maple trees; three red horsechestnut; three thornless honeylocust; three sweetgum trees; and other ground cover, according to Robert L. O'Boyle Associates, Inc., Kalamazoo landscape architects.

Hunter, a sophomore from Holland and the first woman member of the Rangers at Western. She has participated in the club's activities since last fall, including rappelling down the face of buildings via ropes, skiing cross country, rifle marksmanship, patrolling exercises, and individual soldier tactics.

Alexandra says she joined the club "because of its challenging and exciting activities that offered the opportunity to learn skills I can utilize and enjoy for years."

A history major, she entered WMU last fall, transferring from Miami University (Ohio). One of three women cadets at WMU, she is also a member of the ROTC's rugged Orienteering Team which engages in cross country treks with other teams and on an individual basis.

"I love the ROTC program at Western," she said, "and all of its activities. I enjoy sports and have always been active, especially in the outdoors."

Alexandra, along with all other Western ROTC cadets, will attend the Army ROTC basic six week camp this summer at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Later, after receiving her commission and serving a tour of active duty, "I may even make a career of the army," she says.

W.M.U. Students To Tour N.Y.C. Art Galleries, Museums, Studios

New York's Carnegie Hall will be a stopping-off point for 81 WMU College of Fine Arts students when they travel east on April 30 for three days of visiting art galleries, museums, studios and attending classes, plays and concerts.

The students will be attending the Western Brass Quintet concert on Thursday, May 1, in Carnegie Recital Hall, meeting afterward with WMU President John T. Bernhard and many of the New York area alumni. On Friday and Saturday, May 2 and 3, they will be visiting some of the many arts attractions in Manhattan before boarding the bus early May 4 to return to Kalamazoo.

Special arrangements have been made for the 32 dance students to participate in master classes May 2 and 3 presented by Erick Hawkins of the famed Erick Hawkins Dance Company. Beginning and intermediate technique classes also are to be offered by leading dancers and teachers in the company at no cost to the WMU students.

The Erick Hawkins Dance Company was in residency at WMU for three weeks in the spring, 1971, and three recent WMU graduates of the dance department are currently studying with Hawkins.

Sixteen advanced graphic design students and the Design Center staff from Western's art department will be visiting museums, design studios and talking with WMU graduates now working in New York. The students plan to visit a Communication Graphics 1974/75 exhibition in New York. The show, sponsored by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, features a series of seven 1973/74 WMU calendars designed by Jon Henderson, former director of the WMU Design Center; a Michigan inter-arts conference brochure and a catalog from a Minneapolis-based signage firm, both designed by Linda Powell, a member of the Design Center staff. Western is one of the few universities to be represented in the exhibition.

Only six seats are still available on the buses for the round-trip to New York City, at a per person cost of $26. WMU students interested should contact the College of Fine Arts, 383-0793, or stop in person at 1044 Moore Hall.

Accompanying the students will be Ramon Zupko, an associate professor of music, whose "Masques for Brass Quintet and Piano" will be featured in the Brass Quintet Concert; C. Curtis-Smith, an assistant professor of music, who will join the quintet on the piano during Zupko's piece; and Yat-Lam Hong, a piano technician in the music department.

Cite 14 Foreign Language Students

Fourteen students were cited Wednesday for academic achievement at the WMU department of modern and classical languages' annual honors awards ceremony.

The speaker was Peter Wendelken, a public school teacher at Wunstorf, Germany, who is a visiting professor of German at WMU this year. His topic was "Foreign Language Instruction at German Public Schools."

Awards were made for language studies in French, Russian, German, Latin and Spanish. In addition, three WMU students who have been awarded one year scholarships to study at a West Berlin teacher training school, the Padagogische Hochschule, during the 1975-76 school year, were honored, as was a student holding an honors assistantship in Spanish.

Students honored were Janet Lange, Laura Hoffer, Katharine Engel, Robert J. Reist, Robin J. Roller, Elizabeth B. Wolfston, Anne L. Saddler, Toni Garvey, Norma J. Kruzel, Janis Janusiewicz, Tina C. Dipiero, Faith I. Andrus, Richard Winn and William G. Dugliss.

Publish, Guest Panelist

Dr. Stephanie Demetrakopoulos, assistant professor of English, recently was one of three participants in a panel discussion on "Creation and Destruction: The Poet as Suicide—Sylvia Plath," at Kalamazoo College. She also is the author of "Angel Iconography and Milton's Raphael," which was published in the October issue of The Explicator.

HEADS MICHIGAN Speech Association—Dr. Sharon A. Ratliffe, associate professor of communication arts and sciences at WMU, is shown presiding over the 50th anniversary spring conference of the Michigan Speech Association (MSA) last Saturday in the WMU Student Center. She was installed as president of the MSA during the conference. (WMU Newsphoto)

Kaufman Yugoslav Program Speaker

Dr. Robert W. Kaufman, professor of political science and director of the Institute of Public Affairs at Western, will present a series of five lectures as part of a "Man and Environment" program April 21-May 16 in Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia.

The conference at the Inter-University Centre of Post-Graduate Studies is being supported in part by the Ford Foundation. The program director is Otto A. Weber, Institute for Medical Research, Yugoslav Academy of Sciences and Arts, Zagreb.

He will lecture on the following topics: "Some Intellectual Seedlings of the Environment Movement in the United States"; "Development of Responses by Non-Governmental Organizations to Environmental Concerns"; "Strategy and Tactics of Environmental Protection in the U.S. Federal System";

"State and Local Environmental Policies on Environmental Concerns: Regional Long-Range Planning and Local Government"; and "National Planning Process and Sub-State Regions in Michigan."

Grant Supports Bi-centennial Vaudeville Show Wagon Here

Old-time vaudeville is about to make a comeback!

It will be revived for the nation's bi-centennial celebration in 1976, thanks to a grant awarded by the Michigan Council for the Arts to Western for use by two of its faculty. Lyda and Vern Stillwell, a husband and wife team in the communication arts and sciences department, will prepare a performing company called the Vaudeville Show Wagon to tour Michigan in the summer of 1976.

The group will present a variety of acts similar to those of the vaudeville touring shows so popular when the United States was celebrating its centennial in 1876. Not unlike the traveling companies of the olden days, the Vaudeville Show Wagon will book appearances in villages and towns near Kalamazoo starting in the first part of 1976. A two-week extended tour through Michigan's Upper Peninsula is scheduled for the last part of July, 1976, according to the Stillwells.

Columnist Reports On Maier Research

WMU and Dr. Paul L. Maier, professor of history, were cited by the Associated Press late last month.

Maier's research was the subject of a lengthy wire-service story by AP columnist George W. Cornell, which was published in many of the nation's newspapers on Easter weekend. Highlighted were Maier's findings on the "missing-body" phenomenon published in his book "First Easter" (Harper & Row), and further defined in articles over the last two years.

Maier also wrote the lead article in the current issue of "Christianity Today." Entitled "The Empty Tomb as History," the piece reports how the Easter phenomenon is dealt with in secular history texts today.

Delehanty New Herald Editor

Three students have been appointed to the top positions with the Western Herald, the student newspaper here since 1916.

They are: Terry D. Delehanty, a junior in political science and general business from Flushing, editor-in-chief; Janet L. Jewell, a junior in communication arts and sciences from Utica, advertising manager; and Glenn A. Paiva, a senior in business administration from Niles, business manager.

Delehanty has been serving as managing editor of the Herald. Jewell has been an account executive and has coordinated several special supplements for the Herald. Paiva has been reappointed to his post.

Their appointments were announced by Dr. Fred McTaggart, assistant professor of English, who is chairman of the Herald's board of directors. All three appointments are for one year.

WMU Co-Sponsors National Conference

Three Western faculty will take part in the first National Conference on Aging and Blindness, co-sponsored by WMU's blind rehabilitation department April 24-26 in New Orleans, La.

They are: Ruth Kaarlela, associate professor of blind rehabilitation, who will lead one of the four work sessions; Donald Blasch, professor and chairman, blind rehabilitation department; and Dr. George G. Mallinson, dean, Graduate College.

The conference was planned in response to the Congressional mandate to increase services to older Americans who are mentally or physically handicapped.

The conference theme is "Meeting the Challenges of Elderly Persons with Sight Difficulties—Action '76." It will be conducted by the American Federation for the Blind; the Administration on Aging, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (DHEW); and the Office for the Blind and Visually Handicapped, DHEW.

Emphasis during the conference will center in the four work sessions: (1) assessment of services; (2) availability of services; (3) accessibility of services; and (4) adequacy of services.

Accounting Fraternity Establishes M. R. Conlin Memorial Award

Western's chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting fraternity, has established the "Michael R. Conlin Award" in honor of the 1974 Western graduate who died February 3 after a brief illness.

A graduate of Lake Michigan Catholic High School in St. Joseph, he attended Lake Michigan College in Benton Harbor for two years. He then transferred to WMU, earning his bachelor's degree last December in accountancy cum laude, better than 3.5 on a 4.0 grade scale.

The new Michael R. Conlin Award is presented to a person deemed to be the outstanding contributing member of WMU's chapter of Beta Alpha Psi. His mother, Mrs. Shirley Conlin of Benton Harbor, received the first award posthumously for her son, at a campus ceremony.

A plaque which will bear the names of all subsequent recipients of the annual Michael R. Conlin Award has been placed in the WMU accountancy department's office.

Conlin last fall served as editor of a newsletter published by the WMU chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, on various chapter committees and was very active in chapter activities, including community fund raising efforts and a tax service program for low income families in Kalamazoo.

He was employed in the Grand Rapids office of Ernst and Ernst, national accounting firm, at the time of his death.

Regional Paint Workshop April 30

About 100 paint supervisors from educational institutions, hospitals and correctional facilities in Southwestern Michigan are expected at a Wednesday, April 30, paint supervisors workshop here at Western.

Registration deadline for the workshop, which begins at 9 a.m. in the University Student Center, was April 20. The registration fee is $12 a person, which includes cost of the program, materials, coffee, rolls and a 12:15 p.m. luncheon. A 3:30 p.m. session closes the event.

The workshop is designed to give background information on areas that are essential to understanding the use of paints as well as future trends in institutional painting. It is sponsored by the WMU paint department in cooperation with Western's Division of Continuing Education and Degraeco Coatings, Detroit Graphite Co.

Presentations include discussions of paint coating by various types; factors that influence coating selection; coating masonry surfaces; HI PAC coatings and the true cost of paints; and new trends in the coating industry. The workshop ends with a question and answer period.

Resource people are: Robert W. Ethridge, administrative assistant to the president, WMU; D. B. Leonardelli, director, In-Service Education, Division of Continuing Education, WMU; Robert H. Williams, director, WMU Physical Plant, Tony Van Den Berg, supervisor of decorating and glazing, Physical Plant, WMU; Robert Spies, market manager, and Doug Winfield, maintenance and coating engineer, Detroit Graphite Co. Winfield also is district manager for the state of Michigan, Valspar Corp.

Article Reports On Local Research

The March-April issue of the "Journal of Agricultural and Food Chemistry" contains an article describing the findings of a joint research effort by two WMU faculty and a graduate student into extracting substances by the use of organic solvents.

Dr. Thomas Houser, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. Philip Hsieh, professor of mathematics; and Tesfaye Biftu, a graduate student in chemistry from Ethiopia, and an employee of the Kalamazoo Spice Extraction Co., used derived quantitative descriptions of the rates of extraction of paprika and turmeric by organic solvents to show it was possible to optimize conditions to increase the efficiency of the process.

Co-Sponsor Juvenile Court Program

A Basic Juvenile Court Training Program, sponsored by the Michigan Supreme Court's Office of Court Administrator in cooperation with WMU's department of counseling and personnel and Division of Continuing Education, will be held April 28-May 2.

The program, "Basic Treatment and Counseling Techniques for Caseworkers," will be held at the Nazareth College Conference Center, Kalamazoo.

The program will be devoted to individual client aids and include sessions on caseworker services to the family and counseling techniques for the minority group client.

A grant from the Juvenile Services Training Council is supporting the program. One hour of academic credit may be earned by participants. Registration begins at 9 a.m., April 28. The cost is $5 for undergraduate or $12 for graduate credit.

Among WMU participants are: Dr. Robert Betz, professor of counseling and personnel; Dr. William Martinson, professor and head of the counseling and personnel department; and Dr. Wyatt Kirk, assistant professor, Counseling Center.

8 Faculty Present Metrics Program

Eight WMU industrial education department faculty members are taking part in the 4th International Conference of the American Industrial Arts Association this week in Cincinnati, Ohio.

At the session dealing with Metrics in Industrial Education, Dr. Charles Risher, acting department chairman, and Dr. John R. Lindbeck, professor and director of the Center for Metric Education and Studies, opened the program with a discussion of metric practices.

Other WMU faculty, who will discuss metrics in drafting, general metals and machine shop, are Dr. Michael B. Atkins, assistant professor; Wallace Fillingham and Rex E. Hall, associate professors.

The final portion of the afternoon program will be given by Gilbert R. Hutchings, professor; Dr. Dennis E. Darling, assistant professor; and Arvon D. Byle, associate professor, on metrics in woodworking, power and energy, and graphic arts, respectively.

In 1972, WMU inaugurated the first Center for Metric Education in the nation, subsequently renamed the Center for Metric Education and Studies, with an enlarged scope.

To Study Dewey Decimal System

The extent to which the Dewey Decimal Classification system is used by U.S. and Canadian libraries will be studied during the next year by Dr. John P. Comaromi, WMU associate professor of librarianship.

He has been appointed principal investigator for the project by the Forest Press, Albany, N.Y. Comaromi will distribute questionnaires and conduct interviews with library personnel, along with other members of the research project.

Their aim is to find out how widely the Dewey system is used and how it is adapted in some libraries. A final report will be submitted at a conference in the fall of 1975 at the University of Illinois.

Benner Wins $500 Heinz Scholarship

Roderick L. Benner of Temperance, Mich., has been awarded a $500 scholarship grant by the H. J. Heinz Co. Foundation for 1974-75 study in WMU's food distribution program. He was chosen on the basis of his academic record and career interest. A 21-year-old senior, he is employed as a management trainee by the Kroger Co. in Livonia, Mich., as part of his work-study program.

According to Richard Patton, Heinz vice president of grocery marketing and sales, the scholarship program was begun in 1954 and is currently presented to students at five schools: Michigan State University, the Academy of Food Marketing at Saint Joseph's College, Cornell University, the University of Southern California, and WMU. The program was initiated by Heinz to develop young people for food industry careers, and to prepare for management responsibilities in all segments of the industry.

Western's food distribution program is conducted in cooperation with food industry trade associations.

Participate in Program

Three WMU faculty and staff members recently took part in an educator/advertising agency seminar at the D'Arcy, MacManus & Masius Advertising agency offices in Bloomfield Hills.

They are: Dr. Robert B. Trader, head of the marketing department; Zane Cannon, assistant professor of marketing; and Dwight Shier, assistant director of the Placement Center.

Seven Western Faculty To Participate In Regional Speech, Hearing Conference

Seven members of Western's speech pathology and audiology department faculty will play vital roles in the first North Central Region Conference of the American Speech and Hearing Association May 7-10, in Minneapolis.

Dr. Robert Erickson, professor, is program chairman for the nine-state conference and officially opens the conference.

Dr. Frank Robinson, professor and department head, will serve as coordinator for a session on "Treatment of Children Who Stutter."

Dr. Charles Van Riper, distinguished university professor, will address the full conference on "State of the Art."

Dr. Harold Bate, professor, is a member of the program committee

Math Department Recognizes Nine

Nine students recently were honored at the annual undergraduate awards colloquium of the WMU mathematics department.

Among the awards presented were three which honor deceased faculty members of the department. Those are the John P. and Nora Everett Award, the Grover C. Bartoo Memorial Scholarship and the Charles H. Butler Award.

Dr. Everett was the first head of WMU's mathematics department, serving on the faculty from 1914-45. Everett Tower, a faculty office building, is named for him. This award goes to seniors showing outstanding promise as teachers of secondary school math.

Dr. Bartoo was on Western's mathematics faculty 1922-46. This award goes to the junior math major who has exhibited the highest proficiency and promise in mathematics.

Dr. Butler was on the mathematics faculty 28 years, serving as department head 1951-60. This award goes to graduate teaching assistants in recognition of excellence in this endeavor.

Students honored were:

Joseph F. Langdon, Clio; Ann L. Hackenberg, Three Rivers; Marcia F. Bakker, West Olive; Karen E. Skarbek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Salba Laal, Wing Cheong Chau, Harold G. Varnis, James M. Benedict and Sister Mary C. Brechting, all of Kalamazoo.

Wins Alexander Grant Accounting Scholarship

Randall A. Ritsema, a Grand Rapids junior, has been awarded the Alexander Grant and Co. Scholarship for "superior academic performance in accountancy."

The Alexander Grant Scholarship is the oldest one in the WMU accountancy department and is considered the most distinguished awarded by that department.

Alexander Grant, a national firm of certified public accountants, has west Michigan offices in Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Muskegon.

Presents Anthropology Paper

Ms. Sonia Sturdevant, a graduate student in the department of anthropology, recently presented a paper on "The Social Organization of an Archeological Excavation Crew" at the recent Central States American Anthropological Association meetings in Detroit. Her participation was made possible by a Graduate College Research Fund award.

and will be coordinator/moderator of a session on "Total Communication in Public School Programs for the Hearing Impaired."

Mary Ida Hunt, assistant professor, will coordinate a session on "Communication Aids for Non-Vocal Severely Physically Disabled."

Dr. Michael Clark, assistant professor, will moderate a session on "Sociolinguistic Development: Mother-Child Interaction."

Ms. Leslie VonBergen, instructor, will moderate a session on "Articulatory Diagnosis Through Distinctive Feature Analysis."

The conference theme is "Project Update" and is intended to serve the continuing educational needs of all professional personnel.

Two Twinbills For Western

Western's baseball squad resumes Mid-American Conference play with a Saturday doubleheader at Northern Illinois and then comes back to South Bend for another twinbill with Notre Dame the next day.

The Broncos dropped a pair of last inning decisions here with Ohio University, 7-6 and 5-3, last Saturday. This marked the opening of the MAC schedule and left WMU with a 4-7 overall mark. Ohio's winning runs in both games were of the unearned variety.

Coach Bill Chambers is contemplating one lineup change this week, that is moving infielder Jim Millward to left field. The Portage sophomore had three hits in six trips to the plate on Saturday.

McCully Top Scholar Athlete

Senior Kevin McCully, one of the top swimmers in the Mid-American Conference, has been selected as Western's "Outstanding Scholar-Athlete" for 1975.

McCully and the nine other MAC institution recipients of this award will be honored at the Mid-American spring games, May 15-17 here at WMU.

Academically, the Kalamazoo native carries a 3.62 average (4.0 scale) as a biology major and holds a prestigious Waldo-Sangren Scholarship from the University. At the recent MAC championships, McCully picked up third places in the 200-yard breaststroke and the 400 individual medley and was fourth in the 200 I.M.

Enter Ball State, Drake Relays

The prestigious Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa, on Friday and Saturday will highlight this week's activity for Western's varsity men's track and field team. Coach Jack Shaw also will send a contingent to the Ball State Relays on Saturday.

At the Drake Relays, Western Michigan will be recognized as the 1975 "University Division Honor Team." This award is presented annually to a team that has a record of long-time participation in this meet.

Bronco Golfers In MAC Meet

Western Michigan's varsity men's golf team will be in Angola, Ind., on Saturday for a dual encounter with defending NAIA champion Tri-State College and then continue on to Oxford, O., for the Mid-American Conference Invitational two days later.

Coach Merle Schlosser's club hosted Tri-State last weekend, however, the match was concluded after just nine holes because of weather conditions. Western was leading by 18 strokes at the time.

All ten MAC schools are expected to compete in Monday's Invitational along with many of the Big Ten representatives and Tennessee, Kentucky and Notre Dame.

WMU basketball player Tom Cutter ranked tenth among national field goal percentage leaders with a mark of .598 in 1974-75 play.

WMU's track team is undefeated in 50 dual meets dating back to 1965.

To Close Parts of Two Campus Streets from April 28-Sept. 1

The campus community is reminded that parts of two WMU campus streets will be closed from April 28-Sept. 1 during the construction of the Western Avenue expansion.

The major changes involve the closing of VandeGiessen Road from Howard Street north to a point south of East and West Shaw Lanes; and the closing of Western Avenue from in front of Building D in the Elmwood Apartment Complex to VandeGiessen Road.

During the construction, Arcadia Road will be opened to two-way traffic and parking will be prohibited on both sides of that campus street to facilitate the traffic flow.

Broncos Sign Illinois Guard

Basketball Guard Kevin Westervelt of Peoria, Ill., has signed and returned a national letter of intent to enroll at WMU, according to Bronco Coach Eldon Miller.

The 6-2, 155-pounder averaged 12 points and a school record five assists per game this past winter as his Richwoods High team finished third at the Illinois State Tournament.

Westervelt finished with a 51 per cent field goal average and was successful on 70 per cent of his free throw opportunities. He earned All Mid-State Nine Conference honors.

Over the past two years, Coach Wayne Hammerton's quintet won 57 games against just five defeats. Westervelt captained the 1974-75 team.

"With Kevin and Herman Randle, we feel we have two excellent guards with ball handling abilities," remarked Miller. "Both are also fine team players." Randle is an All-State Class B selection from Muskegon Heights.

Net Team Faces Three on Road

Three meets against Mid-American Conference opposition are on tap for WMU's varsity men's tennis team this Friday and Saturday at Bowling Green, O.

On the first day, Coach Jack Vredevelt's team takes on defending titlist Miami University, which returns four of its top players from a year ago. The next day, Central Michigan and the host Falcons will provide the opposition.

Last weekend, WMU upped its season mark to 8-5 following home victories over Kent State, 9-0; Toledo, 8-1, and Henry Ford Community College, 5-4.

Also, traffic exiting the Read Fieldhouse parking lot onto Oliver Street will be permitted to turn left (east) onto Stadium Drive; however, no Stadium Drive traffic will be permitted to turn left onto Oliver Street.

Access to Miller Auditorium parking lots will be from Howard Street, just east of the pedestrian overpass, throughout the construction period. The Knollwood Avenue to Auditorium Drive route also will remain open during this period.

Every effort will be made to provide access to Parking Lot No. 23 on the south side of Western Avenue, across from the Elmwood Apartments. Access to Parking Lots No. 22 and 24 for Elmwood Apartment residents will be provided by Arcadia Road to VandeGiessen Road to either Moore Drive or East Shaw Lane.

Access to the Wood Hall and Maybee Music Building parking lots will be provided by Arcadia Road or by Auditorium Drive to West Shaw Lane to VandeGiessen Road.

Uzelac Assesses Spring Practice

"Our team demonstrated great improvement from the beginning of practice period and I feel that we are solid in a lot of respects," summarized WMU Coach Elliot Uzelac as the Bronco footballers concluded 20 spring practice sessions.

The first-year mentor was pleased by three accomplishments, those being offensive and defensive techniques, a solid running attack by the offense and the defense demonstrating that it could withstand the run.

Areas that still need work in the fall are the kicking game, especially punting, and the passing attack, which was hampered by cold and windy weather conditions this spring.

Golf League Entries Due

Faculty Golf League entries are due at the Intramural Office, 101 Gary Center, at noon Friday April 25.

Play will be conducted on a two-man team basis at Ridgeview Golf Course, 10360 W. Main.

The times are available between 2:00 and 4:15 Wednesday afternoons. Play will begin Wednesday, May 7. A $3.00 entry fee must accompany each entry.

Starting times for May 7 will be sent to each player prior to that date.

Three Outstanding Track Stars Sign

Junior college track and field performers Dave Richardson and Alonzo Webb, along with Justin Wilson of Muskegon Christian, have signed national letters of intent to attend WMU next September.

Richardson, a native of Concord, attended Jackson Community College and turned in a :54.0 clocking in the intermediate hurdles to finish fourth at the 1974 National Junior College championships.

Webb is an all-around jumper from Allegheny Community College in Pittsburgh. He owns top performances of 6-6 for the high jump, 46-0 in the triple jump and 24 for the long jump.

Wilson won the 1974 Michigan Class C individual cross country championship in leading his Muskegon Christian squad to the team title. This marked the third straight year he received All-State selection as a harrier.

Conduct Women Managers Seminar

The University's personnel department has recently conducted the first series of orientation seminars on "Management Skills for Western Michigan University Women."

The purpose of the seminar was to discuss basic management and supervisory issues as well as to study particular problems of women professionals. The seminar was attended by 15 women in P & A grades 7 and above.

Another series will be held on May 14-16 and, due to the response from women staff members, a third seminar is being planned for the month of June. More detailed information on the management skills workshop may be received from Deborah Berg in the personnel department.

International Art, Music Workshop Set

An "International Art and Music Workshop" at the University of Exeter in England, August 3-16, will be presented by WMU and the American String Teachers Association.

It will consist of a Drawing and Painting Studio with supplementary Comparative Arts Lectures which relate music and the visual arts. WMU presented a similar highly successful workshop in England last summer.

The workshop will feature daily morning and afternoon sessions in studio drawing and painting as well as comparative arts lectures. A unique aspect of the workshop is the opportunity afforded participating visual and musical artists to exchange ideas.

A $50 deposit, applicable toward the tuition, is non-refundable after May 15. Tuition includes room, meals, workshop classes and concerts and ranges from $375 for non credit to $435 for three hours of graduate credit, or undergraduate credit $420, through the WMU Division of Continuing Education.

Presents Immigration Paper in Seattle

Dr. Charles Keely, WMU associate professor of sociology, recently presented a paper in Seattle, Wash., at the annual meeting of the Population Association of America. His topic was "The Accuracy of U.S. Data on Immigrants and Resident Aliens."
