"NEWSVIEWS" CRITICIZES CHILDREN'S TV

The public affairs series, "Newsviews," heard at 8:30 on Wednesday nights over WMUK-FM, will discuss "Television and Our Children--Who's Coming Out Ahead?" on July 9. Produced by Tony Griffin, news director for the campus station, the weekly show will have as guests Lee Polk, director of children's programming for the ABC network, New York City; Robert Choate, chairman, Council of Children, Media and Merchandising, Washington, D.C.; and Nathan Rutstein, author of the book "Go Watch TV." They are expected to point out the faults of children's television and offer suggestions for future improvements.

MICHIGAN HISTORY REVEALED IN "VOICES"

"Voices from Michigan's Past," a series of eight half-hour taped radio programs which portray the development of the state through stories of its people and events, is now in production at the University. Sponsored by the Division of Instructional Communications, most of the recordings are being made in the facilities of WMU's Aural Press, with studios at WMUK, Friedmann Hall. R. Mark Spink, associate professor of instructional communications, is directing the operation.

Supported by an $8,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts as a Bicentennial activity, the series will draw on the combined talents of Michigan writers, actors, musicians and historians. When completed, it will be distributed to both public and commercial radio stations within the state, and be available in cassette form to schools, libraries and historical societies. Dr. W. Arnold Johnston, associate professor of English, is chief writer and script supervisor. Eli Segal, manager of the Aural Press, is directing the radio dramas.

HOW TO AVOID WAITING IN LINE

Tickets for the Freedom Train which will visit Kalamazoo on July 10, 11 and 12 are currently on sale at the University Student Center offices at $1 for those 18 and under, or 65 and over; $2 for all others. Children under three will be admitted free.

The 25-car train will be located at 1776 N. Pitcher St., between Mosel and Patterson. It will be open from 6-10 p.m. on July 10 and 8 a.m. to midnight on July 11 and 12.

Thomas Carr, director of Auxiliary Enterprises on campus, points out that by buying tickets in advance, members of the campus community will avoid waiting in line to buy them at the Pitcher St. site.
