Executive Summary

Summer Bash 2017 was a multi-component fundraiser event that took place on June 16th, 2017, designed to help DC Strong, a local non-profit organization that brings personalized gifts and exciting experiences to children battling cancer in order to keep their spirits up and minds focused on finishing the fight. The first note on DC Strong’s website is that “In our minds and in our hearts, we know that the children have to give everything they’ve got to get through the battle of pediatric cancer” and DC Strong’s mission is to remind them why they keep fighting and why it’s worth fighting for. What they do brings people together and helps create memories that could not have happened otherwise. The components included a fundraiser jump event graciously hosted by Sky Zone Kalamazoo Indoor Trampoline Park in tandem with an ancillary fundraiser car show that encouraged the community to come out.

Summer Bash took a great deal of organizing, with planning only starting early spring of 2017. Being a student with an event management minor from the Human Performance and Health Education Department, there was extensive knowledge learned about organizing an event but no classroom experience that could have given enough preparation for fully developing and implementing the event single-handedly. Fortunately, my project was overseen by a thesis chair, Dr. Anna Popkova of the School of Communication, and thesis committee members, Anthony Helms of the Carl & Winifred Lee Honors College, and Deb Droppers of the Human Performance and Health Education Department all at Western Michigan University. Along with the help of sponsors and volunteers, a successful fundraiser event was held on June 16th, 2017 from 12:00pm-5:00pm in Kalamazoo at the Sky Zone Indoor Trampoline Park.

Coordination of the event included finding a location to host the event, sponsors to help cover the cost of the event, all marketing and promotion for the event, and the organization of volunteers to help with event day activities. It was no surprise that a number of obstacles arose during the planning process. It ranged everywhere from finding a site to host the event, down to how the cars would be lined up for photography so that there would be no shadows from the position of the sun reflecting on the cars. The challenges were constantly present but the generous support that was received from family and friends greatly outweighed the troubles. The following report is an in-depth analysis of all aspects of Summer Bash 2017.
Situation Analysis & Research

DC Strong, a local nonprofit, is an organization that brings personalized gifts and exciting experiences to children battling cancer in order to keep their spirits up and minds focused on finishing the fight. What they do brings people together and helps create memories that could not have happened otherwise. DC Strong was chosen to be the sole beneficiary of the Summer Bash event, a fundraiser jump event graciously hosted by Sky Zone Kalamazoo Indoor Trampoline Park in tandem with an ancillary fundraiser car show that encouraged the community to come out and support. They were chosen to be the recipient of all the profits from the event, vendors, and sponsors because of the deserving cause of supporting pediatric cancer patients, as well as being a local nonprofit organization with impact close to our home.

The Sky Zone Kalamazoo Indoor Trampoline Park was asked to be the event host due to their guest experience standards, which are the driving force behind their operations and what they believe makes them stand out in customer service. Sky Zone is built around the foundation of healthy, fun activity that promotes being the best you that you can be. The followers of Sky Zone are jumpers that know the value of eating healthy, being active, and being kind to your body.

Both Sky Zone Indoor Trampoline Park and DC Strong have well established followings which made deciding the primary and secondary publics simple enough for crafting and framing messages. With both organizations being local, it set the stage for an event that would promote community and encourage people to come together around a great cause. The difficulty with the event was that there was little to no budget, liability issues that needed to be addressed and many volunteers were needed to put the show on the road. The most daunting part was the weather; being as unpredictable as ever, we could only hope that it would be adequate enough. Cars are a big part of American history and the real classics are hard to come by these days in great shape, so most owners wouldn’t bring the cars out if the weather was anything but sunny. The challenge of being a first-time event created a fun dynamic and a learning experience that had the potential to build lasting relationships between Sky Zone Kalamazoo and DC Strong.

Implementation

Creating a site map was something that I viewed as a checklist (appendix G). Accommodations had to be made for our sponsors if they needed electrical or water hook-up, which meant ensuring that licenses were obtained and that health inspectors provided approval. Electrical hook-up required cable protectors and cord floor covers along with the planning of accessible ingress and egress to meet ADA compliance. If needs were met, the to-do list item was crossed off.

At the hub of all the action was the registration table. Designed as an interactive DJ booth, guests would come up to the table, adorned with prizes and raffle/auction items, an information station, and check-in for both the car show and fundraiser. Included is the certificate that was placed on the windshield of each car at the car show noting the host of the event and the beneficiary, surrounded by sponsors (appendix H).

To ensure that the same message was given across all fronts of communication I deemed it appropriate to create an event fact sheet (appendix D). The fact sheet allowed others to make informed decisions and communicate the goals and objectives of the Summer Bash events on my behalf accurately and efficiently to potential attendees and sponsors. If sponsors wanted to take part in the event with a table and be a vendor for the day, a simple vendor agreement (appendix E) was written up to outline the rights of both the event host and the vendor to address liabilities. The day of event entertainment included a live DJ with full multi-part sound system. To address liabilities related to live music, an entertainment agreement (appendix F) was developed to again protect the rights of the entertainer and the event host.

No cost was incurred for the live DJ who donated his time and equipment to the event.
Evaluation

Objective 1: EXCEEDED

Our initial objective was to increase the number of Sky Zone Kalamazoo Followers aware of the Summer Bash events by June 15th, 2017, by reaching at least 1000 members of the target public. Through the development of a campaign message that resonated with Sky Zone KZOO follower values, we were able to reach just over 3000 members on social media and through the dissemination of traditional print media, we were able to reach 39 businesses. This media included various prints from 6.5x6.5 inch to 8.5x11 inch informational posters, followed by a press release which included a media package to the Kalamazoo Gazette.

Objective 2: EXCEEDED

Our second objective was to increase the awareness among Car Enthusiasts of Kalamazoo of the Summer Bash events, by June 15th, 2017, by reaching at least 500 members of the target public. With the development of promotional materials that highlighted the benefits of attending the car show, we posted materials at local car shows [The Gilmore Car Museum Classic Car Show, Rotary Classic Car Show & Pancake Breakfast, Kalamazoo Corvette Club Car Show] to directly engage approximately 200 attendees with the rationale that they may not be on social media. We then utilized social media creating posts specified directly toward the car enthusiasts that were followers of Sky Zone Kalamazoo which reached just over 3300 people.

Objective 3: EXCEEDED

Our last objective was to raise operating funds for DC Strong at the Summer Bash events with a goal of over $400. With the setup of a silent auction table and the donation of proceeds from the jump tickets of the day, we doubled our goal donating $800 at the end of the day to DC Strong. The booth provided the opportunity for people to learn more about both Sky Zone and DC Strong, while being utilized as a silent auction table and DJ table.

Overall, media efforts online proved to be more effective in bringing awareness of the event than the traditional print media. Our event host and beneficiary both had well developed followings and support group systems in place for hosting events like this. This was instrumental in making outreach and awareness much easier than anticipated. Posts were also made within specific groups with intent to have them engage in discussion and share with others. Reaching out to build a following and level of hype proved to be difficult. Using Facebook, followers were able to get updates on location, time, and activities.
Closing Reflections: The Lessons Learned

The Summer Bash 2017 offered learning experiences that simply could not be found in the classroom. In the events world, it’s a fact of life that things can change unexpectedly, much like Michigan’s weather. What I have learned best is that it is how you react to challenges that will define your success. Turning around and making a hiccup an opportunity is what will keep the agenda rocking out in any field and life.

I am particularly proud of the fact that we doubled our fundraising goal for DC Strong. Meeting these kids and seeing how happy they are to know that there are people in the world that care for them helps to put a new perspective on life. They showed tremendous courage and enthusiasm for the fight and knew that what was happening now was more important than any one thing that could have put a damper on the day. It was a real miracle that the weather completely shifted from what was predicted; we ended up with blue, sunny sky. In the future I would pick one component (jump or car show) and make that the only piece, to focus more on one target public instead of two, and be able to dedicate more time to the crafting and framing of the messages that went out to that target public. Having more personalized materials that could have made the event have a level of exclusivity would have raised more hype about the event. Also finding a warehouse to do the show in where cars could line up under a covered roof would have been nice so that there was no worry about people leaving early had the weather turned sour halfway through the event.

I hope to in the future be able to pull upon the skills I have gained and improved through this experience. The events world is ever-changing with new technologies, bigger sets, more extreme venues, and the highest of stakes to do it right the first time. I am more excited than ever to step into this world and I owe thanks to friends, family, and my committee for helping guide me and offer endless support while I battled to make my dreams a reality.
