

2013

2012-13 Series - Harry Elam, Jr.

University Center for the Humanities

Follow this and additional works at: http://scholarworks.wmich.edu/humanities_events

 Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons

WMU ScholarWorks Citation

University Center for the Humanities, "2012-13 Series - Harry Elam, Jr." (2013). University Center for the Humanities Events. Paper 11. http://scholarworks.wmich.edu/humanities_events/11

This Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the University Center for the Humanities at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in University Center for the Humanities Events by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact maira.bundza@wmich.edu.

Harry J. Elam, Jr.

“The Power and Politics and Performing Race”

January 24, 2013

6:00 p.m.

2008 Richmond Center

What does it mean to “perform race?” How do we, and how can we, understand the relationship between race and performance? This talk will examine the meanings of various performances and explore the interrelation of racial performances in everyday life to those on stage and in film; the case studies in this presentation will be far ranging, going from the horrible spectacle of slavery to the plays of Lorraine Hansberry to the film Bamboozled and finally to the 2012 presidential campaign. After the election, Dr. Elam will look at how power and politics figured into representations of Mitt Romney and Barack Obama.

Cosponsors: College of Fine Arts; Department of Theatre; Office of Diversity and Inclusion; Office of the Provost.

WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

2500 Knauss Hall
Kalamazoo, MI 49008

www.wmich.edu/humanities
269.387.1811

Harry J. Elam, Jr. is the Olive H. Palmer Professor in the Humanities and the Freeman-Thornton Vice Provost for Undergraduate Education at Stanford University.