Call for Submissions

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/wte

Part of the Curriculum and Instruction Commons, Rhetoric and Composition Commons, and the Secondary Education and Teaching Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/wte/vol2/iss2/9

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the English at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Teaching/Writing: The Journal of Writing Teacher Education by an authorized editor of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact wmu-scholarworks@wmich.edu.

The Author

Jennifer Clifton, a professor at the University of Missouri and director of the Missouri Writing Project, works with youth in school and community contexts to develop and leverage their multiple literacies to support intercultural inquiry, collaborative problem-solving, and transformative action in public life. Her work theorized public rhetorica and conditions under which policy decision-makers and those most affected by those policies can be productive public dialogue.

Acknowledgement

Thanks to Bob Fecho for his careful reading and thoughtful response to this piece.