Three receive 2008 Distinguished Alumni awards

A prominent teacher-entrepreneur, researcher and businessman have been selected by the WMU Alumni Association to receive its most prestigious honor, the Distinguished Alumni Award.

The award was established in 1963 to recognize graduates of WMU who have achieved a high level of success in their professions. The 2008 recipients will be recognized at a reception and dinner Friday, Oct. 3.

They are: Richard Koehn, president and chief executive officer of Sentry Animal Care Inc. in Salt Lake City; Nick Triantafillopoulos, director of polymer innovation for the AKTN Technology Center of OMNOVA Solutions Inc.; and Charles Valluzzo, CEO of McDonald's of Baton Rouge, La.

Koehn heads SentRx Animal Care, a start-up company devoted to delivering cutting-edge animal care products. He earned a bachelor's degree from WMU in 1961 and a doctorate from Arizona State University in 1967, then went on to teach at the University of Kansas for three years.

Triantafillopoulos is an internationally recognized expert in coating process technologies and rheology. He earned a bachelor's degree in physics from the University of Athens in 1979 and bachelor's and master's degrees in paper science and engineering from WMU in 1981 and 1985, respectively.

Valluzzo is one of McDonald's largest franchise holders, overseeing 53 stores as CEO of McDonald's of Baton Rouge. He graduated from WMU in 1962 with a Bachelor of Business Administration in marketing.
Around Campus

Today is Business Career Day

More than 110 organizations will arrange on campus today for Business Career Day, which runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Bernhard Center and is open to the public. Placed and managed by Alpha Kappa Psi and the WMU Career Center at the Haworth College of Business, it is designed for WMU students, alumni and members of the public interested in business careers. The fair is expected to attract more than 2,000 job seekers.

National paper meeting slated

The Paper Technology Foundation is holding its 49th annual meeting today in the Fetzer Center. The event is expected to attract high-ranking paper industry executives from across the country.

Japanese writer visiting campus

Hiromi Ito, one of the foremost writers of contemporary Japan, will give a presentation on 4 p.m., Friday, Oct. 3, on the 10th floor of Sprau Tower. Her presentation, titled “Living Between Languages: A Conversation and Bilingual Reading with Hiromi Ito,” is free and open to the public.

Obama documentary to be screened

Award-winning filmmaker and WMU alumnus Bob Hercules will present his latest creation, a documentary on Sen. Barack Obama’s trip to Africa, at 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 3, in 1025 Brown Hall. The presentation is free and open to the public and will be followed by a question-and-answer session with Hercules.

Distinguished Faculty Scholar nominations due in January

Nominations are due Jan. 23 for the 2009 Distinguished Faculty Scholar Award. Up to three recipients will be selected.

The recipient will be honored at a future ceremony and receive a $2,000 honorarium that becomes part of their base salaries, a plaque, and an opportunity to present a campus lecture, exhibition or performance.

The award is based on outstanding professional achievements. Wide recognition by WMU is essential. Current, continuing board-appointed full- and part-time persons

Title: "Senator Obama Goes to Africa," the documentary was shot and produced by Chicago-based filmmakers Hercules and Keith Walker and captures Obama’s return to his family’s roots on an emotional journey to Africa. Hercules and Walker also produced the acclaimed “Forgiving Dr. Mengele,” which was premiered at WMU last year.

Emeritus road warrior to give talk

John Geisler, emeritus in counselor education and counseling psychology, will reconnoiter the history of what is now known as U.S. 12 at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, in Widlow Hall’s Heining Emeriti Lounge. The talk is titled “From Moccasins to Main Street: A Droll, Quixotic, Quaint, Erratic and Whimsical History of the Sauk (Native American) Trail in Michigan Through Its Various Iterations.”

Tech, public policy focus of talk

The United States is the most technologically sophisticated society that has ever existed, but this also means it’s the most technologically dependent, acceivably with a visiting scholar who will be speaking at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, in D-109 of the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences Building.

Kehew

Alan Kehew, geosciences, has been selected as a fellow of the prestigious Geological Society of America. In recognition of his work on glacial paleo-eology and the glacial events that shaped the northern Great Plains, Kehew will be recognized for his contribution to science at the GSA annual meeting Saturday, Oct. 4, in Houston.

Ethics author receives national award

Sandra L. Borden, communication, won the 2008 Clifford G. Christians Ethics Research Award for her book “Journalism as Practice: Macintyre, Virtue Ethics and the Press.” In addition to winning the prestigious national award, she was also one of three finalists for the 2008 Tankard Book Award.

Borden has been a faculty member since 1997. She is director of the WMU Center for the Study of Ethics in Society, a member of the WMU Research Ethics Resource Center advisory board and the faculty sponsor for the WMU Ethics Bowl Team.

Geologist selected as fellow of GSA

Alan Kehew, geosciences, has been selected as a fellow of the prestigious Geological Society of America. In recognition of his work on glacial paleo-eology and the glacial events that shaped the northern Great Plains, Kehew will be recognized for his contribution to science at the GSA annual meeting Saturday, Oct. 4, in Houston.

The citation also mentions his work in groundwater and environmental geology, which has been a major focus of his work at WMU and in his textbook, “Geology for Engineers and Environmental Scientists” and “Applied Chemical Hydrogeology.”

Professor wins award for publications

Jubri Zhang, health, physical education and recreation, has received the G. Lawrence Ranick Research Award for his distinguished record of publications in refereed journals of national and interna-

Study and Work Abroad Fair expands global horizons

The University’s 2008 Study and Work Abroad Fair will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, in the Bernhard Center’s South Ballroom.

The free event will allow students and members of the campus and local communities to learn how they can earn academic credit while studying and working abroad.

Some of the summer programs that will be described are open to mature high school students as well as adults who are interested in travel and learning but are not attending college. Also, nearly all types of student financial aid may be applied toward study abroad programs, including money received through the Kalamazoo Promise and Michigan Education Trust funds.

The fair is being sponsored by the Haenicke Institute for Global Education and includes several new features this year. Among them are:

• Expanded opportunities for overseas internships due to broader collaboration with WMU’s Career and Student Employment Services.

• Presentation of three informational sessions, Study Abroad 101 for High School Students from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Intern Abroad for Academic Credit from 5 to 6 p.m., and the Study Abroad 101 panel discussion from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. with financial aid staff members and students who have previously studied abroad.

• Implementation of a high school outreach plan, through which juniors and seniors in the local area have been formally invited to the fair.

• Prize giveaways sponsored by STA Travel as well as a free pop and slice of pizza, while supplies last.

WMU staff members will be on hand to answer questions about financial aid, health and other issues. Attendees also will have the chance to speak with WMU students who have studied and worked abroad, WMU professors who coordinate programs and courses around the globe, and representatives from non-WMU organizations touring more than 100 study and work programs conducted worldwide.

For more information, go to www.wmich.edu/studyabroad or contact Joe Milostan, WMU study abroad outreach coordinator, at study-abroad@wmich.edu or 387-5890.

An acclaimed artist both nationally and internationally, Robbert exhibited widely in the United States and abroad.

Robbert was a founding member of the Kalamazoo Book Arts Center. A celebration of his life will be held from 3 to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 5, at the center, located in the Park Trades Center, 326 W. Kalamazoo Ave., Suite 103-A.

An exhibition of his work will be on display at the center during the Art Hop on Friday, Oct. 3, and will continue through Oct. 31.

Robert Sechler, emeritus in mathematics and statistics, died Sept. 13. He was 79.

Sechler came to the University in 1959 as an instructor and retired in 1992 as an associate professor.

Nellie L. Stell, a retired WMU staff member, died Sept. 16, in Kalamazoo. She was 78.

Stell came to the University in 1972. At the time of her retirement in 1993, she was an administrative assistant in the educational leadership area of the College of Education.

TowerPinkster gift supports WMU sustainability efforts

A leading West Michigan firm is creating a new endowed scholarship that will support WMU students who want to pursue careers in environmental sustainability.

TowerPinkster, an architecture and engineering firm recently created the TowerPinkster Endowed Scholarship for mechanical and electrical engineering majors.

When fully funded, it is anticipated that at least one scholarship will be awarded annually to a full-time junior or senior enrolled in one of the majors and expressing an interest in environmental design and building. As part of the new scholarship arrangement, recipients of this award will be designated “TowerPinkster Scholars” and be given an opportunity to apply for an internship with TowerPinkster.

The creation of a scholarship for students in environmental design and building fits well with TowerPinkster’s reputation as a leader in sustainable initiatives and also serves as a new pride point in WMU’s ongoing efforts to support environmental and energy alternatives.

Last year, TowerPinkster’s downtown Kalamazoo office at 242 E. Michigan Ave. became the first facility in southwest Michigan to receive Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design, or LEED, certification.

Last spring, WMU received the 2008 Environmental Award from the Kalamazoo Regional Chamber of Commerce in recognition of three important initiatives: implementing sustainable design practices in new campus buildings, committing to major storm water management improvements throughout the main campus in Kalamazoo and developing a centralized energy usage control system.

Walker Institute offers groundbreaking conference
The tremendous diversity of peoples and cultural traditions in Michigan will be examined in depth during a groundbreaking statewide conference Thursday and Friday, Oct. 9-10, in the Fetzer Center.

“People Conference: Ethnic and Racial Diversity in Michigan” is open to the public and being promoted by WMU’s Lewis Walker Institute for the Study of Race and Ethnic Relations.

The WMU community is encouraged to register for the full two days, one day or a half-day at a cost of $125, $70 or $35, respectively. Registration is continuing through both days of the event.

Ethnic and racial groups to be highlighted include: African Americans, Arabs, Asian Americans, Chaldeans, Cornish, Dutch, Hungarians, Jews, Latvians, Mexican Americans and other Latinos, and Scots.

In addition, breakout sessions will allow attendees to interact with panelists in lively discussions of a variety of topics.

Go to www.wmich.edu/walkerinstitute to register online, download the conference brochure or learn more about the featured speakers.

by congregating at one of the organizational or corporate tents that will be set up off of Oakman Drive by the College of Health and Human Services Building. A favorite gathering site for WMU graduates is the Alumni Association Homecoming PepFest, which is the official Homecoming celebration for alumni of all ages.

More information about WMU-sponsored activities taking place during Homecoming week, including cost and registration details, is available by visiting www.wmich.edu/homecoming and clicking the links for “Student Events,” “Alumni Events” and “Campus Events.”

WMU schedules fall influenza, meningitis vaccination clinics
The WMU community may be vaccinated against influenza and meningitis at five clinics this fall as well as at the Sindecuse Health Center during nursing walk-in hours.

The clinics are open to WMU students; faculty and staff members and their eligible dependents; and retirees and emeriti.

They will take place Monday, Oct. 6, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the College of Health and Human Services Building; Thursday, Oct. 9, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the College of Aviation campus at the W.K. Kellogg Airport in Battle Creek, Mich.; Wednesday, Oct. 15, (special accommodations for retirees and emeriti), from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the third floor of the Sindecuse Health Center; Tuesday, Oct. 21, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in rooms 157-159 Bernhard Center; and Wednesday, Nov. 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the indoor tennis court area of Student Recreation Center during the WMU Health and Wellness Expo.

Arrangements have been made to fund the full cost of flu vaccinations administered by the Sindecuse Health Center to employees, and their eligible dependents, covered by WMU’s Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan FPO insurance plan.

For complete details, including costs for non-covered vaccinations and non-covered WMU community members, go online to www.sindecuse.com or call 387-3287.
