February 22, 2012: Utz prefaces volume on Neo-medievalism in the Media

Department of English

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.wmich.edu/english_blog

Part of the Creative Writing Commons, Digital Humanities Commons, English Language and Literature Commons, and the Linguistics Commons

WMU ScholarWorks Citation

This Blog is brought to you for free and open access by the English at ScholarWorks at WMU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Gleanings: Department of English Blog Archive by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at WMU. For more information, please contact wmu-scholarworks@wmich.edu.
Richard Utz is the author of the "Preface" (entitled: A Moveable Feast: Repositionings of 'the Medieval' in Medieval Studies, Medievalism, and Neo-Medievalism") for the essay collection, Neo-medievalism in the Media: Essays on Film, Television, and Electronic Games, edited by Carol L. Robinson and Pamela Clements. The volume ends with an "Epilogue" by Terry Jones (yes, Terry Jones of Monty Python fame). And on the pages framed by these two paratexts scholars investigate the many diverse ways in which contemporary media represent, reflect, and recreate medieval culture. See the full table of contents and publisher's information HERE.

Posted by Richard Utz at 10:52 PM