February 23, 2012: Graduate Student Conference, 2/24, Center for Humanities

Department of English
Thursday, February 23, 2012

Graduate Student Conference, 2/24, Center for Humanities

Graduate Humanities Conference
February 24, 2012 ~ University Center for the Humanities

9:15 Welcome and Introductions

9:20 Keynote Address - Pablo Pastrana, Department of Spanish

10:00 Session 1

11:50 Session 2

1:00 Lunch

2:00 Session 3

[n.b.: this closing session features papers from English Department students as well as a response by our own Dr. Eve Salisbury]

Posted by CCN at 4:21 PM No comments:

Labels: conference

Ph.D. student Glenn Shaheen earns finalist position

The Poetry Society (www.poetrysociety.org) announced Glenn Shaheen as a finalist for the Norma Farber Frst Book Award. This award was established by the family and friends of Norma Farber, poet and author of children's books, for a first book of original poetry written by an American and published in either a hard or soft cover in a standard edition in 2011. Translations are ineligible, as are chapbooks. Winning books are distributed to PSA members at the Second Century Friend level and above. Congratulations Glen!

Posted by bethlynn at 12:49 PM