Board to meet April 22

The Board of Trustees is scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. Friday, April 22, in the Board Room of the Bernhard Student Center. Agenda items are expected to include the consideration of a 4.9%-per-cent increase in room and board rates and a systemwide 4.9%-per-cent increase in apartment rental rates. Those measures were tabulated at the March meeting to allow public comment by residents. The list of faculty members to be considered for tenure is on the agenda. The meeting is open to the public.

Next News is May 5

This issue is the last Western News of the winter semester. The next News will be published Thursday, May 5. The deadline is noon Tuesday, May 3. Western News will be published every other week during the spring and summer.

More than 1,670 degrees to be conferred April 22

The University will award more than 1,670 degrees in winter commencement exercises at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 23, in Read Fieldhouse.

In addition, state Rep. Morris W. Hooey, R-Staunton, will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree.

The University also will present its Distinguished Service Awards to Dean R. Tyndall, occupational therapy, and Christine G. Zimmerman, University Wellness Programs (see related story this page).

Music for the ceremony will be performed by the University Symphonic Band, conducted by Richard Suddendorf, music. The national anthem and the alma mater will be sung by Western's chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi professional music fraternity.

The Rev. H.G.D. Dodge of St. Francis Catholic Church in Staunton, Va., will give the invocation and the benediction. Dodge is the son of Agnes E. Dodge, who is being received a bachelor's degree with majors in history and English during the ceremonies.

A total of 1,255 bachelor's, 402 master's and specialists' and 14 doctoral degrees will be awarded.

Regalia is available

Candidates for the winter commencement exercises are reminded that they can secure regalia in the basement of East Hall at these times: from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday, April 19; from noon to 7 p.m., Wednesday, April 20; and from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday, April 23. The performances will be in the Western Union Building on April 26-27. The cast includes, from left: standing, Terrill Renwick, Annette Lauer, Deanna Boyd and Kate Murray; sitting, Maria Suarez, Molly Stark and Mary Louise Herrold. Lydia Stillwell, director, is the producer. W. Western News March 31, 1988

Tyndall, Zimmerman earn Distinguished Service Awards

Dean R. Tyndall, occupational therapy, and Christine G. Zimmerman, University Wellness Programs, are the recipients of this year’s Distinguished Service Awards.

Each will be presented with a plaque and $3,500. The awards will be announced Saturday, April 23. In addition, $1,000 will be added to their base salaries.

The award was established in 1980 and is presented to up to two people each year. In years when two are awarded, one is given to a faculty member and the other to a staff member.

Tyndall and Zimmerman were selected from campuswide nominations by a committee headed by Visho Sharma, chairperson of the general studies faculty. Criteria included: served through the design and implementation of innovative and effective programs; service in areas that contribute to the growth of the University; and service that extends the impact of the University to the larger community.

Tyndall has been a WMU faculty member since 1955. He earned his bachelor's degree in 1952 in occupational therapy and his master's degree in the teaching of occupational therapy in 1956, both from WMU. He developed the first graduate program in physical therapy in the United States in 1959.

Zimmerman has served as acting head of the department in 1961-62 and 1964-66, and was chairperson from 1971-76. She currently teaches graduate and undergraduate students in the department as assistant coordinator of undergraduate curriculum.

Tyndall has earned several awards for his teaching and his work in the occupational therapy profession, including: receiving WMU's Alumni Teaching Excellence Award in 1970; being one of a few WMU faculty members selected for inclusion in the volume, "Outstanding Educators in America," in 1971; being named to the Roster of Fellows for the American Occupational Therapy Association in 1972; and receiving the Distinguished Service Award of the Michigan Occupational Therapy Association in 1974.

This year, he was presented with the Award of Merit from the AOTA. The award, bestowed on one person annually, is the highest honor presented by that organization.

Tyndall is perhaps best known for his work on cancer. In addition to being on numerous college and University committees, he has served on six search committees for high level administrators at WMU, including the 1985 presidential search committee and the 1986-87 provost search committee.

In nominating him for the Distinguished Service Award, one person said that Tyndall has been selected for these tasks "because of his even-handed management of disagreements, his skill and temperament in bridging differences, his facilitative leadership skills and his willingness to take on and complete the work of committees."

He has been active as a committee member both in the AOTA and the MOTA. Currently, he is an alternate representative to the AOTA Representative Assembly and a member of the MOTA's Board of Management.

He is serving the University as a health-care administrator and as a member of the executive committee of Western's chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Also active in the community, Tyndall recently completed a three-year term on the Kalamaazoo County Human Services Department board. He also just completed a three-year term as a member of the Community Services Division development committee and is on the board of directors of the Michigan Association of Boards of Health.

Zimmerman began her work at WMU in 1979 as a health educator in the Student Health Center. She was responsible for planning, developing, implementing and evaluating health education programs and materials for students.

In 1985, she was named administrator of University Wellness Programs. Her duties have included overseeing programs not only in student health promotion, but also a new employee wellness program, "Zest for Life," that is available to all faculty and staff as a fringe benefit.

She was involved in the development of this program, which has been used as a model by other institutions.

Zimmerman's work with student health promotion has continued. She has worked with the development of the student health education programs that assist students in acquiring professional skills as well as in sharing health information with other students. These programs, developed in collaboration with faculty members, cover such areas as sexual health concerns, nutrition assessment, weight management and blood pressure education.

Also since 1985, she has been chairperson of the University Wellness Committee. The group is responsible for monitoring the AIDS Task Force to the WMU president in support of a healthy University environment. Most recently, the committee has been working with the University's AIDS Task Force to develop an educational program on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

Tyndall has been a member of the University as a resource for workshopping for faculty, staff and students on such issues as leadership, conflict management and smoking cessation.

She organized an annual Sexual Health Week, and health fair, and writes regular columns for the health-care administrator and for the Western Herald student newspaper.

Open meetings scheduled for dean candidates

Open sessions to give the University community an opportunity to meet the candidates for dean of students are scheduled for next week. All sessions will take place from 1:50 to 2:50 p.m. in the Kiva Room of the Faunce Student Services Building.

The candidates and the dates of their visits are:

- Jack A. Taylor, assistant vice president for minority affairs at Bowling Green State University, Monday, April 18.
- Dennis C. Roberts, associate dean of student lifefirector of residence life and leadership programs for Michigan State University, Wednesday, April 20.
- Robert G. Cabello, assistant vice president for student affairs, Illinois State University, Thursday, April 21.

The other candidate for the campus earlier this week. They are: Theresa Powell, director of two-year campus programs for the Ohio Board of Regents and former dean of students at Wilberforce University; and Richard N. McKeag, associate dean of students at Indiana University.

The Dean Students Search Committee charged with finding a successor to Marie L. Stevens, who has retired, is chaired by Louise S. Forsell, associate vice president for student services.

Civil Rights Commission inquiry to be here Monday

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission will conduct a public inquiry from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, April 18, in the Red Rooms of the Bernhard Student Center.

The commission seeks to be a catalyst for dialogue on the topic of discrimination on Michigan's college campus. Said James H. Full, information officer for the commission.

The commission is conducting an inquiry at the University of Michigan on April 15 and one at Ferris State University on May 9. Additional inquiries are being considered for Detroit and Lansing.

Persons who wish to speak at the inquiry here may call George Start at (616) 964-2713 at the commission's Battle Creek office.

12 awarded Medallion Scholarships

Two top high school seniors each have been awarded prestigious Medallion Scholarships to attend Western this fall.

Each scholarship, valued at $22,000 over four years, is made possible by a private donor through the WMU Foundation. They are among the largest merit-based awards in American public higher education.

The recipients, their high schools and their intended academic programs at WMU are:

- Lynn H. Cheney of Fall River, Wis., Fall River High School in accounting.
- Joyce E. Hinders of Torrance, Calif., Torrance High School, theatre.
- Nicholas G. Iwasko of Okemos, Okemos High School, biology and music.
- David K. Kedrowski of Farwell, Farwell Area High School, undecided.
- Cory A. Leon of Detroit, Cass Technical High School, physics.
- Sandra E. Marble of Ann Arbor, Ann Arbor Huron High School, special education for the mentally impaired.
- Robert B. Marvin of Livonia, Winston Churchill High School, engineering.
- M. Todd Myers of Mt. Pleasant, Sacred Heart Academy High School, accounting.
- Peter J. Riopelle of Riverview, Riverview Community High School, performing arts in theatre and dance.
- Amy L. Schwentor of Port Huron, Port Huron High School, secondary education with a major in mathematics and science.
- James B. Theilen of Fowlert, Fowlert High School, manufacturing engineering technology and business administration.

"These students were among the best and the brightest of this year's high school class," said President Haenicke. "We're delighted to have this opportunity to recognize their achievement and potential through this outstanding scholarship program."

The 12 Medallion recipients were among nearly 580 leading high school seniors from 11 states who competed for $1 million in academic scholarships Feb. 13 and 20 at the University. The event included written testing and oral problem-solving activities for students and information sessions for their parents.

To be eligible, participants had to be admitted to Western by Jan. 10 with at least a 3.7 grade point average in high school, or at least a 3.5 GPA and an American College Test score of at least 12.

The selection committee considered grades, courses, test scores and performance in the on-campus competition as well as leadership, recommendations and, in some cases, personal interviews.

Trip to Spain offered

The Prado Museum and the Alhambra Palace will be among the sites visited by those participating in a WMU tour to Spain June 29-July 10.

Sponsored by the Office of International Education and Programs, the trip will be led by Dean Arnold M. Gallegos, education. He has lived in Spain while a consultant with UNESCO and has extensive knowledge of the country and its culture.

The itinerary includes Madrid, Toledo, Seville, Cordoba, Granada and Marbella. The tour costs $200 per person, including airfare from Chicago. Reservations are being accepted with a deposit of $250. The final payment is due June 1 or, if space is still available, by June 20.

For a brochure and more information, persons may contact the Office of International Education and Programs, 2900 Friedrich Hall, 7-3921.

Research conference set

The University community is invited to attend the opening of Educational Biannual Research Conference from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday, April 15, in 105 Bernhard Student Center. The conference will consist of brief presentations by college faculty members on research that recently has been completed or that is in progress.

Book requests needed

Faculty members who have not submitted their textbook requirements to Western's Campus Bookstore should do so immediately. The bookstore staff would like to procure as many used books as possible for students.

The student buy-back is April 18-21 in 105 Bernhard Student Center. Used books sell for 25 percent less than new books, but still can be turned in at the end of the semester by students for 50 percent of the new price if the instructor has requested the book for a forthcoming semester.

This policy represents a substantial savings for students. Only the national wholesale price will be offered for books not yet requested.

Geologist to speak

Geologist John G. Sclater will present an address at 4 p.m. Thursday, April 28, in 1118 Rood Hall. Sclater is a senior research scientist, associate director of the Institute for Geophysics and holder of the Shell Distinguished Chair in Geophysics at the University of Texas at Austin.

Educated person transforms information into 'knowledge for life,' Dennison says

"The educated person transforms information into knowledge for life," Provost George M. Dennison told Presidential Scholars a dinner honoring them April 7.

Dennison addressed, "Academic Excellence" as the featured speaker at the eighth annual event. It is sponsored by the Faculty Senate and the Office of the President to honor one senior from each department as a Presidential Scholar.

Forty one students received the institution's highest honor for seniors. They were nominated by faculty members in their departments on the basis of academic achievement and promise. Each student was invited to bring a faculty member of his or her department as a guest.

In his remarks, Dennison pointed to three groups of students. One group comes to college confident of their values and beliefs, and they remain confident no matter what subjects they study, he said. "Still another group, fairly confident upon arrival, enters actively into the experience and then departs without any confidence whatsoever because of the corrosive effects of what they have learned.

"Finally, he continued, "the third group arrives with considerable confidence that they have their confidence shaken by the learning that occurs, but these students also develop the ability and the competency to restructure their values and belief systems so as to take account of what they have learned.

"These students have learned to accept and evaluate information and transform it into a coherent and refined meaning of a meaningful philosophy of life.

The institution's goal, Dennison said, should be to help those in all three groups to benefit by a college education even though it may not be clear why one group may benefit more than another. "As Camus once put it," he said, "if there is a chance of improvement, we must act on the basis of realistic outcome.

In seeking to define academic excellence, Dennison observed, "The student -- whether a matriculant of a college or university or pursuing learning independently -- who achieves excellence, just as the professor who strives to stimulate excellence among the students, does so by virtue of the acceptance, internalization, and implementation of a distinctive attitude toward the role of ideas in life," he said. "It is critical to emphasize the pluralism and cosmopolitanism inherent in this attitude.

"Dennison asked, "what does all this mean for the students we honor this evening? It strikes me that we honor them quite simply because they exemplify for us the ideal we have of an educated person. Put bluntly, these students have managed to rise above the stultifying aspects of formal education to set the example for us.

"These students we honor this evening exemplify for us academic excellence. Dennison concluded. "They stir a sense of pride within us, and they also challenge us to follow their example."

Burke selected for leadership program

Richard Burke, vice president for regional education and economic development, is one of 50 leaders selected from across the state to participate in the inaugural class of Leadership Michigan.

Leadership Michigan was created this year as a non-profit educational program in partnership with the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce. Its goal is to develop the talent and tap the energies of Michigan's present and future leaders.

The 1988 program will begin with a retreat in Traverse City April 21-22, followed by seven one-and-one-half-day sessions at different locations throughout the state from May through December. Participants will meet and talk with Michigan's current leaders and explore through a systematic educational program the state's opportunities, needs and resources.

At the end of the program, organizers hope that the participants will have developed a network of relationships with a cross-section of leaders from throughout the state, and that they will have gained new insights and broader knowledge of the issues facing Michigan.

TALER/7-3535
MAGB to honor two students, two faculty

Two students and two faculty members were honored Wednesday, April 20, by the Michigan Association of Governmental Boards.

"The award was made annually in recognition of a treasured Michigan resource and the promise it represents for our state's future," the students are: Edward W. Houghtaling, senior major in biomedical science and philosophy from Grand Rapids; and Linda M. Delene, marketing support assistant at Kalamazoo College, and the four will be honored along with their counterparts at the state's other public universities, as part of the MAGB's seventh annual awards ceremony at the Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

Houghtaling will be recognized by the executive board of the Faculty Senate, and Delene has been on the Dean's List every semester since her freshman year. She has received the WMU-AAC Honor Society Award for her academic achievements and was named a Distinguished Faculty Scholar, the highest designation granted by WMU to a faculty member, in 1983.

Houghtaling was on the Dean's List every semester since his freshman year, was recognized by the Michigan Association's Scholar-Athlete Award in 1986. He has been a member of Mortar Board at WMU and is a Sigma honor society student. He also has been designated this year as a Provost Scholar, Western's highest honor for a senior, in the Department of Biology and Biological Sciences and the Department of Philosophy.

Delene has entered the medical school this fall. Last summer, she worked in the emergency room of a hospital.

Breisbach, a senior major in marketing, will also have been named a Distinguished Faculty Scholar, the highest designation granted by WMU to a faculty member, in 1983.

Graduate students to be recognized April 19

Twenty-one graduate students will be honored for their contributions to research and creative activities at the university during a program Tuesday, April 19, at the Fetzer Center.

The students have been selected as Graduate Research and Creative Scholars by faculty members. The award was designed by the Graduate Studies Council of the Faculty Senate to acknowledge graduate students' contributions to the scholarly and artistic productivity of the University.

The speaker at the dinner will be Dean Lauril A. Grotzinger, Graduate College and who will address "Comfortable Tensions: The Challenge of Learning and Research.

Each graduate department may nominate one student to receive the honor at a level degree (master's or doctoral)

She has been on various committees and local chapters of the American Cancer Society and the American Red Cross, and the Kalamazoo Alcohol and Drug Abuse Council. She currently is on the board of advisors of the National Health Awareness Center Inc.

Admission charged

Distinguished service...

"Ms. Zimmer has selflessly and tenaciously devoted herself to the wellness and health of all members of our University community," said one person in nominating her for the Distinguished Service Award.

She also has received several other honors, including: the Distinguished Service Award for Exemplary Alcohol Education from the Kalamaoozoo Alcohol and Drug Abuse Council, Outstanding Service Award to the Residence Hall Honorary Membership for outstanding contributions to the WMU residence hall system, the Outstanding Service Award from the National Council on Alcoholism, Michigan Education. Also active in community and professional organizations, she is one of seven college and university health educators on the American College Health Association's Task Force for Achieving the 1990 Health Objectives for the Nation in Higher Education. She also has served as secretary of that association's health education section. She has been on various committees and local chapters of the American Cancer Society and the American Red Cross, and the Kalamazoo Alcohol and Drug Abuse Council. She currently is on the board of advisors of the National Health Awareness Center Inc.

"Zimmer earned her bachelor's degree in nursing from the University of Michigan and her master's degree in health education from Central Michigan University.
