Ludlow elected vice chairperson of Board
Charles H. Ludlow of Kalamazoo was elected vice chairperson of the Board of Trustees at its meeting Jan. 24.
Other officers re-elected for the Board's annual meeting were: Chancellor Jack B. Brinn, vice president for University relations; treasurer, Robert M. Beam, vice president for finance; assistant secretary, Beam; and assistant treasurer, Gerald C. Schwemmer, University controller. All were re-elected for one-year terms on the Board bylaws.
Trustee Fred W. Adams of Grosse Pointe was elected to a two-year term as Board chairperson a year ago. Ludlow served previously as vice chairman of the Board in 1976, 1977, 1983 and 1984 and was chairperson in 1978 and 1979. He headed the presidential search committee that selected President Haenicke. He currently chairs the Board's Budget and Finance Committee.
Ludlow retired in July 1984 as vice president and treasurer of the Uptown Co. 1950 magna cum laude graduate of Western, he has received the Distinguished Alumni Award from the Alumni Association.
He has served as a trustee or board member of the Kellogg Foundation Trust, Kalamazoo College, Senior Services, Inc., the Greater Kalamazoo United Way and the Girl Scouts, among others.
Ludlow was a WMU trustee in 1967 and was reappointed in 1970 and 1979. His current term expires Dec. 31, 1986.

Capital outlay funds ‘very good news,’ Haenicke tells Board of Trustees
Calling it “very good news,” President Haenicke summarized the authorization of capital outlay funds. “Thank to bipartisan support, the Michigan Senate and House of Representatives approved the legislation Dec. 18 and Gov. Blanchard signed it on Jan. 2,” Haenicke noted.

Haenicke noted that the legislation provides Western with $12.1 million for a College of Business building, $15 million for major modifications and expansion of Wadlo Library, $359,000 to complete the addition of the Robert A. Wolfe Library, and $1.9 million to complete the addition to the Upjohn Library, 359,000 to complete the addition to the Upjohn Library and $1.9 million to complete the addition to the Upjohn Library.

Consultants sought for International Night
Students, faculty and staff members and student organizations interested in participating as consultants in Western’s 27th annual International Night should contact Electoral Kravitz, foreign study office, 3-8141.

Smith to be honored
Members of the University community are invited to attend a reception honoring the retirement of Vernon V. Smith, central stores, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 31, in the central stores office, 2306 W. Michigan.

AIDS CONFERENCE—About 60 area policy makers and administrators, primarily in education, attended a conference on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) Jan. 9 at the Student Union Ballroom.
One delegate, who did not wish to be identified, said the event was “a very good addition to the educational process.”

Area medical experts to conduct public forum
Several area experts will present information and answer the public’s questions during a free community forum on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) beginning at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5, at the Fetzer Center.
The purpose of the forum is to provide Kalamazoo area residents with current information available about AIDS, the illness that cripples the body’s immune system. Presenters will discuss the transmission of the disease, precautions to be taken by Western and risk and resources available for further information.

David Davenport, an infectious disease specialist, will open the forum with a lecture. A panel discussion and question-and-answer session will follow.

The panel will be composed of several area medical experts who are concerned about providing correct information to the public about AIDS. In addition to Davenport, it will include: Robert S. Tomchik, medical health officer for Kalamazoo County and director of the Kalamazoo County Public Health Division; John A. Penner, director of the Great Lakes Regional Blood Service of the American Red Cross; and Jeanette Phillips, coordinator of the AIDS Resource Group of Kalamazoo and assistant director of the Bureau of Clinical Services of the Kalamazoo County Public Health Division.

Media

Karla F.C. Holloway, English, examines misconceptions that exist concerning the development of minority students to develop language skills on “Focus,” a five-minute radio program produced by the Office of Public Information. This week’s “Focus” is scheduled to air Saturday, Feb. 8 at 8:45 a.m. (1450) and at 12:25 p.m. on WXZO-AM (590).

The community forum is being sponsored by the Kalamazoo County Public Health Division, Borges, Bromson, the Kalamazoo chapter of the American Red Cross and the WMU Center for Human Services in the College of Health and Human Services.

Board rededicates Martin Luther King Room
Recommitting itself “to the principles of justice and equality for all,” the Board of Trustees rededicated the Martin Luther King Jr. Room in the Bernhard Student Center “to the memory of this great American.”

A resolution rededicating the room was approved by the Board Jan. 24, four days after the First Martin Luther King Jr. national holiday. The room was named in King’s honor with the establishment of the Martin Luther King Jr. student-development program at Western in 1968, the year King was assassinated.

Acknowledging the national holiday, the Board’s resolution declared that the late civil rights leader “made the ultimate sacrifice for what he believed… that we all might believe.” It stated that King “set an example that will forever live in the hearts of all people, especially in the hearts of those who seek freedom, justice and peace through nonviolence, that no more blood shall be shed.”

In supporting the resolution, which was passed unanimously, Trustee Geneva J. Williams of Detroit recalled her participation in the 1963 March on Washington, at which King gave his famous “I Have a Dream” speech at the Lincoln Memorial. She said she marched with her father, an associate of King who was active in the civil rights movement.

“I experienced a sense of excitement then that continued as commitment and action throughout the years of struggle to achieve a national holiday in honor of Dr. King,” Williams said. “We can be proud that Western has been in the forefront of community efforts to celebrate that holiday.”

Williams congratulated Carolyn R. Collins-Bondston, assistant to the vice president for University relations, for her role in local observances. She was a member of the Michigan Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday Commission and chaired the Kalamazoo commission.

The resolution noted that “Dr. King’s dream of social justice for all was acknowledged at Western 18 years ago through the establishment of a student-development program in his name that today is open to all students, that the dream might still live.”

The Board, acting on behalf of the University, rededicated the room to King, “that all who use this room may see his dream and know that the dream might still live.”

The Martin Luther King Jr. Program is a one-year probationary student-development program for students who would not otherwise pursue post-secondary education to do so. It provides support services such as academic advising, vocational and personal counseling, tutoring and testing to meet each student’s need. Currently, 112 students are enrolled in the program.
On Campus

THE PHARMACIST IS IN.—Between 225 and 250 prescriptions are filled each day by Douglas Dommett and his staff in the pharmacy at the University Health center. Dommett has been chief pharmacist for about 10 years and has worked at Western for 15 years. Besides filling "scripts," he is in charge of purchasing and pricing for the pharmacy and says his prices are "consistently lower" than those of other local pharmacies. Faculty and staff members and their immediate dependents and students may use the pharmacy. He says it's important to note that the prescriptions need not come from a University health center physician in order to be filled at the pharmacy. He also points out that the pharmacy accepts most third party insurance programs. Dommett says he enjoys his job particularly because of the student contact involved. "It's a good age group to deal with," he says. "They're interested in their own health and in what's going on in their bodies." Dommett supervises a staff of two: Jackie Schley and Irene Woldring. All are graduates of Ferris State College. The pharmacy is open during regular University hours on the weekdays and from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Saturdays.

Nursing program gifts highlight grants, gifts reports

Borgess Medical Center and Bronson Methodist Hospital, both of Kalamazoo, have contributed $25,000 each toward an endowment. For fiscal year 195-6, which began July 1, MU has received more than $4.4 million in grant and gift totaling 144,634. For fiscal year 195-6, which began July 1, MU has

Student participation in class requires encouragement

Getting quiet students to speak up in class can require a special problem. For example, if a student is shy or has a speech impediment, the professor may need to find ways to encourage the student to participate. A good way to do this is to ask open-ended questions that require the student to think about the topic and then express their ideas. Another approach is to create a supportive environment where the student feels comfortable sharing their thoughts.

Colloquium planned for enterprise system

"The Free Enterprise System: For Good or For Ill?" is the title of a colloquium scheduled for 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, in the Feater Center. Scholars and business and professional leaders will examine the relationship between the free enterprise system and the individual system and the cultural and ethical values of society. B. Joseph White, vice president for personnel and public relations at Cummins Engine Co. in Columbus, Ind., will give the keynote address from 5 to 5:30 p.m. Before joining Cummins in 1981, White was a faculty member in the Graduate School of Business Administration at the University of Michigan.

A free speech will be followed by dinner from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and a panel discussion from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Topics will include: Helen McCaslin, dean of instruction, Kalamazoo Valley Community College; Donald C. Kardashian, sociology; and Charles Van Zoeren, presid
Revisions in animal policy accepted

The Board of Trustees Jan. 24 approved revisions to the University's policy on humane care and use of laboratory animals to comply with new federal regulations issued in October. "Western, which has such a policy for many years, always has been careful in its policy," said Laurie A. Grotzinger, dean of the College of Education.

The revisions include the establishment of a committee on animal care and use that is qualified through the experience and expertise of the University's animal-care facility of the personnel associated with the University's animal-research program, facilities and procedures, Grotzinger said. The Board is adding an existing one with similar functions, including a veterinarian who is directly involved in animal research, another who is external to the institution, and a third member who are involved in animal research or animal-welfare committees. The committee. The other members are Allen E. Bulb, research scientist at the Upjohn Co.; Jack L. Michael, psychology: Carol A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

The revisions include the establishment of a committee on animal care and use that is qualified through the experience and expertise of the University's animal-care facility of the personnel associated with the University's animal-research program, facilities and procedures, Grotzinger said. The Board is adding an existing one with similar functions, including a veterinarian who is directly involved in animal research, another who is external to the institution, and a third member who are involved in animal research or animal-welfare committees. The committee. The other members are Allen E. Bulb, research scientist at the Upjohn Co.; Jack L. Michael, psychology: Carol A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

The revisions include the establishment of a committee on animal care and use that is qualified through the experience and expertise of the University's animal-care facility of the personnel associated with the University's animal-research program, facilities and procedures, Grotzinger said. The Board is adding an existing one with similar functions, including a veterinarian who is directly involved in animal research, another who is external to the institution, and a third member who are involved in animal research or animal-welfare committees. The committee. The other members are Allen E. Bulb, research scientist at the Upjohn Co.; Jack L. Michael, psychology: Carol A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

The revisions include the establishment of a committee on animal care and use that is qualified through the experience and expertise of the University's animal-care facility of the personnel associated with the University's animal-research program, facilities and procedures, Grotzinger said. The Board is adding an existing one with similar functions, including a veterinarian who is directly involved in animal research, another who is external to the institution, and a third member who are involved in animal research or animal-welfare committees. The committee. The other members are Allen E. Bulb, research scientist at the Upjohn Co.; Jack L. Michael, psychology: Carol A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.

Animal-care facilities had been visited recently by a veterinarian under the purview of the committee. The other members are Allen A. Neal, veterinarian at the Portage Animal Hospital; Michael S. Prichard, chairperson of philosophy and director of the University's Program for the Study of Ethics in Society; and Edward D. Trumpower, associate dean of the Graduate College and director of the University's Research and Sponsored Programs.
GRAND OPENING—The opening of the Educational Technology Instructional Instructional Instructional Laboratory in the College of Education is a special event this week for college faculty members. Here, Barbara L. Harris, left, and Donald F. Selin, right, both special education, discuss the new facility with James L. Bosco, education and professional development, who will oversee it. The laboratory will provide the resources necessary to begin to upgrade computer-based courses and other courses with computer potential, to conduct workshops for faculty and teaching assistants. The faculty will substantially support the instruction of faculty members in the College of Education on the integration of computer technology in education,” said Bosco. “It will help people better prepare teachers and other educational personnel to understand the use and integration of computers in educational programs.” The college has purchased 112 computers, 10 printers, 25 special-designed tables and chairs and a significant amount of accompanying software. According to Bosco, the laboratory is in the initial step in what will be a continuing effort to upgrade the college with technology.

Thurs/6  Workshop, “Introduction to the Computer as a ’Print Shop’,” 3204 Sangren Hall, 11 a.m.-1 p.m.  Film, “Dr. Strangelove,” 2750 Knauss Hall, 4:15 and 8 p.m.  Lecture, “The Landscape, Highway, Technology and Man,” Doug Alkemade, photographer, Creative Studies, Detroit, 1213 Sangren Hall, 7:30 p.m.  *‘13, 20 and 27 Workshop, “Taking the Rap Back to Work,” Jeff Halloran-Forrest, Red Room B, Bernard Student Center, 7-9 p.m.  Lecture, “Cinematic Art,” Jerry Abramson, art, 120 Moose Building, 8 p.m.  *Admission charged

Betz named director of counseling services

Robert L. Betz has been named director of the Counseling and Psychological Services in the Department of Counseling Education and Counseling Psychology. Betz, a faculty member in the department, becomes the first permanent director of the center, which began offering services in 1981. Previously, the center had been coordinated by various faculty members on temporary assignment.

Located in Student Center, the center provides training for graduate students by offering no-cost counseling and psychological services to residents of Southwest Michigan who have no ability to pay. Betz, a professional counselor and licensed psychologist, will direct the ac-

Poet to speak Feb. 5

Poet Alice Fulton will visit campus Wednesday, Feb. 5, to present a workshop and a reading of her work.

Fulton, whose poems have appeared in Poetry, The New Yorker, Yale Review and Parnassus, is assistant professor of English at the University of Michigan.

She will conduct a graduate poetry writing workshop with Herb S. Scott, English, from 6 to 8 p.m. in the English Center in Brown Hall. Advanced undergraduates are invited to submit poems to Scott for inclusion in the workshop if time permits.

Fulton will read from her book at 8:30 p.m. on the 10th floor of Sprat Tower. The reading, which will be followed by a reception, is free and open to the public.

Fulton’s subject matters frequently include autobiographical and includes family, childhood, lovers, music and dance. Her first book of poems, “Dance Script with Electric Ballerina,” won the 1982 Associated Writing Program’s Poetry Award.

Her talk is being sponsored by the Department of English and Communication Department, the English Center and the Center for Women’s Services.

Ross edits economics book

“The Economics of Aging” is the title of the forthcoming volume edited by Myron H. Ross, economics.

The work is a collection of five papers presented by leading authorities during the 19th annual Department of Economic Seminar, Feb. 2-5.

WMU in 1983-84. The series was sponsored by the department, the College of Health and Human Services, the College of Arts and Sciences, and the W. E. Upjohn Institute for Employment Research, which published the book.

Ross wrote the introduction to the 138-page book. The papers contained in it and their authors are: “The Outlook for Social Security in the Wake of the 1983 Amend-ments” by Alida Munnell, vice president of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank; “The Economics of Dismalday or Shanghai-la” by James H. Schult, a faculty member at Brandeis University; “Retire-ment Incentives—The Carrot and the Stick (Why No One Works Beyond 65 Anymo-re)” by Joseph F. Quinn, a faculty member at Boston College; “Inflation and the Economic Well-Being of Older Americans” by Robert Clark and Daniel Sumner, faculty members at North Carolina State University; and “Over the Hill and Under the Weather: Age vs. Health” by Monroe Berkowitz, a faculty member at Rutgers University.