Nearly 1,800 persons will receive degrees Saturday

Nearly 1,800 degrees, including about 370 graduate degrees, will be awarded during the commencement at 2 p.m. Saturday, in Read Fieldhouse. The total includes seven earned doctorates and nine specialists during the final week of the winter semester.

Honorary doctor's degrees will be conferred on three distinguished persons at the graduation. They are U.S. Rep. Shirley Ann Chisholm (D-N.Y.); James H. Duncan, president, chairman and chief executive officer of the First American Bank Corp. of Michigan; and Bruce Thomas, executive vice president for accounting and finance of the U.S. Steel Corp.

In addition, Donald Blash, blind rehabilitation and mobility, will receive the Distinguished Service Award.

The meeting is open to the public.

"Designers' Showhouse" continues until May 12

"Designers' Showhouse," the venture of the Friends of the Art Center and the Kalamazoo Symphony Women's Association, continues today through May 12 at The Orchards. A group of the interior decorators in this area has renovated the 25-room mansion.

It is open for public tours at $5 a person Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. and Wednesday and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Thursday, it will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for persons who will be here for the commencement Saturday.

Board of Trustees to meet Friday in Student Center

The Board of Trustees will conduct its next regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. Friday in the Board Room of the Student Center. The meeting, which will use the third Friday of the month, has been scheduled for this week to coincide with the University's winter semester commencement Saturday.

Included on the tentative agenda are academic policy, enrollment and administration, reports from the office of the president, the division of the state Department of Management and Budget. Robert W. Hannah, executive vice president for accounting and finance of the Interbank Card Association that established the "First National Charge Account Service" in 1952 and was a director of the Interbank Card Association that later became MasterCard and VISA.

Duncan attended Western Michigan University and is a graduate of the School of Public Financial Relations at Northwestern University and the Graduate Taxation Division of the state Department of Finance. He now serves as moderator. (Western News photo)

Next News to be May 6

The next issue of Western News will be published Thursday, May 6. The deadline for items to be considered for publication in that issue is noon Tuesday, May 4.

Exam Survival Kits on sale

Many freshmen and sophomore students living in residence halls here may receive help while they are cramming for examinations during the final week of the winter semester. Nevada, Jan 19 to 24, in the Form "Exam Survival Kits."

Letters have been sent by the Student Alumni Service Board (SASB) to freshmen and sophomores, inviting them to buy such a kit and have it delivered to their room.

Expect 2,000 to attend Medieval Congress

About 2,000 persons are expected to attend a joint meeting here of the 17th International Congress on Medieval Studies and the Medieval Academy of America from May 6 to 9. The last joint meeting of the International Congress and the Medieval Academy was held in 1974, also here.

The event will mark the 20th anniversary of the founding of the Medieval Institute, which will be celebrated at an academic conversation at 8 p.m. Friday, May 7, in Shaw Theatre. During the conversation, Morton W. Gitkin, director of the Arthur Kinglsey Poets, professor of English at Harvard University, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Western.

Otto Grundler, religion and director of the Medieval Institute, which is sponsoring the combined meeting, noted that there will be two major performances of music, highlighting the event, both at the Cathedral of Christ the King in Kalamazoo.

On May 6, the Society of Old Music of Kalamazoo, will present medieval pilgrim songs and "Peregrinums: A Medieval Music Drama." Audrey Davidson, humanities, will be musical director and Clifford Davidson, English, will be dramatic director. The Pro Arte Singers of the Early Music Institute of Indiana University's School of Music, directed by Theodore Binkley, will perform. "A Medieval Mass" from 12th century Paris May 8.

U Libraries to have limited break hours

The University libraries will have limited hours from Friday to Sunday, May 2.

Waldo Business Library in North Hall and the Educational Resources Center in Sangren Hall will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Monday through Friday, April 26 to 30, closed both Saturdays and Sundays.

The Physical Science Library in Maybeer Hall and the Physical Sciences Library in Rood Hall will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Monday through Friday, April 26 to 30, the week after, May 2 to 30, and both closed both Saturdays and Sundays.

The Cistercian Studies Library in West Hillside Hall will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, closed both Saturdays and Sundays, and open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 26 to 30.

The Residence Hall Library will begin spring hours starting Monday, May 3.

Gold Company, the University's jazz vocal-instrumental group, will be on tour next week with concerts scheduled in Cadillac, McFadin, Franklin, Reese, Mount Morris, Flint and Detroit. The unit's new first album includes new and old tunes, recorded in Oakland Recital Hall on the School of Music Recording labels at $6.95 each.

A Christian recording group that won a Grammy Award last year, The Archers, will broadcast on the WEMU-FM radio program, Arts and Sciences Forum, at 9:30 a.m. and again at 11:30 a.m. WUMK is heard at 101.1 on the FM dial.

"What Makes Michigan's Climate What It Is?" will be discussed on the WEMU-FM radio program, Arts and Sciences Forum, at 9:30 a.m. and at 11:30 a.m. today by Val L. Eichenlaub, geography. Next Thursday's program, broadcast at the same times, will be "Middleweight Studies in Kalamazoo: Past, Present and Future" by Otto Grundler, religion and Medieval Institute director. WUMK it at 101.1 on the FM dial.

Grundler noted that 143 scholars will come from abroad, including a large contingent from Canada, 16 from England, 12 from Germany, and 18 from France. Others will be from The Netherlands, Ireland, Denmark, Italy, Israel, Switzerland, Luxembourg and Australia.

Grundler observed, "We are all children of the Middle Ages; our important social institutions—laws, cities, economic activities and much of our religion—all were born in the Middle Ages."

Laurence Shook, emeritus professor of the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in Toronto, Canada, who gave the program's principal address at the Middle Ages conference here in 1962, will present the plenary address of the congress at 8:30 a.m. Friday, May 7.

There will be 259 individual sessions, most with several papers being read. The registration fee is $11.50 for students and $20 for $6.95 each. It may be made in the lobby of Harrison-Simson Halls in Goldsworth Valley during the congress. However, residents of Kalamazoo County and faculty and staff members and students of WMU may register free, but everyone must register.

For more information persons may call the Medieval Institute at 383-4980.

Second-lowest utility costs among state schools

Western ranks second lowest in the state among public colleges and universities in its utility costs per square foot for 1980-81, according to figures provided by the state. Western, with a cost of 76 cents per square foot, is only 2 cents per square foot below leader, Michigan State University. It is the second consecutive year that Western ranked second lowest behind Michigan State.

"Western's costs were substantially below the state average of $1.18 per square foot a year ago," said William J. Kowalski, assistant vice president for facilities engineering. "We're delighted with that standing, although we're not satisfied about it. That means our energy-saving and cost-cutting efforts over the past several years are continuing to pay off, not only for us and for the State of Michigan."

In 1980-81, Western spent $2.6 million on utilities, primarily steam and electricity, excluding local services, on a total of 3.4 million square feet of space. Michigan State spent $7.4 million on just over 10 million square feet of space. Michigan ranked third in 1978-79 and 1977-78 and fourth in 1976-77.

"In order for us to continue these gains, we must have the full cooperation of all building occupants," Kowalski said. "Everyone on campus must be concerned about energy conservation."

"The Physical Plant staff can only ac- count for 20 percent of the new savings. It appeals to all members of the University community to contribute to energy conservation—by turning off lights, keeping windows closed and moderating temperatures," he said.

Western recently won the Governor's Energy Management Award for innovation in converting incandescent lighting fixtures to the more efficient high-pressure sodium light bulbs in campus gymnasiums. The award included a grant of $12,500 from the Michigan Department of Commerce.

The award-winning project included the replacement of 60 twin incandescent lamps (totaling 120 units) averaging 1,000 watts per lamp with 60 high-pressure sodium lamps at 480 watts per lamp, including ballast. "This reduced electrical load to less than one-fourth its previous value, while still providing the same light level," Kowalski said.

He estimated that total annual savings for the latter project is $21,900, adding that the project paid for itself in just 18 months. "This is the sort of thing that has helped us maintain a very efficient cost per square foot for our utilities," Kowalski explained.

PRESIDENT BERNHARD: We could not have accomplished what we have in the fiscal management of the University without the cooperation and understanding of our faculty and staff. We will be a stronger and more stable institution for all of your sacrifice and your dedication.

Uncertainty, frustration are themes

He explained that the state's budget in 1978 was $3.8 billion and that, with inflation, it now should be $5.8 billion. In reality, it's only $4.4 billion—an "inflation shortfall" of $1.4 billion in purchasing power.

Whims, noting a declining birth rate in recent years, pointed out that state budget cuts already have totaled $580 million this year. "The state administration has determined that budgets cannot be cut further except the 'Big Three' and Western, and still not solve the state's current fiscal problems."

Browan said the 10-cent-per-pack cigarette tax increase scheduled to go into effect May 1 will not generate new revenue, but rather must be used to ease the state's critical cash-flow problems. She expressed concern over the state's low bond-credit ratings and over motor-vehicle production that is running at only 40 percent of capacity.

Against that backdrop, Browan said, budget forecasting is chancy at best. "What it amounts to is, 'Pick a number, any number' between an 11-percent increase and a 22-percent decrease," she said. "Assumptions behind this year's budget and next year's budget are equally soft."

Gilmer, who said budget figures often appear to be "written in smoke," noted that Gov. Milliken has asked for an 11-percent increase in state funds. He added that as many as 13 community colleges could cease to exist next year if state allocations for the fourth quarter of this budget year, scheduled to be held back, are not re-installed in the state's new fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Gilmer provided information on percentage increases in state spending for major segments of the budget between 1970 and 1981: Social services, 76 percent; public health, 73 percent; mental health, 201 percent; all other state departments, 155 percent; higher education, 141 percent; and community colleges, 184 percent.

Wolpe acknowledged that "budget prospects at the federal level as just as uncertain and frustrating as they are as the state level." He added, "Federal deficit spending is making huge leaps. The U.S. is facing a $120-billion deficit that will rise to $200 billion by 1984," a trend that must be halted, he said.

built for closure. But that's extremely difficult to achieve on these matters. We end up shadow-boxing with a wide and bewildering array of possibilities. "But this I offer as a matter of faith: Higher education is the key to the future.

There is no way for us to expect quantum leaps into the future, and into the knowledge that awaits us in the decades and centuries ahead, without higher education.

Earlier, Bernhard emphasized: "This University is a quality institution. We have people of great quality here, in our faculty and staff members. We have strived for that here at Western, and we will maintain that quality and the high standards we have achieved.

"We could not have accomplished what we have in the fiscal management of the University without the cooperation and understanding of our faculty and staff. Western is indeed fortunate to have men and women of your quality here.

HOWARD WOLPE: Budget prospects at the federal level are just as uncertain and frustrating as they are at the state level... the trend to increased deficits must be halted.

Robert W. Hannah: Frankly, we have no final solution, since there is no firm consensus on just how extensive are our state and national financial dilemmas... We are sure, however, that the answers lie in elected political leadership.
Gifts, grants include brine study funds

Western geologists will evaluate the effects of saltwater disposal practices of former oil and gas fields on the ground water quality of one or more Michigan oil and gas fields.

The research, to be directed by Richard Passero, geology, is supported by a $24,100 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. That grant was included among $583,312 in grants and gifts to Western reported March 19 to the Board of Trustees.

Another project financed by the EPA money will be a map in Michigan that will show the conditions are most favorable and least favorable for disposing of hazardous wastes. Passero reported.

A major grant of $514,386 from the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Post-Secondary Education, was given to the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships. It will provide additional funds for student scholarships from industries, businesses and individuals.

Morrison cited by a legislative resolution

William F. Morrison, chairman, general business, has received a Distinguished Service Award for 1982 from the Michigan State Legislature.

The resolution was offered by Sen. Rep. Robert Welborn (Kalamazoo), a former student of Morrison here.

The resolution states, "It is truly a pleasure to pay tribute to this respected educator and civic activist whose dedication to the University as well as the community at large are unparalleled." It notes that since coming to Western in 1959, Morrison "has played an active role in a host of university endeavors, including service as a member of the Annual Fund, a Presidential Search Committee, the Visiting Scholar Committee, and the Veteran's Association."

The document was given to Morrison at a surprise party for him conducted in Lansing by his former business and public administration students.

Rice writes book on teaching library use

It explains a wide variety of instruction and orientation programs, including media applications, self-guided tours, programmed instruction, gaming simulation, and other techniques for librarians, media specialists, and teachers to use in library instruction, Rice said.

The book evolved from his belief that "many librarians concentrate too much on helping people find things rather than actually teaching users to be self-sufficient in the library." It was published by Greenwood Press.

Establish Board of Trustees Scholarships

The Board of Trustees has established a WMU Board of Trustees Scholarship equal to the in-state undergraduate tuition cost for 30 credit hours per academic year to recognize about 10 outstanding incoming freshmen a year.

It will begin next fall through funding the University's General Fund.

Freshmen eligible for consideration must not be attending a post secondary institution, must begin in the fall semester, and be Michigan residents.

Of the freshmen who meet the criteria, the top 50 will be selected to receive Ad Club gives Aid Education Award

Paul Schott, production manager of Johnston & Associates, Inc. of Kalamazoo, has been given the Aid to Advertising Education Award by Western's Ad Club.

The honor, the highest that can be given by a college chapter of the American Advertising Federation (AAF), allows students to show their appreciation to advertising professionals who support the club throughout the year.

Schott, a 1956 graduate of Western has received a $24,100 grant from the Michigan Council of the Arts to produce audio-visual materials about historical black resorts in Michigan.

Within a year, Wilson and Warfield plan to produce a seven to nine minute film, aimed at fifth- through seventh grade public school children, that will deal with the black resorts of Michigan from 1900 to 1930, specifically at Edgewood in Lake County.

Wilson said it is hoped that the film will be produced by the Division of Instructional Communications at Western.

He plans to use the pilot film for presentations, hoping to generate enough interest and funds to produce about 85 film copies to be sent to Michigan public school districts.

Zupko receives $5,000 national composers award

Ramon Zupko, music, will receive a $5,000 award from the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters in New York City in May.

The academy-institute gives the awards to honor and encourage artists, composers and writers and to help them continue their work.

Last year Zupko received a Guggenheim Fellowship in Composition, a Koussevitzky Foundation Award to write a work in memory of Serge Koussevitzky and the Michigan Council for the Arts Artist Grant to write a dance work.

Constitution on Schedule—The finishing touches are being put on the University's fine arts building, the Dorothy U. Dalton Center, according to William F. Hamill, Jr., campus planning and extension director. "The second and third floors are completed," he said, "and electricians are working on the Multi-Media Room, putting in the grid system for the lights." It is an 80-foot circular space with portable seating and platforms that will serve a variety of audiences and stage arrangements. The $16.2 million structure honors the memory of a charter member of the University's Board of Trustees who was an enthusiastic sponsor of the arts. The Dalton Center will open officially this fall. WINGS' SINGERS—From the left, Mark E. Cummings, a senior from Kalamazoo; Elise Larson, a Dearborn sophomore; Nadie Vorenkamp, an East Grand Rapids senior; and Eric Rettig, a Redford sophomore, have been chosen by audition to sing the U.S. and Canadian national anthems prior to the home games of the Kalamazoo Wings professional hockey team. They each received a scholarship from the WINGS' management and passes to all of the home games. (Western News photo)

Porter writes book on historical explanation
Dale H. Porter, chairman of humanities, has written a book, "The Emergence of the Past," that concerns a new theory of historical explanation.

The 205 page paperback, published by the University of Chicago Press, features an outline of a classification of narrative forms that are the basis for systematic comparison and criticism of historical writing.

The book is available in Waldo Library and at the Campus Bookstore for $19.

Porter's work is a model of historical events for the reader that have been drawn from modern research in the areas of art criticism, biology, physics and psychology.

Agriculture department gets legislative plaudits
The Department of Agriculture was honored recently by the Michigan Legislature with a House Concurrent Resolution of Tribute.

The resolution, adopted by the House of Representatives and the Senate, identifies the department's faculty, students and curriculum as playing key roles in Michigan's economy and in the eradication of world hunger.

It was sent to Lee O. Baker, department chairman, and noted that he and other faculty in his department—John Ball, Max E. Benne, Larry Harris and John T. Houdt—"possess the expertise and experience necessary to teach the broad spectrum of agricultural skills."

More than 17,000 to attend events here
More than 17,000 people will visit Western between April 28 and August 15 to take part in 56 conferences, workshops and seminars, plus summer orientation for freshmen and transfer students.

Three of the largest groups will arrive later this month and in early May. From April 30 to May 2, the Michigan Youth Convention of the Church of God will attract 1,100 participants; from May 5 to 9, the Annual International Congress of Medieval Studies is expected to draw more than 2,000 medieval scholars from around the world; and from May 14 to 16, more than 3,000 church women from Western, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Ontario, Canada, will gather for the Winning Women's Conference.

Last year during the spring and summer period, conferences brought in more than $500,000. "We've been building this use of campus facilities over the last 15 years and we've done very well," Carr said.

From June 29 to July 23, about 2,400 freshmen and transfer students will visit the campus for orientation. In groups of about 150, they will spend three days at the University registering for classes, taking placement tests, meeting academic advisors and getting their first introduction to campus life.

Among other groups that will come here are those who will attend sports workshops in men's basketball, gymnastics, men's and women's soccer, tennis, wrestling, hockey and women's volleyball. Also, there will be three cheerleading workshops during the last two weeks of June, and a coaching symposium on June 18 and 19.

"The Kent State University Theatre and Goldsworth Valley III residence halls from July 15 to 18 when the Sweet Adelines, the women's barbershop quartet organization will conduct a regional meeting for some 300 members. From July 23 to 25, the Great Lakes State Round and Round Dance Festival will bring 500 dancers to the campus to demonstrate their skills in the University Student Center.

About 800 representatives of the Michigan State Employees Association will meet here from August 12 to 15.

Anonymous donor aids 4 students with stipends
Four Western seniors have received $2,000 scholarships each from an anonymous donor.

They are Eleanor M. Small, Edwin J. Trainor and Barbara J. King, of Kalamazoo, and Patricia A. Steenbergh of Stevensville. They were selected by the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships as students who best met the conditions established by the donor.

The scholarship winners had to be either a junior or senior, have at least a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) of 2.5 or better (4.0 is all A's) and live within a 75 mile radius of Kalamazoo. Screening by the financial aid office located 125 students with unmet financial need of $2,000 or more who were eligible.

The four students selected were, according to Edward W. Harkenrider, director of the Office of Student Financial Aid and Scholarships, "truly outstanding and truly deserving of this assistance."
