Diamond Jubilee Plans Told

Eight major programs and a specialty designed logo have been selected to highlight a year-long observance of WMU's Diamond Jubilee.

Western's 75th birthday celebration should be a period of important and inspiring events," said WMU President John T. Bernhard last fall when he appointed Robert H. Luscombe, assistant dean of fine arts, to chair an All-University Diamond Jubilee Committee.

It was May 27, 1965, when Public Act 156 was approved "locating, establishing and providing for the maintenance of what was then called Western State Normal School."

"Jubilee 75 WMU," a special logo designed by Jani Mohr, WMU associate professor of art, has been adopted by the Diamond Jubilee Committee as the official mark for the observance. Luscombe announced. He indicated that a series of suggested colors, as well as black and white, have been selected for use with the logo.

Professional film, stage and television personalities—all alumni of WMU—will return to their alma mater to participate in the first Diamond Jubilee event; that will be a production of the Broadway play, "The Ponder Heart," to be staged at 8 p.m. May 21-22 and 24-28 in Shaw Theatre.

Alumni celebrities participating in the production are: David Wayne of NBC-TV's "Ellery Queen"; Mary Lucier of "CBS-90 Minutes;" John Zaremba of ABC-TV's "Rich Man, Poor Man;" Alfred Hinchley of "That Championship Season"; Sherman Lloyd of "The Royal Family;" and Barbara Marineau of "Shenandoah." Proceeds will go to the David Wayne Scholarship here and to establish a new Laura V. Shaw Scholarship fund for WMU theatre students.

An art and craft fair, a rock concert, several student musical performances, a University Theatre production, a major public address by a nationally prominent figure, a Chautauqua or variety show and a tree planting project are some of the activities being planned for a Jubilee Festival—the first major program next fall. These are scheduled for Sept. 13-14, with most of them on Sept. 14 when all classes have been cancelled. Dr. Samuel I. Clark, director of the Honors College, is coordinating the Jubilee Festival.

Other major programs: are a pictorial history of WMU, edited by Martin R. (Joe) Gagie, director of information services; a 20-minute audiosvisual slide presentation to be used on campuses by a student coordinator; a special project, "The History of the University," by the student's Le Lab, the periodical of the Honors College, and the Celebrations Committee; "Jubilee 75WMU," a special project sponsored by the Marketing Committee and the Development Office; a promotional package; "Labor 75," a special project consisting of volunteer workers consisting of faculty, staff and students organized in groups of 75 to provide volunteer labor for special projects, and in the community, directed by Dr. J. Michael Keenan, professor of management; "Wax on Profile"—each college at Western will be asked to select a week to promote its history, professional contributions, future priorities, academic and non-academic programs, etc.; and "Welcome to Western, a program involving WMU students who will be recruited and trained to serve as escorts/guides for WMU guests and visitors, directed by Mrs. Barbara J. Maddox, director of special projects.

Luscombe indicated that another major event, involving the regional area, cannot yet be announced. Plans are still indefinite at this time, he said.

He added that a project coordination and endorsement system is being developed. All University departments, programs and organizations are encouraged to apply for Diamond Jubilee endorsement of their projects.

"It is anticipated that sponsors of endorsed projects will receive promotional assistance through an established public information system," Luscombe continued. "Only sponsors of endorsed projects will be permitted to use the Jubilee logo. Inquiries should be directed to his office, 1944 E. Hall." In recognition of the fact that no University Jubilee observance could be complete without the participation of the community at-large, sponsors of all projects will be encouraged to invite community participation whenever appropriate," said Luscombe, "the entire campus community will participate in this observance; it provides us with an excellent opportunity to reflect, to assess and to look ahead."

As for the cost, Luscombe reported that anticipated income from the projects is between $10,000 and $15,000 (admissions, sales, donated goods and services, etc.); thus, the estimated actual cost to the University will be between $15,575 and $20,575 which will be provided by private gifts (undesignated funds) to the University, not from the General Fund.

"Jubilee committee members are very much aware of and sensitive to the economic conditions facing the University as it prepares to observe its 75th birthday," he stated. "Continuous efforts will be made throughout the year to minimize all project costs by encouraging volunteer labor, complimentary services, participation in programs being developed, utilization of ongoing development and programming funds, etc. All cost-saving means and manners will be explored and urged."
Conference Here To Examine Teacher Inservice Needs, Faculty Development

Western's department of teacher education, through its Teacher Corps project, hosted a conference April 18-20 on "Teacher Inservice Needs and University Faculty Development: Bridging the Gap" at the Kalamazoo Center for the Arts.

Among resource people participating in the conference are: Dr. John Porter, associate superintendent of public instruction; Dr. William Smith, national director of the Teacher Corps, Washington, D.C.; and Dr. David Clark, professor and past dean of education at Indiana University, one of the nation's leading authorities on change in teacher education.

Purpose of the conference is to examine the inservice education needs of teachers in schools and methods of delivering services to these teachers. Several factors, including reduced teacher turnover and decreased student enrollments have made the continuing professional development of teachers one of the highest priorities in American education today.

Secondly, the conference will focus on programs and procedures for university faculty development. The renewed emphasis on service to the field and changing needs of teachers has created the need for university faculty to develop new skills and different roles.

Conference participants will come from Teacher Corps projects throughout the Midwest as well as other interested faculty from across the country.

In addition to the three day conference, there will be a one day concurrent session for deans and other policy makers from the universities represented by the Teacher Corps teams. This special session and the last general session will deal with implementing change in higher education, university roles and functions are dictated by changing needs in the field.

Other resource people include: William Berquist, consultant in higher education, Leucadia, CA; Bert Biles, director, Center for Faculty Evaluation and Development, Kansas State University; Barbara Bird, director, Professional Development Center Project, Grand Rapids; Joel L. Bird, associate director, AACTE, Editor, Journal of Teacher Education, executive secretary, Associated Organizations for Teacher Education; Rodney Crowell from Western's department of teacher education. Any WMU member as chairperson.

MI: Elizabeth Dillon, director of staff development, Lincoln Public Schools; Ollin Drennan, Northeast Missouri State University; Roy Edelfeldt, Professional Associate Instruction and Professional Development, National Education Association, Washington, D.C.; Glenn Erickson, University of Rhode Island; Robert Gabries, Syracuse University; Tony Grasha, University of Cincinnati; Frederick Hayen, University of Minnesota; Kenneth Howey, University of Minnesota; Barry James, Florida State University; Randall Johnson, Director of Teacher Corps Project, University of Minnesota; Jack Lindquist, Center for the Study of Higher Education, University of Michigan; Claude Mathis, director, Center for Teacher Development, Western Michigan University; Ernestine Rouse, Cheney State University; Thomas Ryan, chairperson, WMU department of education; Leonard Sealey, Ford Foundation, Plymouth, MA; Tom Swenson, Madison Teacher Exchange, Madison, WI; Lee Ann Tomlinson, professor, Western Michigan University; David Whitcomb, Director of Faculty Inservice, California State University at Long Beach.

Conference chairperson is Ronald Crowell from Western's department of teacher education. The Teacher Corps project director is Richard Harring also from the WMU department of teacher education. Any WMU staff member interested in attending this conference, should call 383-6657.

Dance Recital
Sunday at Oakland

Lindsey Canfield Thomas, a graduate student from Livonia, will present a public dance recital for the completion of her master's degree at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 17, in Oakland Recital Hall.

Her program of study is the jazz style of dance, and her program will reflect her interest in jazz and musical theatre. Assisting will be 30 students from the departments of theatre and dance. Special performances by Lurett McCrory, assistant professor, and Gary Schau, instructor, both from the dance department, also will be featured.

Selections from such well-known musicals as "Godspell," "Company" and "Carnival" will be presented in the recital. Although admission is free, a $1 donation to cover expenses will be accepted.

Satellites, Pollution
Is Lecture Topic

The use of satellites to provide information concerning pollution problems will be discussed by Dr. Jack Wood, WMU professor of biology, in a free, public lecture at 4 p.m. Thursday, April 14, in 1118 Rod Hall.

His talk, entitled "Use of Landsat Imagery in Wastewater Management," will explain how two Landsat satellites, which circle the earth recording light waves, can tell scientists about water surfaces, plants, silts and sediment. The information will aid in solving pollution problems. WMU is working with Region III, Southcentral Michigan Planning and Development Council; Environmental Protection Agency; the Michigan Department of Natural Resources; and Purdue University.

Prior to the lecture, which is sponsored by the WMU departments of biology and geology, refreshments will be served at 3:30 p.m. in the lobby adjacent to Room 1118.
Beethoven's 'Missa Solemnis'
KSO Finale
One of the greatest choral works ever composed will put the finishing touch on the 1976-77 Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra season. Four works composed will put the finishing

Vahan Khanzadian, who made his New York City Opera debut in 1975, mezzo-soprano Carolyn James, who has sung with the Central City Opera, the Minnesota Opera and the Metropolitan Opera Studio; tenor Valam Khanzadian, who made his 1960 debut at the San Francisco Opera in Puccini’s “La Rondine”; and bass John West, a member of the voice faculty of the Juilliard School drama department and an artist-in-residence with the Michigan Orchestra Association.

This program is presented with the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts. The WMU Grand Chorus is directed by Mel Ivey.

Tickets are $4.00, $3.50, and $2.00 and are on sale at the Miller Auditorium ticket office. For reservations, phone 383-0033.

Seek Host Families
University faculty and staff members have the opportunity to show their hospitality during the week of April 22-29 when 12 exchange students from the Netherlands will arrive on campus. Information about the exchange students and the Dutch culture in general can be obtained in the Office of International Student Services, phone 383-0860.

Display Stain Glass
An exhibit of stained glass is now on exhibit in the Wesley Foundation Gallery by Dr. Arnold A. Gerstein, assistant professor of humanities. He uses the evocative technique in contrast to representational or art nouveau styles. The exhibit will run until April 22. The hours are 9-3:30 am to 5 pm Monday-Friday.

Pastoral Counseling Workshop Set
A five-week workshop designed for clergy and other religious leaders who wish to strengthen and increase their skills in pastoral counseling will be offered for five consecutive Mondays, beginning April 25 from 3-5 p.m. here on campus in the Kiva Room, Student Services Building.

The workshop, which will focus on increasing the participant’s skills in interviewing, working with individuals in a crisis, and providing counseling resources, will be led by Dr. Kenneth Reid, WMU associate professor of social work.

The workshop fee is $10 per person, but for two or more persons from the same church, the cost is $30 each. Registration deadline for the workshop is Wednesday, April 20.

New Officers—Western’s campus chapter of the American Association of University Professors has elected 1977-78 officers. Members of the executive committee, from left, are: Lynwood H. Bartley, associate professor of humanities, president; Janet Kanzler, assistant professor of physical education, member-at-large; Dr. Jared S. Wend, associate professor of economics, secretary; Dr. Don R. Link, professor of mathematics, immediate past president; Dr. Janet E. Stillwell, associate professor of dance, member-at-large; Dr. Chester B. Rogers, associate professor of political science, Association Council chairperson; and Dr. John W. Petro, professor of mathematics, vice president. Charles F. Woodward, assistant professor of industrial engineering, treasurer, was absent when this picture was taken.

Crime Prevention Tips Given

With the end of another semester rapidly approaching, students are reminded to take some extra precautions with their valuables.

By Brian Hoppe of the University Police Crime Prevention Bureau states, "Thefts at the end of a semester always seem to increase as a result of students moving out of dorms. Property left unattended in cars parked overnight has become a prime target for thieves."

Hoppe provided these tips to students, staff and faculty for reducing thefts during the move out process.

- When moving items between your room and car, keep them locked.
- DO NOT load up your car the night before you plan on leaving. A fully loaded automobile is an inviting target and much easier to steal from.
- Report any suspicious strangers in or about your residence or surrounding parking lots. Many people realize this is a prime opportunity for theft and will be looking for opportunities.
- Residents of family housing who will be leaving the campus during the semester break may call the University Police and request checks. During your absence, officers will make periodic checks of your residence during the day and night.

It is extremely important that all thefts occurring or discovered during the move out process be reported immediately. Suspects may leave the campus along with the stolen property and never be seen again, Hoppe concluded.

State Rep. Mary Brown, 46th District, will speak at the Evaluation Center's Sack Lunch Seminar at noon Monday, April 18. She will discuss the legislator's interest in program evaluation information. The meeting in the Dean's Conference Room, Room 2308 Sangren Hall, is sponsored by the Evaluation Center, College of Education. All interested faculty and students are invited.

Math Talk Set

Professor Robert J. Zimmer of the U.S. Naval Academy will present a free public lecture entitled "Erdogic Theory and Group Representations" at the mathematics colloquium at 4 p.m. Thursday, April 14, in the Commons Room on the sixth floor of Everett Tower. Coffee will be served at 3:30 p.m.

Recognize... CEP Companies

Fifteen participating businesses and industries in Western's Career Experience Program (CEP) are to be honored this week. The event will take place Monday, April 14, in the University Student Center.

CEP, sponsored by Western's Minority Student Services Office in conjunction with the business education and administrative services, is designed to give Western students an opportunity to find out what the business world of work is all about with the emphasis on seeking careers.

Carter African Appointee To Visit

Word has been received that Goler T. Butler, Washington, D.C., attorney, who will speak here on campuses at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 15, is President Jimmy Carter's designated appointee to head up the Africa Bureau for the U.S. Agency for International Development. She is coming to WMU for the first annual conference of the newly formed Michigan Organization of African Studies on Friday and Saturday in the University Student Center.

Class Schedules Are Available

Both summer and fall schedules of classes are available at 2010 Administration Building Monday from 7:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., and at the Information window in the Administration Building lobby Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 7:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Summer classes are available at 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All winter semester students planning to attend summer and/or fall are encouraged to advance register before leaving campus this month.
