More than 3,000 local people have volunteered to help raise the money this year as campaign workers. Western's campus drive co-chairmen are Thomas B.C. Coyne and Norman Russell. The campus solicitation is underway.

Bicentennial Stirs Classroom Interest

Teachers should use the interest stimulated by our national bicentennial as a springboard to urge students to read about these stirring events, according to Ed- ward J. Heinig, WMU professor of teacher education.

He will tell the Homer L. J. Car- ter Reading Council of the interest generated with the many bicentennial dramatic and documentary programs now being aired.

He says students should be urged to follow up TV historical documentaries with in-depth reading on topics which have particular appeal to them.

The Homer L. J. Carter Reading Council is an affiliate of the Inter- national Reading Association. The first chartered group in Michigan to study reading problems at all educational levels, the council promotes research in developmental, corrective and remedial reading and studies factors which influence reading progress.

The council also publishes the results of reading investigations and assists the development of more adequate teacher training programs on this score.
