Three Persons to Receive Honorary Degrees Saturday

1975 President's Award for Excellence from the University of Cincinnati. He was a professor of sociology and director of the Woodrow Wilson General Honors at Morehouse College, 1960-64; head of the department of sociology and pre-social work, Southern University, 1956-58; and supervisor of community services, St. Louis Housing Authority, 1955-56.

Newsom is a charter member of the University Professors' national committee on student rights; member, executive committee, United Negro College Fund; member, National Museum of Afro-American History and Culture Planning Council; member, American Council on Education's Commission on Administrative Affairs and Educational Services; member of the American Medical Association, American College of Physicians, American Medical Education Association, American Association of Medical Colleges, American College of Physicians' assistant program, American Association of State Colleges and Universities; and 1973-75 president, Inter-University Council of Ohio.

Burch is the author of the best-selling book, "A Change of Windows." He is a life fellow of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. He received his Doctor of Medicine degree in 1953 from Northwestern University Medical School and was the founder of the Saul St. Marie Polyclinic in 1957. He moved to Kalamazoo in 1945. He served on the medical board and as chief of obstetrics at Bronson Hospital and is past president of the Kalamazoo Academy of Medicine, Kalamazoo Executive Club, Kalamazoo Rotary Club, Chamber Music Society and as chairman of the Kalamazoo Symphony Society and the South Central Michigan Planning Council.

Burch was the first clinical director of WMU's physicians' assistant program. He was presented the Kalamazoo Red Rose Citation for outstanding Community Service and the MSMS's Highest Award for Distinguished Service in 1973.

Trustees May Act On Fee Hikes Friday

WMU's Board of Trustees is expected to take action on proposed tuition and room and board fee increases at its regular meeting Monday at 1:45 p.m. Friday, April 23, here in the University Student Center.

As is customary, the Board tabled action on proposed increases last month to allow time for further review and for student input into the decision.

The proposal is that WMU President John H. Beherd be authorized to raise resident undergraduate and graduate tuition by a low of $1.50 and a high of $3.30 per credit hour; current rates are $22.50 and $30.50 per credit hour, respectively.

Non-resident tuition increases are based on a legislative requirement that tuition levels cover 75 percent of costs. The proposed range so that the exact amount could be set at a time when the level of 1976-77 legislation and related budgetary matters are better known.

Last month's recommended increase in dormitory room and board rates for next fall was $30 per semester which would bring the semester total to $120, that would be for students sharing a two-person room and receiving residence hall meals. The room-only option proposed fee increase is $20 per semester and the recommended increase in the family housing fee is $1 per month. No change is recommended in the single-room rate differential.

Also on the agenda are the monthly gift and grant, academic personnel and non-academic personnel; and a resolution proposing the implementation of a Western Michigan University Foundation.

Univ. Employees Should Update Their Records

All University employees are encouraged to update their personnel records by filling out the back of every paycheck envelope that provides a form for such changes.

That information is what will be used, in part, for the 1976-77 University Telephone Directory, according to Joe Gagne, director of information services.

WMU Students Produce Mental Health Tapes

Thanks to a group of WMU student actors, it will be easier to train employees to deal with mental patients at the Veteran Administration Hospital in Battle Creek.

Under the supervision of Lydia Stillwell, WMU assistant professor of communication arts and sciences, eight students portrayed patients and employees for a series of education television programs. Since last November, they have made four videotape productions which will be used to show VA Hospital personnel how to care for patients suffering states of mental illness and emotional problems.

Last month, under the direction of Sharon Wollers, a WMU graduate now employed as television director at the hospital, the students completed a production entitled "Prevention and Management of Psychiatric Emergencies." The videotape for March was "Death and Dying of a VA Patient" which will aid medical personnel in dealing with the concerns that beset the staff, the patient and his family when faced with a situation of death and dying. The films are also used to train medical students at Michigan State University.

The WMU students who appear in the productions were chosen because they were especially good at improvisations—the ability to take the roles of patients or staff members in a given situation and write their own script. They spent many hours talking to hospital patients and personnel, observing their interactions, in various wards throughout the facility to prepare for their roles.

Those students appearing in the tapes are Robin Nott, Larry Blevens, Mark Wisniewski, Marcie Clark, Pamela Jackson, Catherine Wagner, Stephan Kertesz and Anne Fox.

Another theme of mental health will be presented this spring—a "Death and Dying of a VA Patient." The March video production will present a series of vignettes of hospital patients involved in common situations. These vignettes have been produced in four tapes by the students, under the direction of Dr. James Philp.

The students received $1,200 for each of the four productions, $6,000 in total, for their work in the mental health project. Other students may be selected to work on the project in future years.

Dr. George Beech, professor of history, is the author of a recent article in the field of medieval onomastics or name studies. Entitled "Les noms de personne poitevins du ge au 12e siecle" and published in the Societe Francaise d'Onomastique in 1975, the article determines personal name frequencies in the population of the French province of Poitou over a 4-century period from 800-1200.

Use of a computer made it possible to find out which names were common or rare at any given moment and how trends changed over the course of time. The article is based on a paper read originally to the Societe Francaise d'Onomastique in Paris in 1971.

Award Clausing Corp. Scholarship

James Philp, a Marysville High School senior, has been namedwinner of the 34th annual Clausing Scholarship Corporation for Industrial Arts to WMU.

The scholarship has a four-year potential value of $1,500 if the recipient maintains satisfactory grades. Philp was selected from among eight Michigan high school seniors.

The Clausing Scholarship program is designed to stimulate young persons to embark on careers in useful industrial arts or in the vocational-industrial education teaching field. W. E. Klammer, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Michigan, is coordinator for the scholarship program at WMU. The Clausing Corp. is located in Kalamazoo.

Two Present Papers

Marvin Draker and William Thompson, assistant professors of political science, presented papers at the 80th annual meeting of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters recently at Michigan State University.

Draker's paper was on "The Changing Nature of the Michigan State Legislature" and Thompson delivered a paper on "Attitudes of Public Administrators and Politicians Toward Open Meetings."

Varble Writes Marketing Text

A new textbook, "Cases in Marketing Management," written by Dr. Dale Varble, WMU associate professor of marketing, has been published by Charles B. Merrill Publishing Co., Columbus, Ohio.

The 248-page text, pointed toward upper level college marketing courses, contains 43 actual cases of successful programs used by business firms to market products.

Summer Music Camp July 18-31

More than 3,500 brochures announcing Seminar '76, Western's July 18-31 summer music camp for high school students, have been mailed to music educators throughout Michigan and northern Indiana.

Nearly 200 students representing nine areas of study—choral, woodwind, percussion, string, vocal-choral, piano, organ, composition and jazz—are expected for the 9th annual Summer Seminar on the University campus. Additional information and application forms may be obtained from the camp director, Robert Pitzer, in the department of music, telephone 383-0101.

Three Participate In Library Program

Three members of the School of Librarianship faculty took part in the annual conferences of the Association of American Library Schools and the American Library Association held recently in Chicago.

Marylyn H. Onos, assistant associate professor, presented a report on "Student Access to School Library Resources as Viewed by High School Students." Corresponding with Eastern Michigan Schools Accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Dr. Robert Ballard presided at a meeting of the special interest group on research, and Dr. John Conrmoni presented a paper on curriculum development in library schools in this section of the country.

Dr. Kissel Writes Book in German

Dr. Hans A. Kissel, assistant professor of German in the department of modern and classical languages, has completed a book "Verbalen Synonymik bei Otfrid," published by Herbert Lang Publishers, Switzerland. Written in German, it is what the author calls, "... a linguistically-oriented investigation of the possibilities for and of the extent of verb synonyms in the early stage of written German (9th century A.D.)." The Gospel Harmony of the monk Otfrid served as material for the investigation by the WMU faculty member.

Receives NEH Award

A research project, "Women's Perceptions of the Buddhist Religion in Ancient Asia," will be explored this summer by Dr. Nancy A. Falk, WMU associate professor of religion, under a National Endowment for the Humanities summer stipend. She will explore women's perceptions of the Buddhist religious roles that were defined for them by the male-dominated tradition of ancient South Asian Buddhism.

Conduct Poetry Seminar

John Woods, professor of English, has been invited to conduct a poetry seminar at Indiana University as part of the Endowment for the Humanities summer stipend. He will explore women's perceptions of the Buddhist religious roles that were defined for them by the male-dominated tradition of ancient South Asian Buddhism.

Anthropology Dept. Plans Ethnographic Field Research

Ethnographic field research on the society and culture of a small Michigan community will be based at Berrien Springs in Berrien County during a WMU course to be conducted August 10-26.

A course registration for the period began on Thursday, April 15, with the application deadline Friday, May 21; however, it may be extended to June 1 in exceptional cases.

The 240-page text, pointed toward upper level college marketing classes, contains 43 actual cases of successful programs used by business firms to market products.
Korean Institute Here
Up to eight hours of academic credit may be earned this summer at a Korean Institute in Western's Center for Korean Studies offered by the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Open to American citizens of Korean heritage, children of Korean citizens who now live in America, and to others interested in Korean studies, the institute will provide academic study, cultural education and fellowship. Dr. Andrew C. Nahm, history professor and CKS director since its inception in 1972, said new tuition scholarships are available.

Applications, with a $10 fee, are due at the center by June 20. Undergraduate students will be given priority.

Yoga Instruction Available Here
"The Teaching of Yoga," a course which is being offered for the first time at Western, will be given for five weeks, July 5-23, during the University's summer session.

According to Janet Kanzler, assistant professor of women's physical education who will serve as classroom instructor, it will be held from 8-9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, in Oakland Gym. The course (PESR 530 Yoga) emphasizes the hatha-yoga, dealing solely with the physical body, and is not a religion or cult, she noted. It offers two hours of graduate credit.

The final day to advance register for the course is Friday, May 14, with the final registration date June 28, according to the WMU registration office.

Heads State Child Care Consortium
Janine Stephenson, associate director of Western's Child Development Center, has been named 1976-77 chairman of the Michigan Coordinated Child Care Council's consortium of Statewide Child Care Providers Organizations.

The group has approximately 25 representatives who meet on a monthly basis in Lansing to discuss issues in the field of early childhood education.

Three Participate In ASCD Symposium
Three faculty members from the department of teacher education presented a symposium at the annual conference of the Association of SuperVision and Curriculum Development March 15-17 in Miami, Fla. Ronald Crowell, assistant professor, served as chairman of the session which held as its theme "The Nature and Assessment of Individualized Instruction."

Dr. Richard Harring, associate professor, presented a paper on "Problems Inherent in Defining Individualized Instruction" and Dr. James Bosco, professor, reported on "Defining and Measuring Individualized Instruction."

Stech Gives Talk
Dr. Ernest L. Stech, WMU assistant professor of art appreciation, design and sciences, presented a paper on "Process Models of Organizations and Communication" at a recent post-doctoral conference on organizational communication held in San Marcos, Calif., sponsored by the Speech Communication Association and Southwest Texas State University.

Univ. Departments Can Save On Telephone Costs
Academic departments should be alerted to possible telephone costs savings by taking advantage of seasonal service removal or service suspension during spring and summer sessions.

Memorandums from the Physical Plant manager of transportation and communications, Dr. Edward S. Bosco, have been sent to all University offices explaining the cost savings programs for telephone services.

Smith explains that the greatest potential for savings is with academic departments, with faculty holding teaching status for spring and/or summer sessions.

Which is near numerous departments did take advantage of these arrangements and were able to realize savings in their telephone costs. (Further information or a feasibility evaluation, call 1-0909.

Institutional Beige Is Dead

James T. Schaper, assistant manager of residence halls and head of the Student Paint Program, feels that the program "allows students decorating freedoms at the time when the room is in need of painting, not months or even years later."

I've never heard any criticism from the students about the program."

He also noted that participation in the program has been steady. "The requests come mainly in the fall when students are preparing for the school year, but they come in almost every day," Schaper said.

Madison Heights sophomore Yvonne Begins states, "You're fixing up the room to live there, so you can paint it to your liking. It makes you feel more at home. Before we painted, it looked just like Howard Johnson with blue walls and orange curtains—so, we decided to try the student paint program.

Summing up the derived benefits, Schaper said, "People function better in an environment that looks nicer."

Publish Art Study
Dr. Joseph Frattalone, associate professor of art, has had a study published recently in the National Art Education Association's journal, "Art Education." It surveyed the art teacher training programs of public and private undergraduate institutions to determine to what extent they compared with standards set forth in the association's "Guidelines for Teacher Preparation."

Conducts Workshop
In New Zealand
Dr. Roger Ulrich, research professor of psychology, recently was in New Zealand to conduct an intensive workshop on Behavioral Psychology and Community Mental Health Programs for the psychology department faculty of the University of Waikato.

Contributes Manuscripts
A monograph entitled "The Archaeology of Cedar Creek" (Southern Illinois University Museum, 1976) contains six manuscripts contributed by William M. Cremm of WMU's department of anthropology. Cremm is currently completing a dissertation (Paleoethnobotany: Implications for Crab Orchard Exploitation of the Shawnee Hills, Southern Illinois) based on data derived from two seasons of excavation in the Cedar Creek Valley, near Carbondale, Ill.

Addresses Two CMU Student Groups
Dr. H. Byron Earhart, WMU associate professor of religion, recently spoke twice on the study of religion to Central Michigan University students.

Following an evening presentation before Honors students, Dr. Earhart the next morning gave a slide presentation accompanied by film research on Jewish and folk religion which he did about 10 years ago while on a Fulbright research grant. Earhart took the slides in northern Europe during a trip of Spirit of St. Louis, a replica of one of that nation's sacred mountains.

Field trip studies of Lake Michigan show importance of Kalamazoo area as well as a workshop on how geology relates to municipalities will be part of the North Central Geological Society of America (NGCSA) here at WMU Wednesday-Saturday, April 28-May 1.

About 600 members of NGCSA are expected, according to Dr. Lloyd J. Schmaltz, professor of physics and general chairman of the meeting. They will come from 12 Midwestern states and Ontario, Canada.

Dr. Julius Goldmann, a University of Chicago geologist and past president, Geological Society of America (GSA), will speak at the annual meeting banquet at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 29 at Holiday Inn, Kalamazoo on "GSA Problems and Directions." WMU President John T. Bernhard will welcome the meeting participants to Kalamazoo.

A symposium continuing through Thursday and Friday will center on a study of the devonian reef room, a deep underground bedrock formation which centers near Mount Parnassus and extends throughout the lower peninsula.

More than 170 participants will take part in the symposium, in which the various technical and symposium sessions which will be held in Rood and Sangren Halls have reservation badges required for admission.

WMU geology department faculty who will speak include: Dr. John D. Grace, WMU Employees

Summer Hours

Summer hours for most WMU employees during the months of June, July and August will begin on Monday, June 1, the first working day in June and continue through Wednesday, Sept. 1.

Starting June 1, all offices and regular University operations will follow the summer schedule of 7:30-11 a.m. and 12:15-4:30 p.m. Special groups, particularly those covered by contracts or the University police may have different shift times.

Fink Elected NASM Vice Pres.

Dr. Robert R. Fink, professor of music at WMU and chairman of the music department at WMU and former president of Region 5 (Michigan, Indiana and Ohio) of the National Association of Schools of Music, has been appointed by NASM as the music accreditation agency for music schools in the U.S.

Fink, who has been music department chairman here since 1973, is currently on leave this academic year but will return to his administrative duties May 1. He holds three degrees from Michigan State University, including a Ph.D. earned in 1965, and has been at WMU since 1957.

Kruglik Text

A Spanish language edition of a textbook co-authored by the Hon. Haryn Kruglik, professor of physics at WMU, has been published by the McGraw-Hill subsidiary, Libros McGraw-Hill de Mexico of Mexico City.

Entitled "Basic Mathematics with Applications," it was written with Dr. John Moore, physics professor at the University of Western Ontario. The paper was written in 1969, for the University of Kentucky, United States, according to Kruglik, as part of a science outline series used in American schools and colleges.

To Serve as Judge

Leonard Meretta, professor of music, has been invited to judge the Mexican International Band Festival in Mexico City in May. Associate professor, and Dr. William B. Harrison, assistant professor; Dr. W. Thomas Straw, associate professor, is program chairman.

These WMU geology graduate students have co-authored abstracts. They are: Elizabeth M. Garrett of Allegan, Robert E. Goodlin and Steven E. Trigg of Brunswick, Ohio.

Running concurrently with the NGCSA meetings here will be the annual meetings of the Pander Society, the North Central Section of the Palaeontological Society and the North Central Section of the Geological Society of America.

Several European nations will be represented at sessions of the Pander Society, an international organization of micropaleontologists.

The workshop on Geology in Public Admittance.

Bar works which will travel to Grand Rapids and one meeting firm of Williams and Works, will show how geology relates to municipalities and sanitary land fill locations. Building, housing, water well drilling sites, erosion, and public construction projects.

Schmaltz noted that the study of the Kalamazoo glacial geology is important because of a certain phase of geology is represented here which is not prevalent in other parts of Michigan.

The field trip to Lake Michigan will derive into a study of such erosion prevention devices as retaining walls, shoreline fill, piers and so forth.

The final meeting of the Homer L. J. Goodwin Hall for the summer session, at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

Her primary interest will be to study the role of women in the South during the Civil War period and analyze how the social and economic structure of slavery, the political idea of states rights and war affected their lives.

She currently teaches two women's history classes at WMU and one at Kalamazoo Valley Community College.

She served as assistant director of academic advising at Western Michigan University at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

A 29. Cost of the workshop is $20, payable to "Workshop on Working With Groups," Division of Continuing Education.

Sylvia Hoffert

Sylvia D. Hoffert, a WMU instructor of history, has been selected to participate in a National Endowment for the Humanities summer seminar on "The American Experience: Memory, Secession, War," at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

Social Caseworkers Workshop Available at WMU May 3-June 2

A workshop designed to help social caseworkers achieve goals with more assurance and positive results will be offered at WMU on four Wednesday evenings, May 5-June 2, except for May 26.

With enrollment limited, registration is on a first come, first served basis. The fee for the course is $15 for December 29. Cost of the workshop is $20, payable to "Workshop on Working With Groups," Division of Continuing Education.

For additional information, call 383-1860—Division of Continuing Education, Western Michigan University.

Math Students Receive Honors

Twelve of WMU's top mathematics students have been honored with presentation of various awards for academic excellence by the mathematics department.

The students honored were: Ronald J. Gould and Jerome P. Przybysz, graduate students, received Charles H. Butler Awards; Mary J. Sinclair, junior, received the Burton Memorial Scholarship; Lucille Shepherd, sophomore; Richard F. Schmaltz, freshman; and former staff member of the Genesee County Community Mental Health Clinic and the Menninger Clinic, Topeka, Kan. received the Distinguished Service Award.

Student Overnight Dorm Quarters Available Here

Students who commute to the WMU campus during the week and would like to remain overnight can obtain sleeping accommodations in a residence hall for a nominal fee. A new service recently introduced at WMU has been well received according to Robert H. Peterson, manager of residence hall facilities.

Two corridors in Hookey Hall were set aside for students who wish to remain overnight on the campus due to weather or study commitments during the winter semester. A similar service will be available in the Homer L. J. Goodwin Hall during the spring session and Harrison Hall for the summer session.

To obtain accommodations a person should phone 383-4949 or stop at a hall desk between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. weekdays. If plans change at the last minute, contact the reception desk of the hall before 11 p.m. on weekdays and 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Charges are $4.25 a person per night, double occupancy when two people request the room. Charges are $6.50 a night for a single assignment.

Carter Reading Council Meeting

The final meeting of the Homer L. J. Reading Council will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 29, in the Portage County Intermediate School District. Featured speaker will be Clarence Brock, chairperson of the Michigan Reading Association (MRA) Professional Standards Committee and director of instructional services for the St. Clair County Intermediate School District.

His topic will be "Creating Young Authors—A Reading Happening.

A tape of the MRA legislative Action Committee is Betty Hagberg, assistant professor of the WMU Reading Center and Clinic. She is past president of the Carter Reading Council.

Outstanding Accounting Student Named

Dennis Melion, a WMU junior, has won the 1975-77 Alexander Grant & Co. scholarship as an outstanding accounting student at the University.

He has maintained a grade point average of 3.96 out of a possible 4.00 (all A's) and has been a member of the varsity football team for the past three years. He is a member of Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting society, and recently joined the WMU chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma, national honorary in business and economics.

Selbert Fund Awards Application Deadline

The deadline for Russell H. Seibert Fund Awards applications is Tuesday, May 11 at the Honors College. Projects for the spring or summer, as well as for next fall and winter semesters, will be considered.

The fund supports undergraduate research and teaching assistantships, internships, independent student research and other scholarly and intellectual activity. Applications are available at the Honors College.

Prepresents Paper

Dr. Phillip D. Adams, chairman of the humanities area, College of General Studies, presented a paper, "The Perennialism of the Fine Arts sect", Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters March 19 at Michigan State University.
Three Receive Awards for Study

Three WMU seniors will receive the Cornelius Lee Award for excellence in the study of religion for this academic year.

They are: H. Robert VonderOsten of Kalamazoo (2401 Oakland Dr.), Janyce R. Lyman of Lansing, (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lyman, 461 S. Verlinden) and Marie Krier of Spring Green, Wis., (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krier, RL). The award is presented to a senior who has achieved significant academic accomplishment in the study of religion, and normally goes to one student. However, the religion department faculty thought that the work of all three students was impressive enough to give three awards.

The awards will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 21 in 5909 Friedmann Hall.

Photography Course

A seven-week, non-credit course for the beginning photographer will be offered at WMU from 7-7:30 p.m. Mondays, starting May 6, in the ERC Learning Laboratory, Sangamon Hall.

Class size is limited to 10 in order to give students more opportunity for learning how to develop and print their own black and white photos. Instructor for the course will be Tim Ambrose, professional photographer and Morgan photographer.

The fee is $50, which includes the use of the University's darkroom facilities, enlarging equipment, film and print paper. May 4 is the deadline for applications at WMU's Division of Continuing Education, West Union Building.

Ambrose noted that the weekly classroom and laboratory sessions will cover such subjects as: camera, lenses, filters, black and white developing, printing, enlarging, lighting, portraiture and special techniques. Students will be expected to provide their own 35mm cameras, film and photographic paper.

Additional information may be obtained by calling 383-1860.

OCSS Car Pool Forms

Economically-minded, gas-saving commuter students who attend WMU during the spring season beginning Monday, April 11, are invited to complete registration forms to assist the Office of Commuter Student Services (OCSS) to form car pools.

When the registration is completed, WMU commuters will receive a complete list of commuters from their areas who are interested in forming car-pools. More than 60 are currently registered in the winter semester program from such areas as Battle Creek, Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids, Marshall, Three Rivers and other southwestern Michigan communities.

Registration forms for the spring season car-pool are available at OCSS, 3510 Student Services Building, according to Gary J. Vettori, commuter student assistant in charge of transportation.

Additional information is available by calling 383-6114.

Forsleff, IACS Board

Dr. Louis Forsleff, professor of counseling at WMU, has been elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the International Association of Counseling Services (IACS), an affiliate of the American Personnel and Guidance Association.

Forsleff will represent four college counseling services statewide.

The IACS is the accrediting organization which evaluates counseling services in the U.S. and Canada.

National Institute On Desegregation Here May 7-8

Two nationally known civil rights spokesmen will speak during a public National Institute Friday and Saturday, May 7-8 in the WMU Student Center, east ballroom.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson of Operation Push, Chicago, will speak at 8 p.m. Friday on "Desegregation: Its Impact on Black Family Life—from Little Rock to Louisville" to begin the institute, while Carl Rowan, nationally syndicated columnist and news analyst, will speak at a 12:30 p.m. Saturday luncheon registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Dr. Robert Green, Michigan State University faculty, will speak during a 7 p.m. Saturday dinner on "Green Responds to Coleman."

The Saturday session begins at 9:30 a.m. with a desegregation panel moderated by Dr. Joe Wallace of the National Urban League. Panel discussion leaders will be Dr. Alvin Poussaint, Harvard University faculty; Dr. Barbara Sizemore, Washington, D.C. educator; Dr. Robert Waring, professor, Washington University at St. Louis; and Dr. Tom Gunning, MSU faculty.

From 1-4 p.m. various desegregation workshops will be held in the Student Center followed by a 4:30 p.m. feedback session on workshops.

Following Green's speech, Dr. Charles C. Warfield, WMU associate professor of education and director, WMU Para-School Learning Center (PSCL), will make closing comments.

Additional information, including the theme fee for the conference sessions is required, with meals extra, at $3.50 for the Friday dinner and on Saturday $2 for lunch and $4 for dinner. Persons wishing to remain in Kalamazoo overnight may obtain campus single or double rooms at $5.75 and double rooms at $4.00 each.

For more information contact Denise Tyiska, Para-School Learning Center, 1223 N. Westnedge, Kalamazoo, MI 49007, phone (616) 383-8054. The institute is sponsored by the WMU College of Education and the PSCL.

Medieval Studies 11th Conference

To Convene Here May 2-5

The Eleventh Conference on Medieval Studies at WMU, Sunday-Wednesday, May 2-5, is expected to attract more than 800 scholars.

Several other meetings will be held concurrently with the Medieval Conference here. They are: the Sixth Conference on Cistercian Studies and the sessions of the American Society for Information Research, the International Center for Medieval Art, and the Academy of Research Historians on Medieval Spain.

The Society for Creative Anachronisms, Inc. will hold medieval dance sessions and exhibit arts and crafts during the conference. Special concerts and theatre performances will be presented by the Society for Old Music of Kalamazoo, the New World Consort of New York City, the Elizabethan Enterprise of City College, City University of New York, and a group of actors and musicians from Michigan State University.

Lorna J. Sasso, a noted expert on medieval cookery, will present workshops in medieval cooking Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, for the conference participants.

Two general addresses will be given, the first on 9 a.m. Monday in Goldsworth Hall dining room by Paul J. Meyers, of the Medieval Academy of America, on "Image and Text in the Early Middle Ages: Some Problems in Interpretation."

Dr. Jean Leclercq of Clervaux and Rome, who also holds faculty rank at WMU and is a world renown expert on medieval studies, will deliver the second general address at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Goldsworth Hall dining room on "Politics and Perception in the Middle Ages: Some Problems in Interpretation."

The Rev. Jonathan K. Hunsaker, president, ''), the International Institute for Business Administration, will deliver the keynote address at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Goldsworth Hall on "The Future of Business Administration and its Preparation of Leaders for the 80s and 90s."

The conference 8:30 a.m. Monday in Goldsworth Hall with James P. Sprague, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and John R. Scholz, vice-president for Academic Affairs, sponsoring the conference.

Session topics range from "Medieval Man's Concept of His Place in the Cosmos" to "Dissensions and Werewolves" among the highly intellectual sessions.

Douma MCITE President

Dr. Rollin G. Douma, assistant professor of English at WMU, will become president of the Michigan Council of Teachers of English (MCITE) during its 25th annual spring convention May 6-8 at the Kalamazoo Center.

Political Science Honors

The WMU political science department last week gave four prestigious honors to top students here.

The 1976 Arden Elsasser Award, presented by the League of Women Voters (LWV) Kalamazoo, went to Deborah K. Nelson; the Senator D.C. Shilling Award was given to Clyde J. Robinson; and Junior D.C. Shilling Awards went to Eugene J. Brady and Cheryl Ann Windquist.

The Elsasser Award was presented by Mrs. Isabel Marovich of the LWV and the Shilling Awards by Mrs. D. C. Shilling, wife of the late WMU political science department faculty member and department head, for whom the award is named.

Maher Article

Dr. Robert F. Maher, anthropology professor at WMU, wrote an article in a recent issue of "Indian Perspectives," a periodical published by the University of Hawaii.

His article, entitled "The Great H Igor War: A Study in Archaeology and Oral History," concerns evidence of the warlike culture of the people of H Igor Province in the Philippines.

Maher said he plans to return there this spring to continue excavations in H Igor Province, in which he has done long term research.

Kopinski Honored

Theresa K. Kopinski, a Dexter senior majoring in business education at Western Michigan University, was named an "Outstanding Teacher Education" award from the Michigan Business Education Association.

It is given every year to one student in each state college or university which has a teacher education program in WMU's business education and administrative services department voted to name her for the award.

Students Win First

Two WMU seniors in the industrial education department were awarded first place in a poster contest during the recent American Institute of Industrial Engineers (AIIE) Region VI student conference held at Wayne State University.

Francis M. Wolchowski and Kenneth W. Tabler presented their poster entitled, "Western Michigan University Health Center Pharmaceutical Layout" at the conference which was hosted by the Wayne State AIIE student chapter.

Business Ed. Award

WMU senior Kim Appel of Middletown has recently been named to the American Business Education Association Award of Merit for outstanding achievement in business education administration, made in the presentation at the recent spring conference for business and office education teachers held on campus.

1970s has not resolved South and North Korean differences. To the contrary, he reported, cold war animosities of the two Koreas have even increased as a result.

Dialogue between the two Koreas, as urged by the big powers, has pushed them even farther apart and has brought about certain negative results, particularly in the south. Kim stated that the people of South Korea now live under emergency rules and no one can criticize the 1972 constitution or the government with impunity.

Kim said the big power detente policy has resulted in the South Korean govern-dment easing up on political dissent and eliminating many of the democratic ideals that South Koreans had been enjoying. He said it has created an uncertain atmosphere surrounding the Korean peninsula. He observed that South
Koreans worry about potential future U.S. withdrawal of support and possible
American retrenchment into "isolation" concerning certain Asian commitments.

Born in Seoul, Korea, Kim attended Seoul National University before coming to the United States in 1967. He holds a Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University, an MA from the University of Northern Carolina.

Back to Work
Clinic Offered

A "Back To Work Clinic" for women who are considering careers as part of their lifestyles will be offered by WMU's Continuing Education Department next month.

The workshops will run from 12:30-3 p.m. each Monday, May 3 to May 24, in the Davis Room, Walwood Union. The fee is $30 and applicants will be accepted from now until May 2.

In addition to those beginning a career, the clinic is also for women interested in changing to a different field, developing new skills and setting new goals for themselves. It will offer information about the current employment market, the best fields for women these days, and the training and qualifications needed for specific careers.

The Monday afternoon sessions will provide instruction in writing resumes and letters of application, and how to participate in job interviews. Another phase of the clinic will deal with placement services available in the Kalamazoo area and how women can best evaluate their interests, aptitudes and job-related values.

Further information about the WMU's "Back To Work Clinic" is available by calling 385-1800, Continuing Education for Women.

DOWAGIAC STUDENT MAKES SOLO FLIGHT—Richard R. Hass, a Dowagiac senior at WMU, recently completed his first solo flight in the student's license in the University's ROTC flight program.

Last fall, he completed 36 hours of flying instruction. Successful completion of the volunteer flight program makes him eligible for consideration in the Army flight program at Ft. Rucker, Alabama. Hass is scheduled to enter active duty in the Medical Service Corps upon graduation. He received his associate of arts degree from Southwestern Michigan College in 1974.

Pres. Bernhard Urges Support Of Borgess-Bronson Fund Drive

A letter and supporting documents from WMU President John T. Bernhard concerning the Borgess-Bronson Hospitals fund drive was sent to WMU faculty and staff this week.

Thomas Coyne, vice president for student services and University coordinator of the drive, noted that the University appeal is part of a community wide capital fund campaign drive. The combined hospitals seek to raise $10 million to support remodeling and construction programs at both hospitals.

The drive, the first in over 12 years, is notable for several reasons, he said. It marks a combined effort reflecting coordination and planning on behalf of two hospitals. It is a short term drive in that all solicitation in the Kalamazoo area is to be completed by June 1, 1976.

Moreover, individual members of the community are asked to pledge their support over the next three years. Finally, the drive does not seek to raise the total amount of money needed for the proposed construction and remodeling but merely two-thirds of that amount an effort to minimize the total of long-term financing the hospitals would otherwise have to borrow.

President Bernhard said, "Borgess and Bronson hospitals have long provided progressive health care in Kalamazoo and in Southwestern Michigan. This community has been extremely fortunate in having available to it the latest in medical knowledge. Recognizing the high cost of medical care, the hospital trustees and management are attempting to minimize costs and avoid senseless duplication of costly services."

The President also noted, "Hospital services are used by University personnel.
In 1974-75, 3,200 members of the University faculty and staff and/or their families took treasure advantage of one or more of the services provided by the two hospitals."

"Because of the importance of this drive, to the total Kalamazoo community," said Coyne, "it has received official support from the University.
Faculty and staff will be able to contribute via payroll deductions."

Death Claims
Emeline McCoven
Emeline J. McCoven, associate professor emeritus of WMU’s former College of Education, died Saturday, April 17, at the age of 69. Surviving are two cousins, Mrs. W. W. Miller, Sarasota, Florida, and Mrs. A. E. Burwell of Battle Creek.

She retired June 6, 1949 after 45 years as a teacher, including 23 at WMU. Professor McCoven was a graduate of Kalamazoo College, a graduate of Western Michigan University and a graduate of Columbia University.

Dr. Edward McCoven’s book “The Patawomeck Indians in Kalamazoo” was published, following many years of research on the tribes which once inhabited this area. Intended primarily for elementary students, the book was accepted from all age groups as the result of her research material being put into story form.

McCoven was formerly a WMU representative to the Michigan Education Association and held the offices of president, vice president, secretary-treasurer and, at one time, secretary-treasurer of the Student Teacher Association.

Two History Awards Given

Two students were given prestigious awards during the WMU history department annual recognition luncheon here last week, the Martin Luther King Room, University Student Center.

The James O. Knauss Senior History Award was presented to John H. Larsen, a graduating senior from Kalamazoo. He was awarded annually to the senior with the highest grade average in history courses at WMU.

The Smith Burnham History Award went to David F. Stout, a Buchanan junior in history; it is given annually to the junior history major with the highest grade average in history courses at WMU.

Knauss studied on Western's history faculty for 39 years, 11 as department head; he retired in 1956 and died in 1976. Burnham, an accomplished draftsman who was a history faculty member here for 28 years, he died in 1947, eight years after his retirement.

IEEE Student Branch Wins Award

The student branch, Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE) at WMU, has been awarded first prize for its efforts in the recent engineering public open house here.

Electrical engineering department students recently received that award from Richard T. Bruce, IEEE-EMC committee chairman, Kalamazoo chapter, IEEE. Jeffrey L. Vojvotic, a Kalamazoo senior, chairman of the IEEE student branch, IEEE, accepted the award for his colleagues.

Students from five engineering departments, WMU College of Applied Science and Technology, displayed student-constructed projects in the various engineering laboratories in the upper section of the Engineering Building, which were all judged by applied sciences faculty, and were the prime feature of the open house.

Geology Award

Elizabeth J. Brown, a WMU senior from Kalamazoo, has been named recipient of the department's Senior Honor Award in Geology.

The award is based upon outstanding academic achievement, demonstration of interest in professional goals, and participation in departmental activities.

International Social Workers: Youth Leaders Visit Here

Eight social workers and youth leaders from different foreign nations will spend 10 weeks as instructors at the WMU School of Social Work professional program.

Funded by a new $5,705 grant from the Council of International Programs (CIP), for Youth Leaders and Social Workers, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio, and cooperating agencies, the purpose of the program - entitled “Visiting Foreign Social Work Professionals Program,” - runs through June 23, with emphasis on follow-up investigations.

The participants, who will come from Denmark, France, Germany, Kenya, the Netherlands, Singapore, South Africa and Surinam (on the north coast of South America), will participate in departmental activities, and will give workshops on special topics, beginning April 28 at WMU.

These seminars will orient the participants on welfare services offered in the U.S.

Dr. G. G. Dadlani, associate professor of social work at WMU and the project director, will head the seminars, aided by other School of Social Work faculty. He and his colleagues have arranged for special seminars here, the foreign visitors shared with them the group's experiences on what they feel are the most important social welfare programs in their nations.

“This exchange,” he said, “with what they will learn about American welfare services at the agencies, will give them a well rounded experience.” At those seminars, the Western Michigan faculty will observe techniques and procedures and will also provide as much casework help to the agency staffs as their experience and command of the English language will allow.

Part of their learning experience will be living with volunteer host families to gain personal insights into American family life.

After their field placement experience the eight foreign visitors will return to national employment opportunities to evaluate what they have learned in Michigan. They will then travel to Washington to meet with about 200 foreign social workers trained in other areas in the U.S. for a final assessment of their experience.

Dadlani said a goal of the exchange program is to encourage the foreign students to identify the needs of the people on welfare and then show them how those needs can be met by the various force of government and welfare agencies in the United States.

He said he will receive a CIP grant for two foreign students from nations next year to evaluate their social work programs and meet with CIP alumni there as a follow-up seminar.

The project will visit a list of social work agencies, including a special area focus on countries, ranging from Iceland to Spain.

A U.S. Army ROTC cadet here at Western Michigan University, Army Omar N. Bradley Award on May 14 during the Greater Battle Creek Armed Forces American Legion Clubhouse. The selection will be announced later.

The Southern Michigan chapter of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) will make the presentation for the seventh straight year, and it will include a specially designed Bulova Accutron silver watch which has a five star emblem on its face.

The Army Omar N. Bradley Award was established by General Bradley’s five star general rank.

Col. F. W. Thistle (retired), a member of the AUSA board of directors, Gen. Bradley’s five star general rank.

Earsrat CMU Speaker

Dr. H. Byron Earhart, associate professor of religion at WMU, recently spoke twice on the study of religion to Central Michigan University students.

Following an evening presentation before Central Michigan students, Earhart the next morning gave a slide presentation of his field research on Japanese religious studies, which he did about 10 years ago while on a Fulbright Research Grant.

Earhart’s slides in northern Japan during a Rites of Spring pilgrimage up one of that nation’s sacred mountains.

Serves as Consultant

Dr. David S. DeShon, associate professor of social science, served as content planning consultant to Akron University’s Heritage Program on March 13-14. The program was made possible by a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.
Baseball Team On Win Streak

WMU's baseball Broncos, by beating Notre Dame in a double header on Monday, 4-1 and 5-1, raised their season mark to 13-4, and won their last 11 games. Their 2-9 mark in the MAC is the best Bronco start since 1988.

WMU next plays host to doubleheaders on Friday against Bowling Green and Saturday against Toledo, both sets starting at 1 p.m. at Hyames Field.

Gymnastics Team To Travel To Europe

Coach Fred Orlofsky and six of his WMU all-around gymnastics team members will leave Saturday for seven days of competition and demonstrations in Europe.

The Broncos will visit three countries—England, Germany and Switzerland.

Eight of the eight gymnasts making the trip are Mark O'Malley, Dave Zimmerman, Joel Bury, Mike Kellogg, Mike King, and Rich Heil.

WOMEN'S BOWLING TEAM Champion Law's WMU women's bowling team took championship honors in the Michigan Intercollegiate Bowling League with a 49%-15% record. To Play Wisconsin

WMU will play a 1981 football game against the University of Wisconsin, according to Dr. Joseph T. Hoy, Bronco athletic director.

The date of the contest is September 26 at Madison's Camp Randall Stadium and this will mark the second gridiron meeting in history between the two schools. In 1963, Wisconsin returned many veterans from the previous year, and defeated WMU by a 4-3 margin in the season opener.

The men’s varsity tennis squad will face Grand Valley State College on Thursday, April 29 in a home match at 2 p.m. in Stowe Stadium at Kalamazoo College.

Mike Schomer at Drake

WMU's Mike Schomer is one of the few college athletes to compete in all four throwing events and he's slated to perform in the hammer, shot put, javelin and discus against some of the nation's top athletes at the prestigious Drake Relays in Des Moines this weekend.

Women's Varsity Scholar-Athletes

In the annual scholar-athlete banquet for WMU's women's athletics teams held Tuesday night, Amy Currier, a field hockey player, was presented with the "Academic Achievement Award." She's a senior with a 3.7 grade average in women's physical education.

Also cited on the program for academic achievement were: Marilyn Berens, Veterinary, Julia Clary and Patty Langs, bowling; Debbie Crawford and Mary Jo DeBoer, tennis; Barbara Dahlman and Mary Gribach, field hockey; Gail Gwade, swimming; Nancy Hecker and Augusta Lipsey, gymnastics; Susan Lydell, golf; and Kim Meyers, track.

16 Wrestlers Receive Awards

Sixteen members of the 1975-76 WMU wrestling team that finished with a 4-4 dual meet record have been awarded varsity letters.

The recipients are: John Barthe, Tom Dobbertien, Ralph Haagvans, Steve Holmgen, Rick Jenkins, Dennis Jones, Jeff Krause, Mike Loausay, Gary Martin, Joe Perone, Bob Read, Rick Sherry, Sandy Shook, Ron Voss, Ric Wade and Tim Whipple. Receiving a manager's award was Jim Piegas.

WMU was represented by Jeff Tyson, Paul Griffin and Tom Cutter on the 1976-77 All-Mid-American Conference basketball team marking the first time WMU printed three players on the first unit.

Western Michigan baseball coach Fred Decker was a second-team All-American in 1983 and 1984, while assistant coach Fred Stevens was a first-team choice in 1984, as both played at WMU as under- graduates.

Swimmers Honor Blanchard, Bartos

Mark Blanchard, a freshman from Garden City, has been voted the "most valuable" performer for the 1975-76 season and Greg Bartos, another freshman from Warren, has been cited as the "most improved" performer in voting conducted by Western's varsity men's swimming team.

Blanchard set school records in the 500-, 1,000-, and in the 1,650-meter freestyle events. He also turned in team best times in the 200 and 400-yard individual medley and won 14 of 29 dual meet races.

Bartos was WMU's top butterfly. Terry Breest, a senior tri-captain from Dearborn, also broke a school record in the 200-yard freestyle.

Western Michigan hockey linemates Steve Smith, Tim Danz and Bob Garner also worked together in 1975-74 as members of the Sarnia Bees in Ontario Junior B competition.

Present Asian Studies Paper

Dave Dickenson, chairman of Asian studies and associate professor of geography at Western, will present a paper at the recent Midwest Conference on Asian Affairs at Ohio University. Entitled "Bombay's Internal Colonialism During the 1961-1971 Period," his paper focused on issues in Indian urbanization by dealing with the case of metropolitan Bombay, a city which increased by more than 1,000,000 people during that 10-year period.
